1960 Year Of Decision In Louisiana

More Elections Facing State In Near Future

BATON ROUGE (AP)—This is the year of decision for Louisiana, with all kinds of elections still ahead after the key Jan. 9 victory of former Gov. Jimmie Davis.

The congressional campaigns are coming up. And after them the vote for a new president.

Even the actual day for holding elections continues to hold controversial interest.

The Legislature, meeting in May, is certain to grapple again the question whether elections should be held on Saturdays or Tuesdays.

PUSHED

Gov. Earl K. Long pushed through the change to Saturday voting in 1958 after years of balloting on Tuesdays. He said the change would stir up a larger turnout.

The all-time record ballot of 901,791 a week ago, which helped win Davis the Democratic runoff for governor, proved Long knew what he was talking about on weekend voting.

But many groups and factions are still claiming Saturday voting is an inconvenience.

Davis faces Republican and States Rights opposition in the April 19 general election, usually is just a formality. But GOP nominee Francis Grevemberg and Kent H. Courtney, the States' Rights leader, are making plans for a hard-hitting campaign.

In getting ready for the Nov. 8 presidential election, the first hint of what's in the wind in this state may come in the Jan. 30 meeting of the new Democratic State Central Committee. It usually reflects the views of the incoming governor.

However, that meeting will not act on presidential matters. Chances are the presidential weather vane may start developing, however, as the committee gets down to business now that the Democratic race for governor is over.

Louisiana has supported the Democratic presidential candidate only once in the last three elections. In 1952, when Louisiana voted 345,027 to 306,925 for Adlai Stevenson. Four years later President Eisenhower won the state 329,045 to 243,977. In 1948, Louisiana bolted to the States' Rights.

Louisiana has played host to Sen. John Kennedy (D-Mass) and Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo). More presidential hopefuls will be heading this way, and one is likely to be Vice President Richard Nixon.

Rights Bill Quick Action Is Foreseen

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Backers of the drive for quick House action on the stalled Civil Rights Bill hope to get a bandwagon rolling for it next week.

They anticipate a spurt Monday in signatures on a petition to dislodged the measure from the hostile Rules Committee which has bottled it up since last August.

Their expectations were based on two factors: prodding of holdouts by church, labor and racial groups supporting the bill, and a bigger House attendance Monday when President Eisenhower's budget will be presented.

To make the petition effective, signatures are needed from 219 of the 432 House members. By the close of business this week, 166 had signed.

SIGNERS

Signers included some 20 Republicans, although House GOP leaders are boycotting the Northern Democratic - sponsored petition. Backers felt that if they could get close to 200 signatures, other Republicans would come forward and the goal could be reached.

Under House rules, names of Britain Wants Space For Base

LONDON (UPI)—Britain Saturday demanded space for a major Middle East military base on Cyprus in exchange for the independence promised the island on Feb. 19.

Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd took this firm stand at the opening of a conference on the island's future. The conference was summoned to try to break a deadlock on the size of the areas Britain is to retain there for its Army and Air Force. The bases will be used to house a "fire brigade" force capable of speedy movement anywhere in the Mideast.

SECOND PLANE INCIDENT

Bomb Viewed In Gulf Crash

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—A hint that a National Airlines plane which crashed into the Gulf of Mexico Nov. 16 was shattered by a bomb was raised Saturday at a Civil Aeronautics Board hearing.

Testimony was given that Dr. Robert Spears of Dallas, Tex., who was listed as one of the passengers, had once threatened to blow up a hospital.

At the time of the crash which took 42 lives, Spears was free on bond under a Los Angeles indictment charging him with conspiracy to commit abortion. He previously had served a term in Leavenworth Penitentiary for forgery.

TESTIMONY

The testimony came indirectly from Julian Blodgett, chief investigator of the district attorney's office in Los Angeles. Blodgett's statement, made to the FBI in New Orleans, was read to the hearing by Charles S. Collar, a CAB investigator.

Blodgett was quoted as saying "He had received information from a confidential source to the effect that Dr. Spears had made the statement that for $500 he would blow up a hospital where the source had previously been employed."

There was no elaboration on this part of the testimony.

The Los Angeles investigator advanced a theory that Spears "might have had someone travel for him to collect a large insurance policy for the benefit of his young wife."

In Tampa, where the plane took off for New Ordeans, there has been speculation that William Allen Taylor, 60-year-old Tampa salesman, may have boarded the plane in place of Spears.

Taylor bought a $37,500 air travel insurance policy at the Tampa airport shortly before the plane took off but he was not listed on the passenger manifesto. He has not since been seen. His son was named as beneficiary in the policy that Taylor purchased.

TRANSACTIONS ANNOUNCED

3 Monroe Stores Shift To Safeway

Safeway Stores, owners of a Monroe retail site for the last 14 months, yesterday purchased three existing stores here and will start operations Monday, it was announced jointly by F. Strauss and Son of Monroe, Quinten McLemore of West Monroe and Safeway's representatives.

No changes are contemplated in the personnel of the three stores. All have been invited to join the Safeway organization, and their employment will continue uninterrupted, officials said.

"We not only have acquired three fine stores in a fine community, but, more important, some wonderful people have joined our organization," K. W. Huntington of Little Rock Safeway's division manager said. "We know that our local customers will enjoy discovering Safeway's kind of services, quality foods and price savings."

THREE-WAY

In the three-way transactions Safeway assumes lease of the Dixie Dandy Store at 1114 Forsythe Avenue in the Parkview Shopping Center from F. Strauss & Son, from whom Safeway also will lease directly the second Dixie Dandy Store at 311 Plum Street in the Southside Shopping Center. In a separate agreement,

Sphere Sent Up 250 Miles

WASHINGTON (AP) — The space agency successfuly launched an aluminum-coated sphere to an altitude of about 250 miles Saturday night and inflated it there to a diameter of 100 feet.

The sphere shone brighter than any of the stars that were just becoming visible in the increasing dusk.

FIFTH ANNIVERSARY

New Era Recalled On Nuclear Power

GROTON, Conn. (AP)—A new era in maritime history began here five years ago Sunday.

Nobody who was here on Jan. 17, 1955, will ever forget the thrills and excitement that came moments after the submarine Nautilus slipped away from the piers of her builder and flashed the now historic message:

"Under way on nuclear power."

It meant that the power that had flashed over Almagordo, Hiroshima and Nagasaki had been harnessed successfully to churn the Nautilus' propellers.

Lessons learned from the reactor in the Nautilus' hull have had an impact in all fields of nuclear energy, out perhaps the greatest single change resulting from that day has been the transition of the U. S. Navy into a nuclear navy.

Now, 10 nuclear submarines are in commission. Five more are being outfitted for fleet duty this year, and another 18 are under construction.

A nuclear cruiser was launched last year and a nuclear carrier and destroyer are taking shape on building ways.

But probably more significant than the growth have been the breath-taking feats of the atomic-powered craft.

Khrush Raps West About Berlin Issue

Accusation Made During Private Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev has privately accused leaders of the United States, Britain and France of trying to avoid decisive negotiations over the future of West Berlin.

The accusation was made in the course of a long series of talks Khrushchev had with U. S. Ambassador Lleweleyn Thompson and other Western diplomats at a New Year's Eve party in the Kremlin.

Thompson sent a detailed report to Washington for the information of President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Christian A. Herter.

VERSIONS

Other versions of the talk, which went on for many hours and was reportedly accompanied by considerable drinking, also have reached official Washington, informants said. These reports are said to show a "typical Khrushchev" — sometimes bombastic and truculent in manner, sometimes conciliatory and outwardly hopeful of improving East-West relations.

In the course of the discussions, which ran on until well after midnight, Khrushchev is said to have covered not only the Berlin issue but also to have talked about disarmament, the space race and every other subject of any great importance in world affairs today.

Out of the huge mass of words, authorities here said, it was dif-

Fred Huenefeld Is Top Farmer In State Tests

NATCHITOCHES (Special) — Fred Henefeld Jr. of Monroe was named outstanding young farmer of Louisiana for 1959 at a meeting sponsored by the Natchitoches Junior Chamber of Commerce, here last night.

Huenefeld, who owns a 925-acre farm in Ouachita Parish was selected from a field of 15 contestants representing all points of the state. He was nominated for the competition by the Monroe City Chamber of Commerce.

As a result of winning the award, he will be elegible to compete for one of four national outstanding young farmer awards in competition at Berkley Calif. in April.

ACTIVE

Huenefeld, who is an outstanding civic leader in Monroe, has also been active in state social affairs. In 1958 he led the Cancer Crusade for the Louisiana Division of American Cancer Society.

In past years he has been a member of the board of directors of the local Cancer Society, president of the Ouachita Parish Farm Bureau, and a member of the agricultural committee of the Monroe Chamber of Commerce He has also been active in local aeronautical activities, including work with the Northeast Louisiana Weather Modification Corporation, and is presently connected with a local flying service.

Treaty Set To Raise Japan Rank

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi arrives Sunday to sign a treaty formally raising Japan from an underling to an equal partner in U.S.-Japanese relations.

The landmark document is slated for signing Tuesday in the same East Room of the White House where President James Buchanan received the first mission from Japan 100 years ago.

The Japanese sought the treaty that ranks them with America's other free world allies, and gives them a bigger say in future U.S. undertakings affecting their country.

WELCOMES

The United States welcomes it as a free choice by Japan — a front - rank, industrialized Asian power of more than 90 million persons—to line up permanently with the free world.

Up to the moment of his departure from Tokyo, Kishi was under attack from left-wing elements at home and abroad for the decision to join the West rather than steer a neutral course in the cold war.

He may face further stiff opposition when he takes the treaty home for ratification by the Japanese Parliament. No such hostility is expected in the U.S. Senate, which must also ratify the treaty.

Moscow and Peiping have denounced the arrangement as a menace to peace and as preparation for new aggression in Asia. This reaction caused no surprise here. For years the Communist powers have sought to drive a wedge between the United States and the industrially potent Japanese.

Thunderstorms Likely In Area

Rain started last night about 6:00 with high winds developed coming from the east at 20-35 knots making thunderstorm activity very possible for the area.

Rain along with cool temperatures are expected for the Monroe area today and possibly Monday, the Shreveport weather bureau forecasts.

High expected for today is around 53 as compared to yesterday's 51 at 4 p.m. and a low of 35 overnight.

Cloudy and rainy skies are expected over the northern section of the state with possible showers and, thundershowers elsewhere.

Arkansas also has showers in the offing in the southern portion and cooler temperatures in the north.

IN LAFOURCHE SWAMP

Searchers View Plane Wreckage

By AUSTIN MILLER JR.
Staff Writer

Six men on horseback yesterday morning relocated the wreckage, deep in the near-impenetrable tangle of LaFourche Swamp, of a mysterious airplane first discovered by an 83-year-old Monroe trapper.

The plane, so far identifiable only as a four passenger, single engine Stinson Voyager 150, lies deep in the swamp, eight miles east of Monroe and three miles south of Highway 80, between two pipelines.

An immediate search was made of the area for traces of the pilot or passengers, but none were found.

CONTACTED

The ownership of the plane has not been established. The Federal Aviation Agency at Selman Field, after being notified of the plane, contacted Shreveport, Fort Worth and Washington in an attempt to identify the craft, but last night had received no acknowledgement of their inquiry.

It is known that a Stinson aircraft crashed in the vicinity sometime around 1947, claiming several lives, but there is at present no conclusive evidence to determine whether or not the wreckage is the same. The plane does not appear to have been in the swamp for such a time. Rather, deterioration of the metal indicates the wreckage to be between two and four years old.

Persons in the area do not recall the earlier incident, but there has been at least one unconfirmed report in the past five years of a plane going down in the general vicinity.

IN GROUP

Those who entered the swamp were A. M. Moore, the trapper who discovered the wreckage, Cleo Moore, Frank Moore, Ar-

Major Storm Building Up, Aims Thrust

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A major winter storm built up over the Southwest Saturday and aimed a wind-powered thrust of snow and ice toward the central plains.

The Weather Bureau warned of heavy snow, with accumulations of 4 inches or more, in southwest Kansas and northwest and extreme western Oklahoma. Sleet or freezing rain also was expected in parts of Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri.

As the storm intensified, it scattered snow from Arizona and New Mexico into the central Rockies and adjacent sections of the plains. Winds with gusts up to 50 miles an hour were indicated for much of the snow area during Saturday night.

SNOW

Snow also dusted interior sections of the Pacific Northwest and northern California. Flurries persisted from the eastern Great Lakes into the north and central Appalachians.

Sunny skies and crisp temperatures were the rule from the northern Mississippi Valley into the Ohio Valley. Mostly sunny weather also prevailed along the Atlantic Coast.

ONE MILLION

Many Americans Win Cancer Fight

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — An estimated one million Americans can look back upon cancer and say, "I've had it."

They are considered cured.

And another 600,000 probably are cured but they haven't yet gone five years without symptoms of recurrence. The five-year mark is the widely accepted standard for use of the word cure.

The estimates were reported Saturday by Dr. Harold S. Diehl head of research and medical affairs for the American Cancer Society. He addressed a symposium of the Arizona division of the society.

Dr. Diehl's estimates were derived from statistics gathered in Connecticut over a long period and from U.S. Public Health Service figures. The Connecticut figures long have been used as standards in cancer statistics.

The research leader reported also some figures indicating decreases in the past 20 years in the death rates for cancer of the lip, stomach, liver, mouth and skin among white males.

Among women, he added, there have been decreases of 40 per cent or more in cancer of the lip, stomach, liver, womb, mouth and skin.

But there were increases in deaths in men from cancers of the kidney, pancreas and a colossal jump of 400 per cent in

Mickey Says He Met Him On Business

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Officers said Saturday night they have been unable to find a "Mr. X" whom Dr. George H. Mickey claimed he met several hours before Dr. Margaret McMillan was clubbed to death.

Dr. Mickey, suspended dean of the Louisiana State University graduate school, is charged with the murder of the 39-year-old biology professor at LSU's New Orleans branch. Her body was found early last Sunday on a lonely country road six and one-half miles south of LSU's Baton Rouge campus.

Sheriff Bryan Clemmons and Dist. Atty. J. St. Clair Favrot said in a statement that Dr. Mickey claimed he met a government official on the nig'ht of Jan. 9 to confer about fellowships allotted to LSU under the National Defense Education Act.

CONCLUSION

"The conclusion is inescapable that no such person exists." Clemmons and Favrot said.

The man was identified by Dr. Mickey as a representative of the graduate fellowship section of the U.S. Department of Education from Washington, D.C. whose name was "Sharon, Sheridan, Sherrill or some similar name. . ."

Dr. Mickey said he met the man at 5:30 p.m. and three hours later took him to the local airport where he boarded a plane for Houston, Tex.

The statement by Clemmons and Favrot said an intensive check had failed to find any trace of such a person.

In a news conference later, Favrot asked—almost sarcastically—this rhetorical question: "Can you find Mr. X? Let's pitch in

Senate Nominee Jones Declares Position 'Firm'

By DALLAS ROPER
State Editor

ST. JOSEPH — Howard M. Jones, recently nominated state senator from the 32nd district whose qualifications and election are being contested by two of his defeated opponents, said yesterday that he is on "absolutely firm ground and we have nothing to worry about."

Jones said that the issues being brought out in two law suits against him here were issues in the campaign.

Jones was elected over the incumbent senator, Brenham C. Crothers, in the Jan. 9 runoff. Crothers, along with another candidate who was eliminated in the first primary on Dec. 5, has entered suit in the district court here asking that Jones be declared ineligible to hold the seat, that the results of the election be voided and that Jones not be allowed to hold the office.

Crothers also has declared his intentions to fight Jones' seat-

IN RIGHTS CASE

U.S. Attorneys File Last Minute Reply

WASHINGTON (Special) — Federal attorneys in the Shreveport voting registration case have filed a last-minute reply brief denying defense charges that the Civil Rights Commission far exceeded its authority when it tried to investigate 13 Louisiana registrars last July.

Louisiana attorney general Jack P. F. Gremillion said he was "surprised" the government would file the reply brief almost on the eve of Supreme Court arguments scheduled for Monday.

The Commission is appealing a decision by a three-man federal court in Shreveport, which agreed with Gremillion that the commission could not summon the registrars to a hearing without permitting them counsel and other legal safeguards.

Gremillion contends the commission, attempting to investigate complaints of 67 north Louisiana Negroes allegedly "purged" from registration lists, became "a roving grand jury."

The government's reply briefly denies that the commission is an adjudicatory body — merely an investigative one. On the same grounds, it denies defense arguments that the commission's investigation would have violated the administrative procedures act, a law requiring government agencies to provide legal safeguards during the course of investigations.

Gremillion's brief contended the commission, by exposing the parish registrars to charges that they discriminated against Negroes, would in effect be accusing them of violating the law.

He said Saturday that granting the commission all the authority it claims would be "the next thing to giving it a license to slander."

The state attorney general stated that his oral argument before the court Monday will recite the step-by-step preparations made by the commission up to the time its projected hearing was canceled by a court injunction last July.

He said this will show that the commission deliberately avoided notifying him — the legal counsel for all parish registrars — of the hearing, the names of the complaining Negroes, or the nature of the charges against the registrars.

Gremillion was accompanied to Washington by Ferdinand Cashio of Shreveport, Ouachita parish district attorney Albin P. Lassiter, M. E. Culligan, John Jackson and William Schuler of New Orleans; and N. Cleburn Dalton of Baton Rouge.

H. Thatcher Will Confer On Ouachita

H. K. Thatcher, Executive Vice President of the Ouachita River Valley Association, left for Washington, Saturday, to attend a series of meetings and conferences in connection with the water resources projects in the Ouachita River Basin.

Thatcher's first conference will be with the Board of Army Engineers for Rivers and Harbors in connection with advancing the 9-foot channel project for the Ouachita River. The Vicksburg Office of the Corps of Engineers officially approved and recommended this project last July, but the railroads, which are opposing the project, have succeeded in delaying action in advancing the project until February 15 of this year.

STATEMENT

Thatcher said, "I have been given the opportunity of studying the railroads' adverse report, and this I will do and then confer with the Louisiana and Arkansas Congressional delegations in order to determine what course of action should be taken to advance this project before the Congress. We do not anticipate any further delaying action on the part of the railroads, but we do have a problem in convincing the Bureau of the Budget that we should spend initially $7 million additional money in order to get 600-foot locks in our new 9-foot channel project.

The Budget Bureau would like for us to be satisfied with 400-foot locks, but only 600-foot locks will allow the full economic development of the Ouachita River Basin. We have had a second-class navigation system all of these years and now we have an opportunity to go first-class, and we are going to make every effort to do it."

BUDGET

In addition to the work on the 9-foot channel, Thatcher will also attend to other budget matters concerning the maintenance of the basin's present navigation system, flood control, recreation, and power facilities. The present 6½ foot channel has been giving shippers considerable trouble during 1959, and some additional money is needed for dredging work to remove some of the shoals and sandbars that are obstructing traffic and causing damage to transportation equipment.

While in Washington, Thatcher will also attend the annual meeting of the Water Resources Associated, an organization composed of about 30 similar organizations to the Ouachita River Valley Association. Thatcher is due to return from Washington on January 21.

Boy, 5, Injured In Auto Mishap

A five - year - old Monroe youth, Harvey Ray Mize of 1619 South Fifth street, was injured Saturday morning when he ran into the path of a moving automobile on Jackson street. The vehicle was driven by Carl A. Steinbeck, 27, 804 Montgomery street, West Monroe. Steinbeck stated that he did not see the child in time to stop.

The boy was taken to St. Francis Hospital for treatment, but was not in serious condition.

No charges were filed in the mishap.

James Williams Will Preside At Industry Meet

James Williams, executive secretary of the Monroe Chamber of Commerce, will preside at the February 11 meeting of Louisiana's Seventh Annual Industrial Development Conference at the Capitol House in Baton Rouge.

Jimmie H. Davis will make one of his first major addresses since nomination by the Democratic Party for governor of Louisiana at the noon luncheon session of the conference on the 11th. It is believed that he will outline his plans for further industrial development in Louisiana.

The aim of the conference is to acquaint community leaders with better techniques in industrial development.

The annual meeting is jointly sponsored by the State Department of Commerce and Industry and the Louisiana State University college of business administration.

PAPER SAVER

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The military still likes everything in triplicate — at least — but the deputy director of administrative services at Lockbourne Air Force Base here thinks it still may be possible to save money.

Maj. Robert M. Saunders is urging base officials to use the backs of obsolete or unneeded forms for scratch paper to draft correspondence. The measure, he contends, "could cut our paper bill in half."

YMCA Week Begins Monday

National Y.M.C.A. Week, set aside to bring public recognition to the unique character and work of the YMCA, is to be observed throughout the United States and Canada January 17-24.

A number of local activities are scheduled during the week in connection with the observance, according to Jamar W. Adcock, president of the Twin Cities YMCA.

Starting Monday at 7:30 a.m., there will be a meeting of the Board of Directors at the Saddle and Spur restaurant, when the annual report of 1959 progress will be given.

PROGRAM

A television program will be presented at 5:15 p.m. Monday which will include the youth program of the organization, as well as a building progress report and facts concerning growth of the program during the past several years in the Twin Cities.

Ground - breaking ceremonies have been set for Sunday, Jan. 24, on the new YMCA building. These ceremonies are to begin at 2:30 p.m. on the site of the new building, on Glenmar street between North 18th and 19th streets.

That same Sunday has been set aside as YMCA Sunday, Adcock said, pointing out that all churches in the Twin Cities have been asked to display the special posters, displays, etc., at the churches during the day's activities.

During the first phase of its development, the YMCA was basically a religious organization. Since its establishment in Montreal in 1851, however, it has included spiritual, intellectual, social and physical development as well. Today there are 1,961 YMCA chapters throughout the United States with a total enrollment of 2,656,378 young men.

Polio Vaccination Urged By Officials

The Louisiana State Board of Health reported that the state ended the past year with 136 cases of poliomyelitis, 106 cases were paralytic and 30 non - paralytic. Included in the paralytic cases were 12 cases of bulbar polio and three deaths.

This is the fifth year since the discovery of Salk vaccine and still two - thirds of the paralytic cases had received no vaccination. Of the 32 cases who had received one or more injections of Salk vaccine, half were inadequately vaccinated.

The state board of health recommends a full course of three injections of Salk vaccine, plus a booster given one year after completion of the initial series, for maximum protection against paralytic polio. Immunization may start as early as one or two months, and should be given to everyone under the age of forty, a health spokesman said.

Public health wish to make clear to the public that the vaccine is almost completely safe and there should be no need to fear the needle.

Salk vaccine has been proven to be up to 90 per cent effective in preventing paralytic polio. In a few cases the vaccine has not given protection because the shots were received too late.

It takes eight months to complete the full course of three polio shots. The first two are given about one month apart, the third shot is given seven months or longer after the second, officials stated. To be adequately protected all three shots, properly spaced, are essential, they said.

The state board of health says, "The polio virus canot cripple and kill those who are fully protected by vaccination, and you barely have time to complete a full course of polio shots before the 1960 season reaches its peak around August or September, if you start the series right now."

Persons normally eligible for health unit immuniation services are urged to go to their health units; others are advised to see their private physicians for polio shots.

LADIES CAST A LINE

LONG BRANCH, N. J. (AP) — The little woman, togged in everything from long johns to army surplus hand-me-downs, has found her way to the pier here to join her outdoorsman in the rigors of winter fishing.

And she seems to be enjoying it.

Many of the women who line the pier are as zealous in the pursuit of fish as their husbands —and complain less of the cold.

And as one grandmother, who joins her husband once a week on the pier to fish, explained: "It's our night out."

FISH PUT TO USE

BELMAR, N.J. (AP) —Druggist Joseph Axelrad has put plastic fish inside his store's showglobes, those large bottles filled with colored water that symbolize pharmacy in drugstores everywhere.

His globes have an unorthodox look, what with weighted plastic fish decorating the bottoms.

"I took the globes down for cleaning," says Axelrad. "Then I thought — why waste them? So I put in the fish."

'MAJORITY' ABROAD

NEW YORK (AP) — However the title is translated, "A Majority of One," will be receiving wide production in foreign lands during 1960.

The Theatre Guild and Dore Schary, producers of the play, say rights to the Leonard Spigelgass comedy thus far have been sold for England, Australia, Union of South Africa, Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Finland, France, Holland, Germany, Austria and Israel — with London scheduled for the first foreign production.

Gentry's Dixie Dandy in West Monroe was not included in the transaction.

Gentry's store will continue to operate as an independent super market under its present name, according to the management at Gentry's.

All three locations will receive special Safeway appointments and signs as rapidly as possible, Huntington confirmed.

The three local stores represent Safeway's first business venture in Louisiana, although the company regularly has operated stores throughout Arkansas ever since it was incorporated in 1926. Throughout most of these 34 years, Safeway's nearest operations have been at El Dorado and Crossett, Arkansas; the El Dorado Safeway celebrated its third decade of business by constructing an entirely new supermarket building.

Included in its agreements with F. Strauss and Son, Safeway sold its property at the southeast corner of Second Street and Stone Avenue in Monroe which it had held more than a year awaiting retail development. Safeway also agreed to lease space in the Eastgate Shopping Center to be built in about a year near the intersection of DeSiard and Louisville Avenue.

Strauss explained, "The locations of our stores make them logical sites for Safeway here. We are especially pleased that our negotiations were successfully concluded because of the employment opportunities thereby assured our employees with this fine retail organization. Our wholesale business, of course, will not be affected and we will continue to serve our retail customers."

McLemore of West Monroe explained that he offered his Jitney Jungle store to Safeway because he wanted to devote more time to his other business interests, and expressed his company's pleasure with the settlement reached.

Safeway traces its beginnings to a single, small gorcery store whose building was personally constructed by the retail company's founder, M. B. Skaggs, at the small town of American Falls, Idaho, in 1915. As the Skaggs organization prospered, it incorporated and changed its name to Safeway Stores, Incorporated during the late 'Twenties. Safeway, today, is not only the nation's youngest but the second ranking major retail food organization and is the only company among the nation's leading commercial industries that maintains its headquarters in the western U.S.

When its fiscal year ended January 2, Safeway had 2,164 stores in operation in 25 states, the District of Columbia, and the five western provinces of Canada. The company's consolidated sales increased 7.08 per cent during 1959 over 1958 and amounted to $2,382,950,547.

mand Stokes, Roger Beavers and Jim St. Julien, News-Star—World photographer. A. M. Moore, who runs a trapline for mink in the area every day, led the party to the scene.

The plane apparently was heading south when the accident occurred. When it crashed, it clipped the tops from three or four trees and both wings were sheared off, along with the horizontal stabilizer and elevator. The entire nose of the plane was cut off at the cockpit, and the engine could not be found. The instrument panel was discovered, broken, 20 feet forward of the fusilage.

Only one seat was found in the plane. However, it is possible that the others were thrown clear of the fusilage.

The wreckage was scattered over an area 50 yards long and 30 feet wide. Much of it was covered by leaves, twigs and moss.

The site of the crash is thickly overgrown and frequently flooded, reachable only by jeep or horseback.

His apparent intention was to use necessary reorganization of Soviet forces as a device to put new propoganda pressure on the West to make concessions on disarmament.

Two former Monroe residents and their all-girl family are featured in the December edition of "Timely Topics", published for employees of a watch company, Lancaster, Pa. Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Schaller and their five daughters are photographed by the living room fireplace, where gay Christmas stockings hang from the mantel, which includes a manger scene. Mrs. Schaller will be remembered as Margaret Dugal, daughter of Mr. P. B. Dugal and the late Mr. Dugal of Swartz. She graduated from Northeast State, then a junior college, where she edited the Pow Wow, college newspaper, and was active in several organizations. Schaller, a major in the U.S. Air Corps during World War II, and his wife resided in Monroe following completion of his army duty until they returned to his home in Lancaster, where he presently is manager, quality control, M.P. at the company with which he is associated.

Mickey Says He Met Him On Business

and see if this man really exists."

Favrot said that during the early part of the investigation, Dr. Mickey handed him an application form for a graduate fellowship. Mickey said it came from a stack of applications received from the man during the Saturday night meeting. Favrot said, however, he had learned the applications came through the mails.

Favrot also said the only U.S. education representative with a name similar to that given by Dr. Mickey was a George Scherer of the University of Colorado.

Favrot said Scherer told him he had not been in Louisiana for some time.

Dr. Mickey's wife, Favrot said, backed up his statement that he was at his home after 9 p.m.

Favrot said that Dr. McMillan, whose time of death has been set at 12:45 a.m. Jan. 10, could have been beaten several hours earlier. He said the amount of blood on the ground indicated the blows on the head did not kill her instantly but that she bled to death.

Robert L. Kleinpeter, one of two defense attorneys, earlier challenged Favrot to prove in court that Dr. Mickey definitely was not at home the night Dr. McMillan was beaten.

He said that Favrot "is just talking to the press."

Kleinpeter contends Mickey was at home with his family in Baton Rouge after 8 p.m. on Jan. 9.

Favrot said he made long-distance calls to crack Mickey's account of his whereabouts. He said the FBI has been cooperating with him in helping to locate witnesses out of state.

Coroner Chester Williams said the killer apparently was a person with an "unusual personality." Dr. McMillan was struck 13 times on the back of the head. Her skull was broken. The weapon, presumed to be narrow and blunt, is missing.

The unmarried biologist bled profusely before dying beside her small foreign car. Williams set the time of death at early last Sunday morning, but added she may have been alive at the spot several hours.

Williams said the autopsy showed Dr. McMillan had not been raped and was not pregnant. He said there was no sign of a struggle.

Deputies said Dr. McMillan left her New Orleans apartment about 4 p.m. Jan. 9 telling neighbors she had a date.

Authorities have withheld information on the questioning of Mickey's wife, Alwilda, 51, and son, Don, 19, an LSU sopohmore.

A Negro farmer hunting near the spot where Dr. McMillan was beaten to death said Saturday he saw a dark car moving slowly away from the murder scene about 2 a.m. last Sunday.

BATON ROUGE, Jan. 16 (UPI)—Louisiana State University, a 101-year-old school that is "shocked" by the bludgeon-slaying of a woman professor, has a history of shocks beginning 35 years ago when another professor's skull was caved in.

Currently, the campus is agog over the charge that the dean of its graduate school, Dr. George H. Mickey, clubbed to death Dr. Margaret Raymond McMillan.

It will probably survive this, just as it has survived another professor's murder, Huey Long, and a president who tried to corner the wheat market, along with various more minor irritants such as racial rows.

In 1925, the school fidgeted as police scrutinized the 27 students who made up Agronomy 23. They were looking for the person who took a hatchet and mutilated the head of agronomy professor Oscar Turner. Professor Turner's body was found in a dark hallway of the Agronomy building.

Investigators said they were sure one of the students in Agronomy 23 got caught by the professor while stealing final examination questions and killed him rather than be exposed.

But they never did find out who did it, and the murder is still unsolved.

The legendary Kingfish, Huey P. Long, took an interest in the school and began building it up, until it was known as the "school Huey built." But Huey wanted it run his way.

After the murder of the professor, things rocked along on a reasonaly even keel until 1934, when Huey decided it would be good experience for the students to hold a mock election for a state senate seat that was then open.

The students thought it would be fun and so, in a spirit of fun, they elected a football hero. Huey apparently thought that was so funny that he tried to get the football player sworn in as senator—for real, not for fun. The football playing senator-elect balked and so did the student body.

Somebody wrote a nasty letter to the Reville, the student paper, chastising Huey for trying to use an "unconstitutional election" to get a football player made a senator.

For that, Huey ordered the paper put under strict censorship. This incensed the students so that they had the temerity to complain verbally to Huey.

This resulted in seven journalism students being expelled and about 28 others suspended from the school. The Reveille wasn't published for several weeks when what remained of the staff quit in protest.

Huey Long was removed from the scene by an assassin, and things went quietly again until 1938. Then a bomb burst.

James Monroe Smith, President of LSU, having dropped more than $100,000 of the school's money trying to corner the wheat market, fled to Canada. But he was arrested, brought back and sent to Angola prison, where he spent his time chopping sugar cane.

On the heels of that—it is all known as the great Louisiana scandals and even a governor went to jail—a contractor, George Caldwell, was sentenced to a Federal prison term for misappropriating WPA funds earmarked for a new footall stadium.

His partner killed himself.

Mother Gertrude To Be Honored

A ceremony will be held this afternoon honoring Mother Marie Gertrude, Administrator at St. Francis hospital, who is being sent to Baton Rouge to take another position.

At the ceremonies, Mother Gertrude will be presented with a plaque from the City of Monroe, honoring her for her work at St. Francis during the past eleven yars.

She will take the position of Administrator at Our Lady of the Lake Hospital in Baton Rouge.

lung cancer. Leukemia, a cancer-like disease of the blood, also increased.

Increases of 50 per cent or rate from cancer of the ovary, pancreas and lung, and a similar boost in leukemia among women.

Dr. Diehl asserted that cancer of the cervix or mouth of the womb could be wiped out if women over 25 years of age would have regular smear tests and quick treatment of any suspicious findings.

Periodical examination and early treatment could save another 75,000 lives a year if currently available scientific information were utilized fully, he said.

"And this," he added, "does not include many thousands of cancer deaths that might be prevented by reducing exposure to the carcinogens — cancer-causing substances—of tobacco smoke."

THIS WEEK IN BUSINESS

Outlook Good On Retail Trade

NEW YORK (AP) — The outlook for retail and foreign trade received optimistic support this week.

Retail trade enjoyed a record year in 1959 but foreign trade languished.

The 11,500-member National Retail Merchants Assn., holding its annual convention in New York, indicated a six to seven per cent sales increase is in prospect for the first half of 1960.

The Commerce Department reported 1959 retail sales totaled $215,600,000,000, up eight per cent over 1958.

A gain of three to seven per cent was registered this week over a year ago.

Merchants at the convention expressed the opinion there is little likelihood at this time of price increases.

Secretary of Commerce Frederick H. Mueller said the United States is going to adopt the "hard sell" technique in an effort to overcome the four-billion-dollar deficit in international payments which occurred last year.

The deficit was due to such payments as foreign aid, military expenditures and capital investment overseas which over-balanced the United States' slight edge in exports over imports.

"It is well within the range of possibility," Mueller said, "to increase our exports by 12 to 15 per cent in the next year."

D. F. Heathcrington of the National Foreign Trade Council predicted Uncle Sam's deficit transactions with the rest of the world could be cut to $2,500,000,000 this year, to less than one billion in 1961 and perhaps be ended in 1963.

Two other developments improved the foreign trade prospects. Japan ended discriminatory restrictions against import of iron and steel, beef tallow and lard from the dollar area and liberalized imports of 434 other items. Italy lifted quota restrictions on 200 agricultural and industrial products imported from the dollar area.

The economy's quick recovery from the steel strike pushed employment to a record 65,699,000 in December, the Labor Department reported. This was the first December since World War II in which there was no decline in jobs. Unemployment totaled 3,577,000.

Compared with a year ago, employment in December was up 1,726,000 and unemployment was down 531,000.

Steel production for 1959 was announced as 93,436,813 tons, compared with 85,254,885 tons in recession 1958. The trade magazine Iron Age predicted a record 70-million-ton output in the first half of this year.

The automobile industry boosted its production this week to around 175,000 passenger cars, the highest rate since December 1955.

Sales this week on the New York Stock Exchange totaled 17,680,696 shares compared with 18,027,086 last week and 21,105,080 a year ago. Bond sales amounted to $27,722,000 par value compared with $32,808,000 last week and $38,405,000 a year ago.

Briefly around the business scene: Transatlantic ship travel declined in 1959 to the lowest point in seven years; liners carried 884,000 passengers between North America and Europe. ... Drillers expect to put down 53,000 oil and gas wells this year, a two per cent increase over last year. ... A British company, Dollar Land Holdings, Ltd., paid $22,500,000 for a shopping center in Yonkers, N.Y. ... J. C. Penney Co. sales reached a record $1,429,537,552 in 1959. ... Endicott Johnson Corp., with 25 shoe plants in New York and Pennsylvania, will open its first southern plant in Ackerman, Miss. ... Studebaker - Packard Corp. estimates its 1959 profit at $28,500,000; lost 13 million in 1958. ... Dow Chemicals Corp. expects its sales to reach 800 million dollars this year, a gain of nearly 100 million.

IN BURGLARY RING

More Policemen Thought Involved

CHICAGO (UPI)—Officials said Saturday that still more Chicago policemen, some of them lieutenants or captains, were thought to be involved in a mass burglary ring. Eight already have been arrested.

The ring cracked wide open Friday on testimony from a baby-faced ex-convict named William Morrison, 23, who said he ran an order-taking service for the policemen, delivering the stolen loot in return for their letting him keep whatever cash be found.

Morrison, in a 77-page statement, said he was telling all because he was "scared stiff" his policemen - accomplices would otherwise kill him in an effort to silence the affair.

Morrison said he feared the policemen planned to set up one more burglary for him, as they had in the past, only this time they would shoot him on the spot, "so they'd look like heroes."

Paul Newey, chief investigator for Cook County (Chicago) State's Attorney Benjamin Adamowski, said five of the eight arrested policemen already have confessed to singling out stores which had merchandise they wanted.

Newey said the five told of then keeping watch in their police cars to make sure Morrison's burglaries would suffer no interference from either other police or private watchmen.

Morrison's loot would be carted away in police cars and private autos, Newey said the five policemen confessed.

Newey said "at least three more policemen," in addition to the eight, were involved. He talked also of a "few police brass.

"They'll be arrested shortly," Newey said, "even if they've eaten — or sold — most of the evidence."

Police Commissioner Timothy J. O'Connor ordered a probe of 18 months worth of burglary records for the district where most of Morrison's operations took place.

O'Connor also ordered his investigators to question more than 30 commanding officers and supervisors in the area to determine if "proper reports" on burglaries had been made.

Officials said that if gross irregularities turned up, the probe would spread to all other districts of the city's police force.

Police already picked up four carloads of loot from homes of the seven of the eight arrested policemen.

Official Says Economic Talks Very Important

WASHINGTON (AP) — Undersecretary of State Douglas Dillon said Saturday this week's European economic talks resulted in decisions of great potential importance for free world economic cooperation.

Dillon made the comment on his return from Paris where he represented the United States at the regular ministerial meeting of the Organization for European Economic Cooperation. There also were special meetings of the 20 governments which are associated with or are members of the OEEC.

Dillon listed the accomplishas:

1. Agreement to work together for the establishment of a successor to OEEC "in which the United States could participate as a full member and which would facilitate cooperation between the industrialized nations of the free world in meeting the major economic problems which will face the world during the coming decade."

2. A serious and successful effort to solve the problems of European trade connected with the European Economic Community and the European Free Trade Assn.

"We have obtained assurances," Dillon said, "that any solution will take full account of the interests of the United States and other countries in accordance with the principles of the general agreement on tariffs and trade."

3. The governments of a number ofcapal exporting nations agreed to consult together on efforts to provide development assistance to the less-developed areas. Such a group probably will meet in Washington in the near future, Dillon said.

Adenauer Makes Vow On Germany

BONN (UPI)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer Saturday vowed to stamp out anti-semitism in his country and show the world that Naziism and its hatred "do not live on in Germany.

"My government is completely behind the Jewish people of this nation," he said in a radio and TV broadcast. "On that I give you my word."

As Adenauer spoke, the number of anti-Jewish swastika daubings steadily decreased in West Germany. However, incident continued in West Berlin where more hate signs were found Saturday in the American sector.

"I call on every German when he sees one of these hooligans in action to attack him and give him the punishment he so justly deserves," Adenauer said.

He recalled that he and his family had sheltered Jews during Hitler's campaign to exterminate them and said he was sure that the anti-semitic outbursts which started Christmas Eve at Cologne had no Nazi "roots."

"National Socialism (Naziism) brought great pressure to bear on the German people for many years and in no way is the country returning to those ways," he said.

"Dictatorship has no support among the German people."

The chancellor said it was heartwarming to see the revulsion engendered in the German

"The whole world knows how I have struggled to make a success of our restitution agreement with Israel," Adenauer said.

"Now we must show the world too that anti-semitism does not live on in Germany."

Jews themselves worshipped in synagogues Saturday under police guard for the second Sabbath in a row.

There were no special sermons over the swastikas and "Jew Get Out" signs that have blossomed in cities across Germany and in virtually every other European country.

"In our synagogues we have no place for politics. That is a matter for our political and cultural organizations," said a Jewish leader Saturday after Sabbath services in Munich.

Heiress Soothes Brother

PARIS (UPI)—American heiress Gamble Benedict said Saturday she had soothed her brother's fears that she was being held prisoner "by a gang of Romanians" and convinced him he would like her married boy friend, Romanian - born Andre Porumbeanu.

Porumbeanu, 34, eloped with 19-year old Gamble Dec. 27 from her grand mother's mansion in New York. Her grandmother and guardian, Mrs. Katherine Benedict, and her 20-year-old brother Douglas have been trying to persuade her to leave Porumbeanu and return home from their Paris hideaway in the apartment of Romanian attorney Jean Coascensco.

Gamble said she talked to Douglas Friday night by transatlantic telephone after he broadcast an appeal on the French radio network. Douglas is a soldier stationed in Germany, currently on emergency leave in New York.

"He asked if I was surrounded by people who were keeping me from talking," Miss Benedict said.

"I told him I was here of my own free will and that if he knew Andre he would like him," she added. "My brother, you see, has been influenced by my grandmother. But by the time the phone call was over he couldn't be sweeter. He said he was coming over to Paris to see for himself—whenever he gets permission to do so from the army."

Miss Benedict said that Douglas described Porumbeanu, a former chauffeur who is separated from his wife, as "a real bum" in his radio appeal.

"Douglas doesn't know him or he wouldn't speak that way," she said. "He seems to think I am a prisoner. I am here of my own free will. Nor am I in hiding. There are reasons why Andre and I have not been going freely about Paris."

The main reason is that they have sold their story to a group of newspapers and magazines and have agreed not to be interviewed or photographed by anyone else until next week.

Coascensco has been advising Miss Benedict about her estate. She will receive $350,000 as the first instalment of her inheritance when she is 21.

Miss Benedict's grandfather was a president of the Remington Typewriter Company. Her mother died of an overdose of sleeping pills when she was a child.

Asked about reports that she planned to get a bigger share of the estate and get it sooner, she said:

"My grandmother kept me in the dark about these matters. I don't know where I stand and one of the things I am going to do is find out."

She said she was "very happy" at Coascensco's apartment but might soon take a place in Paris with Porumbeanu.

"I'd like to take a course at the Sorbonne," she said. "A French course. I'd like really to study it."

Lonely Vigil By Student Is Resumed

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—A young graduate student protesting the death sentence of sex terrorist Caryl Chessman resumed his cold and lonely vigil at the Capitol Saturday. But there were few to notice him.

Bruce Bloomfield, 24, Portland, Ore., set up his signs for the second day shortly after 8 a. m. as the thermometer hovered at the freezing point.

Bloomfield, a graduate student and teaching assistant at the University of California, said his planned 11-day vigil is aimed at getting "a fair trial and fair punishment" for Chessman.

The Capitol entrance at which he located is far from the one used by Gov. Edmund G. Brown. The governor left town Friday. There are few others using the Capitol on Saturdays.

Brown already has turned down an appeal for executive clemency for Chessman, but legal efforts still are under way to spare the convict-author his latest date with the gas chamber Feb. 18.

Chessman was sentenced to die in 1948 after a jury found him to be the Los Angeles area lovers' lane bandit who kidnaped girls and forced them into acts of sex perversion.

Nixon Declares Doubts On Reds

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon declared Saturday it inconceivable that the Soviet Union could have a new weapon devastating enough to give the Soviet Union the confidence to make a surprise attack on the United States.

Premier Nikita Khrushchev recently announced the Soviet development of a mighty new weapon but gave no hint of its nature.

Nixon, a frequent vacation visitor to Florida, is making his first appearance here as a presidential candidate.

"No one knows what weapon they may have," Nixon told a news conference, "but I would point out we have striking power of sufficient quality and quantity that no weapon that we can conceive of would be sufficient to distroy our retailatory power even in a surprise attack or reduce his (Khrushchev's) fear of what might happen if he started something."

Discussing the strained relations between the United States and Cuba, Nixon warned that Prime Minister Fidel Castro's government cannot expect a continued flow of American investments unless this nation's business interests are made welcome.

He said the United States has no intention of interfering in Cuba's internal affairs but if American property is confiscated without compensation "Cuba must expect some reaction."

Nixon estimated U. S. citizens at present are paying a premium of about 180 million dollars for Cuban sugar and noted several other Latin-American countries would like larger import quotas.

"I'm not suggesting that the quota will be changed," he said. "I'm only suggesting that the pressure within Congress will be very great to change it as long as Cuban government policies involve confiscation of American interests in Cuba."

Commenting on the recent attack by Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) on the administration's handling of domestic and internation problems, Nixon declared President Eisenhower has shown strong leadership though his methods may be more persuasive than forceful.

"I disagree with the tendency to characterize leadership in terms of personality rather than results," the vice president said.

However, he steered clear of attacks on Democratic leaders.

He said he has high respect for Kennedy remarked that most of the Democratic presidential hopefuls appear well-versed on international and domestic issues and described former President Harry S. Truman as a strong leader in some respects.

Nixon said he backed the administration policy of refusing to pledge a halt to underground nuclear tests unless there is assurance the Soviet Union also will stop them.

"We must reserve the right to resume tests if we are convinced a chance for satisfactory inspection system no longer exists," he declared.

Nixon, who delivered a lecture billed as nonpolitical at the University of Florida at Gainesville Friday night, conferred with Florida Republican leaders after his news conference.

He said he believed the GOP would have a 50-50 chance of carrying Florida if the election were held now.

"It's one state in the Southern bloc states where I think we have a chance. We serve notice to our Democratic friends that they can't assume Florida will be in the bag."

Florida has an overwhelmingly Democratic voter registration but was carried by Eisenhower in the last presidential election.

Many Motorists Left Stranded By Earthquake

LIMA, Peru (AP)—Earthquakes which struck southern Peru last week practically leveled the city of Chuquibamba and left hundreds of motorists stranded on the Pan American Highway, aerial observers reported Saturday.

Chuquibamba, a city of 8,000 about 23 miles east of Arequipa, was hit Friday. The first of a series of quakes caused extensive damage Wednesday to Arequipa, 460 miles southeast of Lima. Guillermo Garrido Lecca and Julio Manuel Aramayo, ministers of health for Peru and Bolivia, respecitively, flew over the stricken area in a helicopter Saturday. They reported Chuquibamba in ruins and said the death toll is certain to be high.

Compilation of the dead and injured were impossible because of disrupted communications. Latest reports put the death toll at Arequipa at 26, 2 dead at Aplao, 2 at Huancarqui and 1 at Camana.

Helicopter pilots estimated 800 persons were trapped on a 55-mile stretch of the Pan American Highway blocked by fissures and landslides. In addition a bus carrying 24 persons was missing on a trip to Chuquibamba from Caman.

Officials of a mining company sent food and water to some of the stranded motorists. They estimated that the highway could not be reopened within 15 days. Efforts will be made to make an old bypass road serviceable.

Four U. S. Air Force planes began an airlift between Lima and Arequipa to haul tents, medicine and other relief supplies.

CLASHES WITH DULLES

Eden's Memories Upsetting Britons

LONDON (AP) — Sir Anthony Eden's bitter memories of his relations with the late John Foster Dulles embarrassed the British government and surprised the nation this week.

Eden's version of several major policy clashes with the late secretary of state has been the feature of copyrighted installments of his memoirs appearing daily in the London Times.

Eden has pictured himself as a man of peace often defending Britain's vital interests without the help of his American ally.

Dulles has emerged from Eden's portrayal as a statesman often heedless of the feelings of America's partners, prone to misinterpreting perilous world problems and sometimes ready to risk war.

In 1954 when the issue of American intervention in the Indochina civil war was at stake Dulles pleaded with Eden "for (Britain's) moral supportin any action," the United States might take, Eden said. Eden described how he was compelled to refuse.

Two years later, when Britain sent troops into the Suez Canal Zone after President Gamal Abdel Nasser nationalized the international waterway, Eden made the same request to Dulles. Then Dulles refused, so automatically numbering Eden's days as prime minister.

The British Foreign Office has refused to be drawn into a discussion of some of the issues raised in Eden's memoirs, even when President Eisenhower disavowed some attitudes attributed to Dulles by Eden over Indochina.

Nearly all British officials who were approached confessed embarrassment and regret that Eden has chosen to criticize a revered American statesman so fiercely so soon after the events.

"The effect can only be to spoil the present smooth course of Anglo-American relations, one authority said.

Eden's accounts thus far have ranged over three grave situations that overshadowed the middle 1950s—Indochina crisis, Western Europe's defenses, and revolutionary changes in the Middle East.

As Eden tells the story, Dulles favored publicly warning Communist China that unless it quit aiding the Communist Vietminh rebels, the United States would bomb its territory.

Eden said Red China would have defied the warning, invoked its alliance with the Soviet Union and World War III would have been on its way.

Eden said he once protested to Washington that Dulles was ignoring the views and problems of his partners.

"Americans may think the time past when they need consider the feelings or difficulties of their Allies," his message read.

"It is the conviction that this tendency becomes more pronounced every week that is creating mounting difficulties for anyone in this country who wants to maintain close Anglo-American relations."

On Dulles' threat of an "agonizing reappraisal" of U. S. policy in Europe, and a withdrawal to a Western Hemisphere defense strategy:

This warning was delivered in December 1953, at a time when France was stalling over the question of forming a European army.

"Its tone," Eden wrote "had given rise to concern" even among America's close friends.

Eden said he took the initiative after the collapse of the European army project in bringing West Gremany into the Atlantic Alliance and Dulles later praised him for his leadership.

On the gathering storms in the Middle East:

Britain's huge oil investments in Iran were nationalized in 1951 before either Eden or Dulles took office.

Eden entered the picture first and his initial dealings were with Dean Acheson, then secretary of state.

Eden felt Iranian Premier Mohammed Mossadegh, apostle of oil natinonalization(was a passing aberration. Acheson feared the alternative to Mossadegh might be a Communist Iran. These differences persisted after President Eisenhower and Dulles took over in 1953.

The Americans and British worked together in the task of getting Iranian oil flowing again.

One of Dulles' plans was to send in a team of American technicians, plus equipment, to restart the great ABadan refineries, Eden wrote.

At this Eden exploded. He reported to Winston Churchill, then prime minister, that he had warned Dulles against any such move in these terms:

"I must emphasize in the strongest possible terms the deplorable effect on Anglo-American relations which the presence on Americans working in stolen British property would cause."

On the revolution in Egypt:

In 1953, the British were negotiating with Egypt for a new defense arrangement. This would have left the British in charge of a base in the Suez Canal Zone to be activated in time of war, Eden said.

"If we had been able to bring about joint Anglo-American negotiations with Egypt at this stage, ADD 10-2 EDEINS MEMORIES .. as the Prime Minister (Churchill) and I both wished to do, the future position in the Middle East would have worked out differently," Eden wrote.

For this, Eden blamed the Washington administration and Jefferson Caffery, then U.S. ambassador in Cairo. The British, said Eden, were seen by the Americans as colonial oppressors of the Egyptians.

This, plus "a horror of unpopularity," an unwillingness to lose influence in Cario, and a fear of taking second place in the Middle East, led the Americans to withhold the support that their British Allies "had a right to expect," Eden asserted.

Solon Tells Views On Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va) said Saturday Congress will be guilty of fiscal irresponsibility if it cuts taxes or boosts spending because President Eisenhower foresees a budget surplus.

Byrd, who heads the Senate Finance Committee, said Eisenhower's prediction that there will be a $4,200,000,000 surplus on June 30, 1961, "cannot be accepted or regarded as an accomplished fact."

"From experience I know accurate budget estimates 18 months in advance are extremely rare," the Virginia senator said in a statement. He noted that a surplus had been estimated for the year ending last June 30 but instead there was a 12½ billion-dollar deficit.

Eisenhower's formal submission of his $79,800,000,000 spending program to the Democratic Congress Monday is expected to touch off a new election-year battle of the budget.

Some Democrats want to take Eisenhower at his word and spend some of the big surplus he predicts. They argue that they can boost defense, housing, school, health, highway and other outlays without being tabbed budget-busters. Few of them have advocated tax cuts.

Democratic leaders have quietly agreed among themselves on a strategy of cutting the overall appropriation below the level of Eisenhower's requests.

Congress has little practical control over the amount the government spends but it can pinch back some of the departments and bureaus by refusing to appropriate all of the new money requested.

The strategy of the Democratic leaders probably will be to increase defense outlays above the 41 billion dollars Eisenhower is expected to ask in this field. They also may up his requests for health, education and welfare activities.

To offset this they expect to cut back the rest of the 17 regular money supply bills somewhere between 5 and 10 per cent. These cuts probably will include a substantial slice in foreign aid funds.

If they can bring about reductions and increases on a selective basis and wind up with a total below the presidential requests, the congressional leaders believe they will have blunted any claim that the Republicans are budget balancers and the Democrats spenders.

Byrd said it was obvious that Eisenhower is relying on increased revenues and not on spending reductions to produce the predicted surplus. The senator indicated he has his doubts about any such large gain in Treasury receipts.

Revenue totaling 84 billion dollars in the coming year would be an increase of $15,700,000 over collections last year, or an increase of 23 per cent in two years," he said. "Such an increase would be difficult without heavy inflation. Inflation of such proportions is certain to increase government costs."

Byrd said he agrees with Eisenhower that if a surplus develops it should be applied to the federal debt which this month reached a record 292½ billion dollars.

Two Louisiana Youths Caught In Paint Fray

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP)—State police arrested two teen-agers Saturday and said the boys admitted painting swastikas on buildings and signs around the city.

Thomas L. Meridith and Gene Thibodaux, both 17 and of Lafayette, were picked up by a closed drive - in restaurant. They had splotches of paint on their clothes and hands.

Troopers said the boys admitted painting the swastikas on the drive-in, on high school buildings and city road signs.

One boy, officers reported, said they had been reading of such incidents around the country and "we decided we were going to act smart."

They were charged with criminal damage to property and released on $200 bond.

My Heartfelt Thanks

I wish to thank everyone who supported my candidacy and everyone who had any part in conducting the election on January 9.

During the next four years I will do my utmost to represent ALL the citizens of Ward Five for the mutual progress of our ward and parish in general.

AT CROSSETT

Largest All-Wood Building Planned

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) — Construction of what is believed to be one of the largest all-wood buildings in the world is scheduled to begin soon at Crossett, involving new techniques and new products in "engineered wood."

This unusual project is part of a $1-million plant modernization and expansion program being conducted by the Crossett Lumber Company. The building, which is to be used for the storage of rough lumber, will be 103 feet wide, 468 feet long, 70 feet high at roof apex, and 55 feet high at side walls. This involves 48,204 square feet of floor area. Working capacity of the building is three and one-half million feet of lumber and mixmum capacity is four million.

The Southern Pine Association joined with Crossett officials in expressing the hope that the techniques employed would "set a useful example for timber engineers throughout the nation in demonstrating possibilities for glued laminated lumber hitherto unexplored."

All lumber is high quality Southern Pine, and the main structural elements include two striking innovations in "engineered wood" developed by Unit Structures, Inc.

Other major elements of the structure are curved top chord bow-string trusses, also of glued laminated lumber. These trusses are efficient new members that clear-pan the entire 103 foot width at roof level.

A bridge overhead crane will be installed designed to lift eight tons of lumber and to travel at a rate of 650 feet per minute.

Construction is slated to begin this month, and it is expected the building will be completed and in operation within four months.

EFFECTS

Experts Worried Over Settlement

By WILLIAM J. EATON
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Experts in labor - management relations showed concern Saturday over the effect the Administration - inspired settlement of the steel strike will have on future contract negotiations.

One result of the intervention by Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell may be to prolong deadlocks in bargaining this year.

A veteran niddleman in labor disputes said government officials feared the top - level mediation might be seen as reason for unions and businessmen to ignore lower-echelon peacemakers.

"Why talk to a disciple if you can talk to God?" is the way one conciliator phrased it.

Thus, the Nixon - Mitchell maneuvering which led to a steel settlement, made meetings conducted by the Federal Mediation Service seem hopeless before they began.

Defenders of the Administration's role in the steel crisis point out that the Cabinet-level discussions did not start until a 116-day strike was halted by a back-to-work injunction.

This is far different than rushing into a dispute before a walkout has begun, Mitchell and his aides contend. They also contend that the steel struggle was not resolved in the White House as was the case with labor conflicts in the Truman administration.

But Mitchell's own words were that the steel dispute was settled on terms recommended by him and Nixon.

This came after months of exhortation from President Eisenhower to both sides to exercise self-discipline in what came to be known as a "hands-off" approach.

The White House called union and company chiefs in for separate talks in October, but even then it advised them to resume negotiations off government property.

And, in what was a precedent-setting move, the Administration kept federal mediators out of the bargaining until the strike began on July 15.

Major negotiations in the aircraft and missile industry, men's clothing, telephones, electrical manufacturing and railroads loom ahead this year.

Mitchell already has had talks with both sides in the railroad crisis and further communication seems assured before it's settled.

In a presidential election year, the Administration naturally wants to prevent strikes in key industries and presumably will use its one-two-punch—Nixon and Mitchell—to do it.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

PRACTICE GOOD HEALTH HABITS

Some families are healthier than others. It may be the good meals mothers serve, the habits of cleanliness, hours of sleep, out of door activities, the attitude in the home, or heredity. In all probability, the parents are health conscious and have conditioned the youngsters to follow a program geared at good health.

Most health habits are passed along by example. The parents who bathe frequently, wash the hands before eating, and brush their teeth twice a day have no trouble getting children to follow suit. The same applies to sleeping habits; regular hours discourage insomnia and set a pattern that is conducive to sound sleep. Well rested people look and feel alert.

Children also need to be educated to appreciate why certain health rules are advised. Avoiding other children when they have colds is an example.

The need for a well balanced diet is stressed by utilizing common sense, education, and motivation. Nothing is gained during the early years by forcing the youngster to eat. None starve to death in the presence of plenty and it is good psychology to go along with the likes and dislikes of the small fry. In time they can be motivated to round out the diet by appealing to their aims and ambitions.

Physical activity keeps the body in good tone and prepared for emergencies that require strength and endurance. Encourage athletics, out of door sports, dancing, and work in and about the home. Make walking to school and the store and regular household chores a rule. Many authorities believe the increasing incidence of heart attacks is traceable to the inactivity of our modern society.

The foundation for growing up mentally also is laid in childhood. Emotional growth is developed through love, affection, and a sense of security. Remember that each child should be allowed to proceed at his own pace. Encourage religion and good traits; keep the home friendly.

HORMONES AND CANCER

R. T. writes: I'm confused about hormones. I understand that if there is cancer in the family a woman should not take female hormones for the change of life. Yet I know of some women with breast cancer who are being given hormones.

REPLY

A little knowledge leads to confusion. Female hormones do not cause cancer, even in persons with a family history of the disease. But they may aggravate an existing malignancy and those with a strong history of the disease in the family may not care to take a chance. For this reason, a complete examination is suggested before such products are prescribed for the menopause. Male hormones are given in cancer of the breast to depress any malignant cells that might remain after the operation.

CANCER NOT CATCHING

W. B. M. writes: We have 10 cases of cancer on our block. Do you think one of the neighbors is carrying and spreading the cancer germ?

REPLY

The cause of cancer is not known but there is no scientific evidence that it is contagious. Physicians are exposed almost daily to cancer patients yet the incidence of this disease among the medical profession is no higher than in the general population.

CORN OIL

D. W. writes: Does corn oil open hardened arteries?

REPLY

No. Corn oil is one of the vegetable oils used to combat a high blood cholesterol level which currently is implicated in arteriosclerosis. There is no proof that the oil cleans out arteries, that high cholesterol blood levels cause hardening of the arteries, or that lowering the level will prevent or cure arteriosclerosis.

Hoover Tells Comments On Khrush Visit

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said Saturday Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's recent visit to the United States "has done much to create an atmosphere favorable to communism among Americans.

As a result of the visit, Hoover said in a statement to senators, the Communists "see the possibility of gaining still more influence in American society."

"The buoyant optimism of the party is geared to plans to take advantage of an international climate which, in their eyes, is aiding their work," he said.

Hoover's views were set forth in an analysis of the U. S. Communist party's 17th national convention last month in New York City. His 5,000 - word statement was submitted to the Senate Internal Security subcommittee at its request.

The FBI chief said "every action of the convention was designed to make the party a hard-hitting, versatile, and mobile weapon of attack against our form on government."

He described Gus Hall, the newly elected head of the U. S. Communist party, as a "Moscow-trained, utterly ruthless Communist leader, a powerful, deceitful, dangerous foe of Americanism."

Hoover said delegates adjourned the Communist convention "in a state on jubilance" and added that "well they might feel in high spirits, because Communist party, U. S. A., emerged from the convention more powerful, more unified, and even more of a menace to our Republic."

"Americans can look forward to a period of renewed party agitation in all fields—always hoping to increase party strength and influence, Hoover said.

"The Communists will endeavor to gain allies wherever they can be found, creating fronts, launching filtration programs, participating in all phases of American life," Hoover said.

He said the convention called for the immediate launching of an intensive membership drive, with renewed efforts to infiltrate and recruit among youths, labor unions, Negroes and minority groups.

Hoover gave no figures on Communist party membership, but he said the circulation of the Worker, the party's weekly publication, is now about 14,000. He said the party wants to increase this in 1960 to 25,000.

Hungarian Party Chief Up Ladder

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Gyula Kallai, the Hungarian Communist party's chief ideologist, has been moved back up the ladder in a government reshuffle to first deputy premier.

The changes, announced Saturday by the Communist party newspaper Nepszabadsag, also called for a new assignment for Gyoergy Marosan, No. 2 man in the Communist party.

Nepszabadsag said Kallai was relieved as a minister of state in order to take over the deputy premiership.

Westerners here consider that Kallai, a lifelong friend of Communist party chief Janos Kadar, is now in a strong position to inherit the premiership from Ferenc Muennich. Muennich is 74 years old and is said to be ailing. Kallai is only 50.

Kallai, an intellectual and lifelong Communist, has been in jail twice for his beliefs. As a student, he was imprisoned during Hungary's prewar Fascist regime of Adm. Nicholas Horthy. In 1951 he and Kadar were jailed by Stalinist dictator Matyas Rakosi. Like Kadar, Kallai is of the Khrushchev school of communism.

Marosan was also relieved as minister of state, Nepszabadsag said. He will keep a nominal footing in the government, however, by becoming a member of the Presidential Council.

Foreign Ministry spokesman said the change wss made to give Marosan greater opportunity to concentrate on party matters. As a minister of state, Marosan was a member of the Cabinet, saddled with heavy governmental responsibility. His duties of the Presidential Council will be lighter.

Nixon Declares Doubts On Reds

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon declared Saturday it inconceivable that the Soviet Union could have a new weapon devastating enough to give the Soviet Union the confidence to make a surprise attack on the United States.

Premier Nikita Khrushchev recently announced the Soviet development of a mighty new weapon but gave no hint of its nature.

Nixon, a frequent vacation visitor to Florida, is making his first appearance here as a presidential candidate.

"No one knows what weapon they may have," Nixon told a news conference, "but I would point out we have striking power of sufficient quality and quantity that no weapon that we can conceive of would be sufficient to distroy our retailatory power even in a surprise attack or reduce his (Khrushchev's) fear of what might happen if he started something."

Discussing the strained relations between the United States and Cuba, Nixon warned that Prime Minister Fidel Castro's government cannot expect a continued flow of American investments unless this nation's business interests are made welcome.

He said the United States has no intention of interfering in Cuba's internal affairs but if American property is confiscated without compensation "Cuba must expect some reaction."

Nixon estimated U. S. citizens at present are paying a premium of about 180 million dollars for Cuban sugar and noted several other Latin-American countries would like larger import quotas.

"I'm not suggesting that the quota will be changed," he said. "I'm only suggesting that the pressure within Congress will be very great to change it as long as Cuban government policies involve confiscation of American interests in Cuba."

Commenting on the recent attack by Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) on the administration's handling of domestic and internation problems, Nixon declared President Eisenhower has shown strong leadership though his methods may be more persuasive than forceful.

"I disagree with the tendency to characterize leadership in terms of personality rather than results," the vice president said.

However, he steered clear of attacks on Democratic leaders.

He said he has high respect for Kennedy remarked that most of the Democratic presidential hopefuls appear well-versed on international and domestic issues and described former President Harry S. Truman as a strong leader in some respects.

Nixon said he backed the administration policy of refusing to pledge a halt to underground nuclear tests unless there is assurance the Soviet Union also will stop them.

"We must reserve the right to resume tests if we are convinced a chance for satisfactory inspection system no longer exists," he declared.

Nixon, who delivered a lecture billed as nonpolitical at the University of Florida at Gainesville Friday night, conferred with Florida Republican leaders after his news conference.

He said he believed the GOP would have a 50-50 chance of carrying Florida if the election were held now.

"It's one state in the Southern bloc states where I think we have a chance. We serve notice to our Democratic friends that they can't assume Florida will be in the bag."

Florida has an overwhelmingly Democratic voter registration but was carried by Eisenhower in the last presidential election.

Many Motorists Left Stranded By Earthquake

LIMA, Peru (AP)—Earthquakes which struck southern Peru last week practically leveled the city of Chuquibamba and left hundreds of motorists stranded on the Pan American Highway, aerial observers reported Saturday.

Chuquibamba, a city of 8,000 about 28 miles east of Arequipa, was hit Friday. The first of a series of quakes caused extensive damage Wednesday to Arequipa, 460 miles southeast of Lima. Guillermo Garrido Lecca and Julio Manuel Aramayo, ministers of health for Peru and Bolivia, respecitively, flew over the stricken area in a helicopter Saturday. They reported Chuquibamba in ruins and said the death toll is certain to be high.

Compilation of the dead and injured were impossible because of disrupted communications. Latest reports put the death toll at Arequipa at 26, 2 dead at Aplao, 2 at Huancarqui and 1 at Camana.

Helicopter pilots estimated 800 persons were trapped on a 55-mile stretch of the Pan American Highway blocked by fissures and landslides. In addition a bus carrying 24 persons was missing on a trip to Chuquibamba from Caman.

Officials of a mining company sent food and water to some of the stranded motorists. They estimated that the highway could not be reopened within 15 days. Efforts will be made to make an old bypass road serviceable.

Four U. S. Air Force planes began an airlift between Lima and Arequipa to haul tents, medicine and other relief supplies.

CLASHES WITH DULLES

Eden's Memories Upsetting Britons

LONDON (AP) — Sir Anthony Eden's bitter memories of his relations with the late John Foster Dulles embarrassed the British government and surprised the nation this week.

Eden's version of several major policy clashes with the late secretary of state has been the feature of copyrighted installments of his memoirs appearing daily in the London Times.

Eden has pictured himself as a man of peace often defending Britain's vital interests without the help of his American ally.

Dulles has emerged from Eden's portrayal as a statesman often heedless of the feelings of America's partners, prone to misinterpreting perilous world problems and sometimes ready to risk war.

In 1954 when the issue of American intervention in the Indochina civil war was at stake Dulles pleaded with Eden "for (Britain's) moral supportin any action," the United States might take, Eden said. Eden described how he was compelled to refuse.

Two years later, when Britain sent troops into the Suez Canal Zone after President Gamal Abdel Nasser nationalized the international waterway, Eden made the same request to Dulles. Then Dulles refused, so automatically numbering Eden's days as prime minister.

The British Foreign Office has refused to be drawn into a discussion of some of the issues raised in Eden's memoirs, even when President Eisenhower disavowed some attitudes attributed to Dulles by Eden over Indochina.

Nearly all British officials who were approached confessed embarrassment and regret that Eden has chosen to criticize a revered American statesman so fiercely so soon after the events.

"The effect can only be to spoil the present smooth course of Anglo-American relations, one authority said.

Eden's accounts thus far have ranged over three grave situations that overshadowed the middle 1950s—Indochina crisis, Western Europe's defenses, and revolutionary changes in the Middle East.

As Eden tells the story, Dulles favored publicly warning Communist China that unless it quit aiding the Communist Vietminh rebels, the United States would bomb its territory.

Eden said Red China would have defied the warning, invoked its alliance with the Soviet Union and World War III would have been on its way.

Eden said he once protested to Washington that Dulles was ignoring the views and problems of his partners.

"Americans may think the time past when they need consider the feelings or difficulties of their Allies," his message read.

"It is the conviction that this tendency becomes more pronounced every week that is creating mounting difficulties for anyone in this country who wants to maintain close Anglo-American relations."

On Dulles' threat of an "agonizing reappraisal" of U. S. policy in Europe, and a withdrawal to a Western Hemisphere defense strategy:

This warning was delivered in December 1953, at a time when France was stalling over the question of forming a European army.

"Its tone," Eden wrote "had given rise to concern" even among America's close friends.

Eden said he took the initiative after the collapse of the European army project in bringing West Gremany into the Atlantic Alliance and Dulles later praised him for his leadership.

On the gathering storms in the Middle East:

Britain's huge oil investments in Iran were nationalized in 1951 before either Eden or Dulles took office.

Eden entered the picture first and his initial dealings were with Dean Acheson, then secretary of state.

Eden felt Iranian Premier Mohammed Mossadegh, apostle of oil natinonalization(was a passing aberration. Acheson feared the alternative to Mossadegh might be a Communist Iran. These differences persisted after President Eisenhower and Dulles took over in 1953.

The Americans and British worked together in the task of getting Iranian oil flowing again.

One of Dulles' plans was to send in a team of American technicians, plus equipment, to restart the great ABadan refineries, Eden wrote.

At this Eden exploded. He reported to Winston Churchill, then prime minister, that he had warned Dulles against any such move in these terms:

"I must emphasize in the strongest possible terms the deplorable effect on Anglo-American relations which the presence on Americans working in stolen British property would cause."

On the revolution in Egypt:

In 1953, the British were negotiating with Egypt for a new defense arrangement. This would have left the British in charge of a base in the Suez Canal Zone to be activated in time of war, Eden said.

"If we had been able to bring about joint Anglo-American negotiations with Egypt at this stage, ADD 10-2 EDEINS MEMORIES .. as the Prime Minister (Churchill) and I both wished to do, the future position in the Middle East would have worked out differently," Eden wrote.

For this, Eden blamed the Washington administration and Jefferson Caffery, then U.S. ambassador in Cairo. The British, said Eden, were seen by the Americans as colonial oppressors of the Egyptians.

This, plus "a horror of unpopularity," an unwillingness to lose influence in Cario, and a fear of taking second place in the Middle East, led the Americans to withhold the support that their British Allies "had a right to expect," Eden asserted.

Solon Tells Views On Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va) said Saturday Congress will be guilty of fiscal irresponsibility if it cuts taxes or boosts spending because President Eisenhower foresees a budget surplus.

Byrd, who heads the Senate Finance Committee, said Eisenhower's prediction that there will be a $4,200,000,000 surplus on June 30, 1961, "cannot be accepted or regarded as an accomplished fact."

"From experience I know accurate budget estimates 18 months in advance are extremely rare," the Virginia senator said in a statement. He noted that a surplus had been estimated for the year ending last June 30 but instead there was a 12½ billion-dollar deficit.

Eisenhower's formal submission of his $79,800,000,000 spending program to the Democratic Congress Monday is expected to touch off a new election-year battle of the budget.

Some Democrats want to take Eisenhower at his word and spend some of the big surplus he predicts. They argue that they can boost defense, housing, school, health, highway and other outlays without being tabbed budget-busters. Few of them have advocated tax cuts.

Democratic leaders have quietly agreed among themselves on a strategy of cutting the overall appropriation below the level of Eisenhower's requests.

Congress has little practical control over the amount the government spends but it can pinch back some of the departments and bureaus by refusing to appropriate all of the new money requested.

The strategy of the Democratic leaders probably will be to increase defense outlays above the 41 billion dollars Eisenhower is expected to ask in this field. They also may up his requests for health, education and welfare activities.

To offset this they expect to cut back the rest of the 17 regular money supply bills somewhere between 5 and 10 per cent. These cuts probably will include a substantial slice in foreign aid funds.

If they can bring about reductions and increases on a selective basis and wind up with a total below the presidential requests, the congressional leaders believe they will have blunted any claim that the Republicans are budget balancers and the Democrats spenders.

Byrd said it was obvious that Eisenhower is relying on increased revenues and not on spending reductions to produce the predicted surplus. The senator indicated he has his doubts about any such large gain in Treasury receipts.

Revenue totaling 84 billion dollars in the coming year would be an increase of $15,700,000 over collections last year, or an increase of 23 per cent in two years," he said. "Such an increase would be difficult without heavy inflation. Inflation of such proportions is certain to increase government costs."

Byrd said he agrees with Eisenhower that if a surplus develops it should be applied to the federal debt which this month reached a record 292½ billion dollars.

Two Louisiana Youths Caught In Paint Fray

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP)—State police arrested two teen-agers Saturday and said the boys admitted painting swastikas on buildings and signs around the city.

Thomas L. Meridith and Gene Thibodaux, both 17 and of Lafayette, were picked up by a closed drive - in restaurant. They had splotches of paint on their clothes and hands.

Troopers said the boys admitted painting the swastikas on the drive-in, on high school buildings and city road signs.

One boy, officers reported, said they had been reading of such incidents around the country and "we decided we were going to act smart."

They were charged with criminal damage to property and released on $200 bond.

My Heartfelt Thanks

I wish to thank everyone who supported my candidacy and everyone who had any part in conducting the election on January 9.

During the next four years I will do my utmost to represent ALL the citizens of Ward Five for the mutual progress of our ward and parish in general.

AT CROSSETT

Largest All-Wood Building Planned

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) — Construction of what is believed to be one of the largest all-wood buildings in the world is scheduled to begin soon at Crossett, involving new techniques and new products in "engineered wood."

This unusual project is part of a $1-million plant modernization and expansion program being conducted by the Crossett Lumber Company. The building, which is to be used for the storage of rough lumber, will be 103 feet wide, 468 feet long, 70 feet high at roof apex, and 55 feet high at side walls. This involves 48,204 square feet of floor area. Working capacity of the building is three and one-half million feet of lumber and miximum capacity is four million.

The Southern Pine Association joined with Crossett officials in expressing the hope that the techniques employed would "set a useful example for timber engineers throughout the nation in demonstrating possibilities for glued laminated lumber hitherto unexplored."

All lumber is high quality Southern Pine, and the main structural elements include two striking innovations in "engineered wood" developed by Unit Structures, Inc.

Other major elements of the structure are curved top chord bow-string trusses, also of glued laminated lumber. These trusses are efficient new members that clear-pan the entire 103 foot width at roof level.

A bridge overhead crane will be installed designed to lift eight tons of lumber and to travel at a rate of 650 feet per minute.

Construction is slated to begin this month, and it is expected the building will be completed and in operation within four months.

EFFECTS

Experts Worried Over Settlement

By WILLIAM J. EATON
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Experts in labor - management relations showed concern Saturday over the effect the Administration - inspired settlement of the steel strike will have on future contract negotiations.

One result of the intervention by Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell may be to prolong deadlocks in bargaining this year.

A veteran niddleman in labor disputes said government officials feared the top - level mediation might be seen as reason for unions and businessmen to ignore lower-echelon peacemakers.

"Why talk to a disciple if you can talk to God?" is the way one conciliator phrased it.

Thus, the Nixon - Mitchell maneuvering which led to a steel settlement, made meetings conducted by the Federal Mediation Service seem hopeless before they began.

Defenders of the Administration's role in the steel crisis point out that the Cabinet-level discussions did not start until a 116-day strike was halted by a back-to-work injunction.

This is far different than rushing into a dispute before a walkout has begun, Mitchell and his aides contend. They also contend that the steel struggle was not resolved in the White House as was the case with labor conflicts in the Truman administration.

But Mitchell's own words were that the steel dispute was settled on terms recommended by him and Nixon.

This came after months of exhortation from President Eisenhower to both sides to exercise self-discipline in what came to be known as a "hands-off" approach.

The White House called union and company chiefs in for separate talks in October, but even then it advised them to resume negotiations off government property.

And, in what was a precedent-setting move, the Administration kept federal mediators out of the bargaining until the strike began on July 15.

Major negotiations in the aircraft and missile industry, men's clothing, telephones, electrical manufacturing and railroads loom ahead this year.

Mitchell already has had talks with both sides in the railroad crisis and further communication seems assured before it's settled.

In a presidential election year, the Administration naturally wants to prevent strikes in key industries and presumably will use its one-two-punch—Nixon and Mitchell—to do it.

How To Keep Well

PRACTICE GOOD HEALTH HABITS

Some families are healthier than others. It may be the good meals mothers serve, the habits of cleanliness, hours of sleep, out of door activities, the attitude in the home, or heredity. In all probability, the parents are health conscious and have conditioned the youngsters to follow a program geared at good health.

Most health habits are passed along by example. The parents who bathe frequently, wash the hands before eating, and brush their teeth twice a day have no trouble getting children to follow suit. The same applies to sleeping habits; regular hours discourage insomnia and set a pattern that is conducive to sound sleep. Well rested people look and feel alert.

Children also need to be educated to appreciate why certain health rules are advised. Avoiding other children when they have colds is an example.

The need for a well balanced diet is stressed by utilizing common sense, education, and motivation. Nothing is gained during the early years by forcing the youngster to eat. None starve to death in the presence of plenty and it is good psychology to go along with the likes and dislikes of the small fry. In time they can be motivated to round out the diet by appealing to their aims and ambitions.

Physical activity keeps the body in good tone and prepared for emergencies that require strength and endurance. Encourage athletics, out of door sports, dancing, and work in and about the home. Make walking to school and the store and regular household chores a rule. Many authorities believe the increasing incidence of heart attacks is traceable to the inactivity of our modern society.

The foundation for growing up mentally also is laid in childhood. Emotional growth is developed through love, affection, and a sense of security. Remember that each child should be allowed to proceed at his own pace. Encourage religion and good traits; keep the home friendly.

HORMONES AND CANCER

R. T. writes: I'm confused about hormones. I understand that if there is cancer in the family a woman should not take female hormones for the change of life. Yet I know of some women with breast cancer who are being given hormones.

REPLY

A little knowledge leads to confusion. Female hormones do not cause cancer, even in persons with a family history of the disease. But they may aggravate an existing malignancy and those with a strong history of the disease in the family may not care to take a chance. For this reason, a complete examination is suggested before such products are prescribed for the menopause. Male hormones are given in cancer of the breast to depress any malignant cells that might remain after the operation.

CANCER NOT CATCHING

W. B. M. writes: We have 10 cases of cancer on our block. Do you think one of the neighbors is carrying and spreading the cancer germ?

REPLY

The cause of cancer is not known but there is no scientific evidence that it is contagious. Physicians are exposed almost daily to cancer patients yet the incidence of this disease among the medical profession is no higher than in the general population.

CORN OIL

D. W. writes: Does corn oil open hardened arteries?

REPLY

No. Corn oil is one of the vegetable oils used to combat a high blood cholesterol level which currently is implicated in arteriosclerosis. There is no proof that the oil cleans out arteries, that high cholesterol blood levels cause hardening of the arteries, or that lowering the level will prevent or cure arteriosclerosis.

Hoover gave no figures on Communist party membership, but he said the circulation of the Worker, the party's weekly publication, is now about 14,000. He said the party wants to increase this in 1960 to 25,000.

Return Of The Jews

Germany Today

By CARL HARTMAN

BERLIN (AP) — A quarter-century after the great persecutions of Jews began in Adolf Hitler's Germany, a slow but steady stream was trickling back—mostly from Israel.

Over 100 Jews a month were finding new homes—or returning to old ones. This, at any rate, before the recent anti-Semitic outbreaks in Germany and elsewhere.

What effect the incidents — strongly deplored by official West German sources—will have on future relocation of Jews in this country is uncertain.

Returnees receive 6,000 marks $1,432 from the West German government to help them get established. This is aside from any restitution claims they may have.

The reasons for returning vary:

A teacher: "I couldn't stand the climate in America."

A small-businessman: "Laws in Israel don't make it too easy for private enterprise. The money due me in Germany would have amounted to very little if I had it converted into Israeli pounds at the official rate."

A chef: "I don't think I could have made a good match for my daughter in Israel."

A student: "Germany is the one place in the world where I could come and get a degree in my specialty, and permission to work while I'm studying. Afterwards? No, I wouldn't dream of living here."

Some memories are hard to erase—a mother or a husband being dragged off to a concentration camp, while a terrified child watches from a hiding place.

"But it's no good living in the past," said one young woman active in Jewish affairs. "Many Germans who weren't Jewish had a hard time, too."

Some, mostly older people, came back because of their memories—not in spite of them. Their recollections go back to youth and childhood before Hitler or before World War I. They want to return to the places they know best and the graves of their parents.

Often they can collect two old-age pensions, one from Germany and one from the land where they emigrated. And in Germany's booming economy it is not hard for them to get a part-time job or set up a small business.

At the end of World War II there were about 15,000 Jews left in Germany of the 540,000 who lived here before. Now there are 30,000 in West Germany and West Berlin. In 1957 and 1958 Jews were returning at the rate of about 2,000 a year. Since then, the number has fallen off.

Quite a few say they intend to stay in Germany only a few years, and then perhaps return to Israel.

In Frankfurt, Jews with this idea have formed club where they speak only the Hebrew language.

Dr. H. G. Van Dam, general secretary of the Central Council of Jews in Germany, recently issued a blast against officials of American Jewish organizations for what he called interference in German affairs. He warned against turning in false alarms of anti-Semitism, with the remark that they might not be believed if there were a "real fire."

After the first swastikas appeared in Bonn, Van Dam called on Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, who pledged he would "find the wirepullers responsible." Van Dam apparently was reassured, and said he thought public attention given the problem placed it out of focus.

Synagogues and Jewish social centers have been rebuilt in several German cities, with particularly handsome ones in Bonn and West Berlin. In accordance with Jewish traditions, great efforts are made to promote kindergartens and children's camps, and to watch over the health and social welfare of the community.

The picture is not all bright. Many Jews who have returned to Germany complain that it is still hard to find the jobs they want and feel qualified for. Others are lonesome, or disappointed to find the economic situation not quite as they expected it. Some are critical of what they consider the failure of West German authorities to educate young people about the crimes of the Nazi regime.

In Communist East Germany little Jewish life remains. The regime there has no sympathy with religion of any kind, and has done little in the way of restitution. People who have been persecuted are entitled to a pension, but it is not large.

There are a few synagogues, but rabbis for them are lacking.

His father and grandfather hold a unique position in military glory inasmuch both won the Medal of Honor, one for Bataan in World War II and the other for the Civil War.

Over the years, Gen. Douglas MacArthur also collected three Distinguished Service Crosses and seven Silver Stars—a singular record for valor. But all of these, along with a host of other decorations, foreign and domestic, are kept in storage by the general.

In fact, there is little in the MacArthur apartment to suggest his half century of military service. There are in the massive living room a gold cigarette case from the staff of the World War I Rainbow Division inscribed to "The bravest of the brave," a silver cigarette box from Lord Louis Mountbatten in World War II and a gold baton to commemorate MacArthur's days as field marshal in the Philippines.

Beyond that, nothing. No medals. No trophies of war. No photographs — although he has plenty in storage—from grateful commanders and presidents.

Today the only part of the general's current wardrobe even remotely military is his gray, black and gold lounging robe, with the big "A" over the heart, a replica of the kind worn in his cadet days at West Point.

Small Israel Compared To California

"ISRAEL"

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The writer of the following dispatch returned recently from a tour of Israel.)

By BARBARA BUNDSCHU
United Press International

The State of Israel could be set down between San Francisco and Los Angeles without squeezing their suburbs.

And it would look at home. Its windbreaking rows of eucalyptus, its orchards — orange, olive and prune — its vineyards and blooming oleanders, and its irrigated patches of green between brown hills are as homelike to a western visitor as its clear sunshine.

The California would find some odd additions in this ltle naton which, laid along his coast, would barely reach across the coast range at its widest part.

Just five hours and 15 minutes from Paris on Air France's Caravelle jet, Israel is a land of contrast to spin the head.

Tel Aviv, a modern city and the commercial capital of the country, spreads wide and low like Los Angeles. Blocks and blocks of new apartments are reminiscent of the edges of New York City.

On a busy downtown street, the cement mixer for a modern office building is fed from sacks carried round the corner on the backs of two mild-looking burros. Throughout modern Israel, the biblical ass pulls carts beside occasional Cadillacs and hundreds of old DeSotos along the highways.

Haifa, built on a hill over many ages, has a bay reminiscent of the less populated reaches of San Francisco Bay. And it boasts what may be the world's last nickel subway — a brand new underground funicular up storied Mount Carmel.

On the highway to Beersheba stands a yellow stucco "ranch house" with pigeons in its eaves and peacocks in its dusty yard—the home of Bedouin Sheik Suleiman, who has 39 wives and a picture of Dwight D. Eisenhower on the wall of his over-stuffed and icker living room. His followers live under tents with their camels and goats and chickens.

North past Armageddon stand Arab villages where tobbacco grows stunted in dry ground and hangs to dry beneath a fig tree. Graceful women go to the well, with 10-gallon tin cans on their shoulders, much as they carried earthen jugs centuries ago.

In Jerusalem, children play on the barbed wire which separates the old city, now in Jordan, from the new. The Hebrew University, its buildings and its books lost in enemy territory, gleams in bright stone and glass.

Legislation Is Topic Of AAUW

CROSSETT Ark. (Special) — School legislation was the subject of a panel discussion at the regular monthly meeting of the Crossett branch of the American Association of University Women Thursday. Panel members were Mrs. W. W. Hines, Elementary and Secondary Education Chairman; Mrs. Odell Elliott, higher education chairman; Mrs. Herbert Liebel, legislation chairman; and Mrs. W. E. Hastings, an attorney. The group discussed bills affecting our schools which are being introduced now in Congress, as well as bills being considered by the state Legislature.

Preceeding the panel discussion Mrs. Donald K. Campbell presided at a business meeting of the group. Hostess for the evening was Mrs. Donald Tufts, assisted by Mrs. Ralph Arnold and Miss Kay Camp.

AFTER UNITED KINGDOM

U.S. Ranks 2nd In Meat Imports

By GAYLORD P. GODWIN
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The position of the United States as the world's number one producer of meat is well known. A less publicized fact is that the United States is second only to the United Kingdom as a meat importer.

The United States accounted for about 10 per cent of the world's total meat imports in 1957, doubled this percentage in 1958, and showed an additional increase in 1959. The Foreign Agricultural Service (FAS) has predicted imports may go down somewhat in 1960, chiefly because of heavier supplies in this country.

The United States produced almost 26 billion pounds of meat in 1958, or about 28 per cent of total world production. This was more than twice the production of the USSR, the world's second largest meat producer.

When U.S. production dropped by 2,300,000,000 pounds from 1956 to 1958, it would have taken the combined exports of Australia, New Zealand, and Argentina to fill this gap. In fact, the total of the world's trade in meat for 1958 —at 5,800,000,000 pounds—amounted only to 22 per cent of U.S. production for that particular year.

The usually heavy imports during 1958 were still only about 6 per cent of total U.S. output. Live cattle imports, which were also unusually high during 1958, were equivalent to 1,443,000,000 pounds of carcass meat, or about one-fourth of the total imports in that year.

Slightly reduced supplies of cattle caused farmers to hold back cows from slaughter to build up herds. Also, other animals which might have been slaughtered for boning were held on farms to use large feed supplies. Slaughter of cutter and canner cattle fell from 17 per cent of total slaughter in 1957 to 12 per cent in 1958. The consequent sharp price increase for low-grade meat encouraged foreign exporters, especially in New Zealand, Australia, Argentina, and Ireland, to increase their shipments to the United States.

FAS said the movement of meat from Australia and New Zealand is likely to continue, but at reduced levels. Trade contacts have been made, refrigerated ships been made, refrigerated ships have been shifted from the European run, and packing plants have been modified to meet the demands of the U.S. market.

The shortage of beef in the United Kingdom during 1959 and early 1960 will increase prices and attract some of the trade which might otherwise come to the United States. This, however, is not expected to offset the positive factors which already have been set in motion.

U.S. cattle imports during 1958 rose sharply to more than 1,100,000 head, a new record. More than 80 per cent of these animsla were feeders, bought by U.S. farmers to convert abundant feed supplies into meat.

Our Humble Thanks

We are proud of the great victory won by the Jimmie Davis team. We knew we had outstanding people on our ticket and sound issues to rally the people around. The dignified and distinguished manner with which our standard bearer conducted himself throughout the campaign was inspiring to us all.

However, candidates and issues alone do not make successful campaigns. It takes organization, workers and voters to win.

We appreciate and will fondly remember the tireless, unselfish and friendly cooperative effort of our campaign workers that was so necessary and essential, and last but by no means least, we are grateful for the voters who turned out in unprecedented numbers to make this great victory a reality.

We sincerely invite the defeated candidates, their workers and voters to cooperate and work with us in the political affairs of our great state so that "Peace and Harmony" shall be the State Motto and not just our campaign slogan.

Changing Times In Belgian Congo

"Belgian Congo"
By NEIL SMITH
United Press International

BUKAVU, Belgian Congo (UPI) — Things aren't going so well in this provincial capital of the Belgian Congo. Business is slack, bank deposits are down, everyone wants to sell but nobody seems anxious to buy. And then there's the color bar.

This is a familiar story today as the whites in the Belgian Congo realize that whatever happened before 1959 belongs to the good old days. But it has a special point in the high, healthy uplands of the Kivu Province. For the mile-high Kivu is an African freak, a piece of Europe miraculously transposed to the equator.

There are forests here, but they are forests of pine and eucalyptus. There are lakes, as mauve and misty as any Scottish loch. The air is sharp and cool. It is a great climate for settlers — and separation of races.

Some strange law of nature has decreed that wherever African conditions are most European, the color bar is most intense. It is in temperatte South Africa, breezy Southern Rhodesia and the green paradise of the Kenya highlands that there is strongest opposition to multi-racialism. The Kivu is no exception.

TWO-WAY CONTEMPT

One need only speak to a Kivu colonist for five minutes to discover that he is the spiritual cousin of the South African nationalist. He has a profound contempt for the African — equalled only by the African's contempt for the Belgian settler.

Bukavu alone of Congo cities still maintaina a color bar. Of course they don't call it that.

In a quietly elegant restaurant nearby that would not disgrace any European city, I watched the "each to his place" rule in operation. A tall young African in a dark suit and his girl friend dressed Congolese style in sarong and blouse walked out of the rain and sat down at a table.

The manager hurried up aghast and informed them that he had stopped serving food for the night. The African protested and pointed to the Europeans eating around him. The manager obviously didn't want a scene. He pointed to the waterlogged terrace outside and said he would serve the African couple there, under an umbrella.

LIVE A GOOD LIFE

Today there are 14,000 Europeans in the Kivu Province, about 4,500 of them in Bukavu. No other part of the Congo has a higher proportion of permanent colonists. They own neat coffee, tea, pyrethrum and quinine plantations high in the cloud - capped hills around the lake. In town they run a multitude of small businesses just like the city folk back in Belgium. Many live in brightly painted Mediterranean style villas only a few feet from the water.

It is a good life — and like white colonists the world over they aim to keep what they have. In the Congo today that is a vain hope.

The white settlers of the Kivu had their problems even before independence became a live issue a year ago. The Europeans of the Congo live in a falsely inflated economy. The government and big companies offer huge salaries to entice Belgians to come out to work in Africa. In the white towns the cost of living matches the salaries.

State Youth To Fight Extradition

NEWARK, N. J. (UPI) — A 15-year-old New Orleans boy, who calmly admitted slaying a companion on a river bank, will fight extradition to Louisiana citing his youth as grounds.

Acting as attorney for curly-haired Frank Chisesi, assemblyman Leroy D'Aloia said yesterday he would oppose Gov. Robert B. Meyner's move to extradite the boy.

Chisesi was arrested by FBI agents in Newark's Pennsylvania station Dec. 10 on a Federal warrant charging him with flight to avoid prosecution for murder. He was held in connection with the Dec. 8 slaying of Rhett Blanke, 15, of Violet, La., a schoolmate.

Chisesi, soft spoken and composed, told newsmen at his arraignment, "Yeah, I did it, but I'm pleading self defense."

He said Blanke had continually annoyed him at school. Chisesi described shooting the other boy with a shotgun and then stabbing him "because he was still breathing."

Gov. Robert B. Meyner signed papers yesterday granting a request by the state of Louisiana for Chisesi's extradition.

D'Aloia said at a later extradition arraignment in Essex county court that he planned to file for a writ of habeas corpus. He said this was a challenge to Meyner's right to extradite a person under 16 years of age.

Appearing for New Orleans attorney Frank Zeldon, the assemblyman said there also may be some question of the governor's rights in the case because Chisesi was arrested on a Federal warrant.

Electricity Out To Spoil Housewife

By HENRY J. BECHTOLD
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—The electrical industry is doing its best to spoil the housewife as she has never been spoiled before.

There are now more than 60 electrical appliances available to ease the chores of the modern homemaker and make living more comfortable.

The industry's dream is to have an all-electric home the standard home of the future — a dream it is working overtime on to help come true.

It started with the "live better electrically" promotion a few years back, and in addition now is plugging "medallion" homes—those that meet industry standards.

LONG PULL AHEAD

To qualify for a bronze medallion, a residence must be equipped with an electric range and three other major appliances, 100 amp service entrance, and standard light for living. Gold medallion homes must have electric heating, all - electric appliances, 200Amp service entrance, and standard light for living. The industry claims that 170,000 bronze and gold medallion homes were certified the past two years.

There's a long pull ahead for the industry when you consider the fact that only one out of every five American homes is properly wired according to minimum standards. And the average U. S. home uses 3,500 kilowatt hours, while the bronze medallion home uses 10,000 KHW and the gold medallion home averages 28,000 KHW.

In addition to the many small electric appliances, mother's "helpers" include electronic ovens floor polishers, automatic clothes dryers, ironers, food waste disposals, refrigerator - freezers and dishwashers.

The industry has much to say about all of its products. As for dishwashers it quotes one survey that showed there are 3,795 dishes washed each month in the average American home. And it takes 73 minutes a day to do the dishes by hand compared with 35.6 minutes with an electric dishwasher.

INCINERATOR SOLVES PROBLEM

When it comes to getting rid of garbage there are three kinds of husbands. The first is the fellow who never forgets to put out the garbage; the second kind never puts it out and expects his wife to do it; and the third trains his children to put it out. The industry says the whole problem can be licked with an electric incinerator.

On the comfort side we find air conditioners, electric hot water heaters, electric heating systems, built-in lighting, radio-intercoms, and even electric heating cables to keep snow off your driveway.

Electrically heated homes have caught on much faster than had been anticipated. The four systems in common use are the wall-mounted radiant heat panels, baseboard systems, wall-mounted convectors, and ceiling systems.

The principle of all four is that electricity creates heat as it moves through wire. Electricity eliminates the chimney, and, according to the industry, with electricity at work, furnaces, radiators, flues, ducts, pipes, fuel storage areas and service charges all are eliminated.

COMMERCIAL CARGO

Panama Canal Has Trade Value

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — As a waterway for fighting ships, the Panama Canal isn't as vital as it used to be.

But as a route for trade—and trade is essential to any war effort—the Big Ditch is getting more important by the minute.

For eight straight years, canal traffic has pushed up to new peaks. For the first time, commercial cargo shot past the 50 million mark in the last fiscal year, ended June 30, 1959—to a record 51,153,000 long tons. (a long ton is 2,240 pounds.)

Oil, iron ore, foodstuffs — all kinds of commodities needed to stroke the American economy—are funneled through the canal.

So, regardless of the advent of swift, nuclear-powered ships, enormous tankers and planes that can lift cargo loads unheard of a few years ago, regardless of a shifting emphasis to missile weapons systems, there is no downgrading of the canal by the military.

Officers in uniform whose assignments deal with the canal speak with concern of sentiment boiling up in Panama for planting the Panamanian flag alongside the American in the Canal Zone.

This would be only a token reassertion of sovereignty over the 10-mile-wide strip which Panama relinquished to U.S. control. But would one token lead to others, and to a gradual weakening of security and safeguards?

Publicly, the armed services don't concede even that the 51-mile canal is slipping in strategic, military significance.

The Army's official stand stresses this:

In the final analysis, the military strength of the United States and the rest of the free world is directly related to our economic strength. Because the Panama Canal is becoming more and more a vital transportation link between sources of critical supplies and raw materials and our centers of industry, it is of greater strategic importance than ever before in contributing to our economic welfare and national defense."

The Navy's position is that "The Panama Canal is of continuing importance to the Navy in peace and war," because it provides the shortest, cheapest sea route for sending supplies and combat vessels from ocean to ocean.

But behind these official fronts there is considerable agreement among Pentagon people with the manner in which the governor of the Canal Zone, Maj. Gen. William E. Potter, distills the pros and cons on the importance of the artery:

"The canal still plays a role in Uncle Sam's defense picture, but modern war techniques have diminished its importance for the movement of combat vessels. Its primary mission is in the world of trade, providing safe and expeditious transit for vessels of all nations from one ocean to another."

Already the Navy's largest aircraft carriers and some commercial ships are too big for the Big Ditch. An ocean-to-ocean voyage means going around Cape Horn.

The Navy isn't particularly disturbed by the inability of the Forrestal-type carriers to clear the canal. It preferred bigger carriers required to handle bigger planes to smaller ships that could squeeze through the waterway.

Besides, the Navy says, the speed, endurance and sea-keeping qualities of the post World War II carriers make rounding the Horn a far shorter voyage in time than it used to be.

Which is one way of saying that specifically from the standpoint of military use, the canal isn't quite as vital as it once was.

There is another element in this: The United States maintains two-ocean navies now, with ample bases and supply trains in both the Pacific and Atlantic.

As late as 1954, 800 ocean-going U.S. government ships—they are mainly military—transited the canal. The number was down to 279 in 1958 and 204 in fiscal 1959.

Some huge planes already are as large as some small ships. And supercargo planes conceivably could make inroads on canal business.

But the people who run the canal are worrying more about prospects of heavier than lighter traffic.

Something like 5 per cent of the world's seaborne commerce uses the canal now, as averaged over the long span. Trade keeps expanding, so that canal traffic is expected to go up even if the percentage of commerce through the canal holds steady.

Month after month for 10 years, the volume of ocean-going cargo transiting the canal has mounted. In spite of a trend toward larger ships, the number of craft going through the canal is on the rise.

Transsits jumped from 101,595 in fiscal 1958 to 11,181 in fiscal 1959. These included vessels in intercoastal trade, and even pleasure craft.

But ocean-going ships accounted for 9,922 transits in fiscal 1959. Of these 9,718 were commercial and 204 U.S. government.

The number of ships going through the locks worked out to 30 on an average day—except no day was average. Actually, the figures ranged from a low of 16 to a high of 43, with traffic outstripping capacity at peak periods.

The traffic pictures and the delays are more important to American shippers than to any others. Seven of every 10 tons of the 1959 cargo moved to or from U.S. ports.

Short-range improvements to boost the capacity of the canal for another decade or so already are under way. Long-term improvements in the study stage go as far as converting the canal into a sea-level waterway wide enough and deep enough to take care of the largest ships likely to be built.

Potter told a congressional committee last April the latest cost estimate for a sea-level route was $2,368,000,000.

The figure may be higher now. Whether Congress will put up the needed cash is a question.

TERROR IN THE SKY — A bomb blast in the plane's washroom--terror--stricken passengers facing their last few moments of life. This sketch by Associated Press staff artist John A. Carlton depicts what may have been the agonizing scene aboard the National Airlines plane that crashed Jan. 6 in North Carolina, carrying 34 persons to their deaths. Congressional investigators have said that one of the passengers, heavily-insured Julian Andrew Frank, may have carried a bomb aboard the plane and set it off in the washroom. (AP Wirephoto)

IN ITALY

Fashions Showings Are Continuing

ROME (AP)—Italian high fashions showings for spring and summer reached their halfway mark Saturday night, with Roman designers generally offering few drastic changes.

Most left the female form pretty much alone. They focused on the waist and hips. They lengthened skirts. Some did so more than others.

Only Patrick de Barentzen, 27-year old relative newcomer to high fashion, sought to change the female form. He pushed shoulders and arms backward, and de-emphasized the bust by building out the waist. He was one of the few local designers to keep skirts very short, as Paris is reported planning to do.

De Barentzen, Eleanor Garnett and Antonio de Luca were the designers to show on this fourth and last day of spring and summer fashion presentations in Rome.

On Monday, the Italian fashion spotlight shifts to Florence for another five days of showings by other houses.

De Luca described his 1960 spring-summer line as "simple and elegant." It was.

De Luca's tunic length jackets, dresses and coats flowed gradually down from fitted bustlines. They had bare round or boat necks. The waist was sometimes gently marked.

In some of his creations the waist was lost within a garment which looked like a painter's smock turned backward or a long bib. He also showed several fitted sheaths and a few out and out Empire waistlines.

De Luca claims to be the couturier for actress Audrey Hepburn, one of the world's best-dressed women. He said she ordered one of his models, a simple dress with a loose waist, in six different colors.

Garnett, the other designer to show Saturday featured fabulous draped chiffons in a collection inspired by "Roman breezes, eloquent flowers, bright birds, and fluttering butterflies."

The Roman showings generally produced these fashions:

The three-quarter length jacket coat, fitted at the waist and often flared or flounced below a belt, made repeated appearances in all collections. Designers called them tunics, redingotes and chemises.

The waist drew considerable attention. But designers did not agree where to place it. Some dropped it. Some raised it. Some left it in its natural position. Some used wide belts and borders to cover not only the waist but the whole area from below the bust to the middle of the hips.

While De Barentzen kept skirts short, Fontana dropped them to more than three inches below the knee. Other designers used various lengths in between.

Hips were made prominent in many collections with bows at the side. Accordion or box pleats also were used over and over again in underskirts emerging from tunic length tops. They appeared in suits and dresses, but were most effective in organzas for evening wear.

Fabrics generally were the typical summer ones—cottons, silks, chiffons. Fontana emphasized fabrics the most, using colorful surah silk from Libetty of London. The fabricmaker came up with floral print designs from the 1890s and applied them according to kaleidoscopic color schemes provided by Fontana.

Colors ran a wide and bright range. All designers showed floral prints. Black and white was used repeatedly. So were many blues, various browns, purples and pink.

Fire Damages Residence In West Monroe

The use of gasoline as a cleaning fluid, yesterday resulted in a fire which caused heavy damages to the home of Mrs. Ruby Hislor, 205 School Street in West Monroe, firemen said. No one was injured in the blaze.

Gene Hislor, 14, said his mother was attempting to remove gum from an article of clothing with the aid of gasoline, when the fire broke out in the kitchen of their dwelling.

"She was standing near the hot water heater, when the gas ignited from the pilot light," said the boy.

The West Monroe Fire Department, on the scene in minutes, kept the flames from reaching one side of the hall divided house.

REPORTED

The fire which is reported to have started in the kitchen gutted one side of the framed structure, including the bath and living room, according to Earl C. Taylor, West Monroe Fire Chief.

Much of the furniture, and other contents of the house were destroyed, according to the occupants which included Mrs. Hislor, a widow and her three sons, Tommy, 17, Bobbie, 15, and Gene, 14. They said no insurance covered on the belongings that were burned.

Mrs. B. H. Lindsey, 504 Lazarre Street, West Monroe, who owns the dwelling, said she had some insurance on the building.

The fire department received the call at 11:20 a.m., and were on the scene until 12:30 p.m. subduing the blaze, and cleaning up the debris.

Arizona Woman Attacked By Four Negroes

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—A horrified 28-year-old Phoenix mother of four children Saturday told sheriff's deputies she was abducted at knifepoint by four Negro men and was raped twice by each during a four-hour terror ride through Phoenix.

The suspects were arrested.

The white woman and her 28-year-old husband told deputies they asked directions at a Negro patronized tavern when they became lost driving.

Mrs. Virginia Strickland of the sheriff's detective bureau said the couple received directions to follow a muddy, dead-end street.

She said the assailants probably were the men who gave the faulty instructions.

The husband said they were accosted at the end of the street. He was beaten and was knocked unconscious with a bottle.

Deputy Ken Carter spotted the car and arrested the suspects. The woman was in a state of shock. The suspects did not resist arrest.

They were booked on suspicion of robbery, rape, kidnaping and assault with a deadly weapon.

After the victim's husband regained consciousness, he went to a nearby home and telephoned authorities.

Jailed were Edward Hereford, Herman Landrum and Bobby Joe Brown, all 22, from Phoenix, and Clarence King, 23, of Phoenix.

The couple moved to Phoenix three months ago from Los Angeles. The victim's husband said that is why he did not know the streets and had to ask directions when he became lost.

State Magazine Features Stories On West Monroe

West Monroe, its past, present and plans for the future, is the subject of several articles in the current issue of the Louisiana Municipal Review.

The Review describes the city as "an attractive and rapidly developing industrial center."

"The success has been greatly enhanced by an unusual spirit of cooperation among municipal officials, chamber of commerce heads and business and civic groups," the Review said.

Featured elsewhere in the articles are the city's new fire-fighting equipment, growth of the police department and other points.

Referring to the police department, the Review notes that the city had no unsolved major crimes or traffic fatalities last year.

"Municipal boundaries have been enlarged to include almost twice the original area," the Review noted. "And Sewerage extensions were installed to service the entire area and provide additional facilities for the city as a whole."

Ellender Against Quota Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Allen J. Ellender (D-La) of the Senate Agriculture Committee said Saturday he is not presently in favor of cutting Cuba's sugar quota in any extension or revision of the Sugar Act this year.

However, he added, "this is a course which we must keep in consideration in the event Fidel Castro continues his unwarranted seizure of American property in Cuba."

Under the Sugar Act, which expires this year, Cuba is allotted a large share of the U.S. domestic market at a price of two or three cents above the world price. There have been suggestions that Cuba's sugar quota be cut in view of Castro's anti-U.S. attitude.

In fact, Ellender said, some bills aimed at Cuba already have been introduced in Congress this year. One, he said, would prohibit the importation of Cuban sugar as long as the price is above the world price. The other would trim Cuba's 1960 quota by 350,000 tons, adding that amount to the domestic producers.

Ellender said that after reviewing the situation he feels "we should not extend the Sugar Act for longer than two years."

Allender also promised early consideration by his committee of a bill aimed at retaining stability in the production and marketing of rice.

The House passed the measure last year and Ellender said he hopes to have the Senate committee, of which he is chairman, take up the bill soon and send it to the Senate for quick approval.

Under present law, marketing quotas on rice are put into effect when the total supply of rice exceeds the normal supply of more than 10 per cent. And a normal supply means the total domestic consumption, plus total exports, plus 10 per cent. So actually marketing quotas are not proclaimed unless the total carry over is 20 per cent crop.

The new bill provides that marketing quotas will be proclaimed then the total supply of rice for any year exceeds the normal supply, thus eliminating the 10 per cent requirement.

With the rice production and marketing conditions fairly stabilized in recent years, Ellender said, it is likely that a 20 per cent carryover would not result every year.

The result of this situation would be that quotas would be proclaimed one year but not the next.

"Since many rice growers consider it highly undesirable that quotas should be suspended for a one-year period and then reinstated the following year, they have requested passage of this legislation which, in effect, would provide for retention of quotas from year to year," Ellender added.

Military Ball Is Scheduled At Northeast

The Constellations, a local orchestra that has gained popularity in the last few months in Louisiana, has been chosen to play for the annual Military Ball at Northeast Louisiana State College March 12.

The dance is sponsored by the Reserve Officers Training Corps of the college. It is directed and presented by the Scabbard and Blade and the Pershing Rifles. These two groups are military fraternities that work jointly to produce the ball yearly.

In the past the dance has been a closed affair for personnel in the Military Department and guests. This year it remains undecided as whether the dance will be closed or open to the public.

Committees have been appointed from the two fraternities and are working on preparations for the dance.

The ball will be held from 8:30 p.m. till midnight in the Student Center on campus.

ing on the floor of the senate. That body can determine qualifications of its membership.

Attorneys for Crothers and W. E. Person, the other party in the suits, attempted to serve papers on Jones, Friday, but were turned away at his home on Lake Bruin by state police who declared that they were providing "protective custody" for Jones.

Sheriff E. D. Coleman of Tensas issued a statement yesterday concerning what he described as "unheard of procedures" in the protective custody of Jones.

"When I went to Jones' house to serve the papers on him regarding a civil suit, three of us —myself and two lawyers with me — saw Jones standing in front of the house. When he saw us approaching, he went into the house. I rang the doorbell and was answered not by Jones, but by two state troopers whom I recognized as Cpl. John House and Trooper James C. Martin.

"At first they said Jones was asleep, but I told them we had seen him less than one minute before standing in front of the house. Then Cpl. House said they had been ordered by their headquarters to take Jones into protective custody. The corporal said he would take the papers and serve them on Jones then come to my office to make the returns on them," Sheriff Coleman said.

STATEMENT

"I was not armed and had only gone to Jones' house to serve papers on him concerning a civil suit. I can see no reason why I should have been intercepted by the state police," the Tensas sheriff concluded.

Later one of the officers signed a statement that he had served the papers himself.

Jones' attorney in Lake Charles, William R. Tete, said yesterday that the use of the "protective custody" term was an "inaccurate description" of the officers' duties. He said that their presence was "just a precautionary measure." He did not elaborate further.

Attorneys for both Crothers and Person said Saturday that if the service had been completed, trial would probably be Wednesday.

Crothers' case is apparently connected with a jail sentence which Jones served in 1925. Crothers claims that Jones, as a convicted felon who had been pardoned for a sufficient time, was not eligible to register as a voter nor to run for the senate.

CHECK

A cursory check of photostatic copies of court proceedings indicates that Jones was sentenced to a federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., after conviction on five counts of mail fraud in the U. S. Court in the Western District of Arkansas.

Other records—photostated by Crothers' attorneys—reveal that Lt. Gov. Lethar Frazar, acting as governor while Gov. Earl K. Long was out of the state, signed a pardon and restoration of citizenship in July, 1959.

State law requires that a voter be a resident and citizen of his parish for one year. It also requires that a five-year residence is necessary to be a senatory. Crothers claims that Jones was pardoned by the state in July, 1959, and does not fulfill the requirements of the law.

Immediately after the meeting, attorneys for Crothers and Person filed suit in the district court here.

Soldiers Marching 145 Accused Men

HAVANA (UPI) — Soldiers marched 145 accused "counter-revolutionaries" into the theater of the grim La Cabana fortress Saturday for a mass trial on charges of plotting to overthrow Fidel Castro with help from the Deminican Republic.

The trial, biggest yest in the year-old Castro regime, was expected to run through the night. The defendants were given an early supper before they shuffled into the theater where 25 defense attorneys waited to present their cases.

Some 51 witnesses were to be called, including Castro himself, his brother Raul, and Maj. William Morgan, a onetime U. S. Army paratrooper from Toledo, Ohio, who joined Castro's revolution and was acclaimed a hero in the balking of the alleged plot against the rebel government.

Although firing squad justice has been authorized for counter-revolutionaries, the government was asking a maximum of only 30 years imprisonment for the nine alleged ringleaders.

Sentences ranging from 20 to 25 years were demanded for the rest.

The trial grew out of an "invasion" plot allegedly hatched by the Dominican government of strongman Rafael Trujillo, who is Castro's sworn enemy.

Last August 13, a two-engine plane landed at Trinidad in Las Villas province in Cuba's interior. At a signal, troops led by Fidel Castro attacked the plane. Two of the "invaders" were killed. The rest were seized. A nationwide roundup netted the rest of the accused plotters.

Youths Hurdle Handicaps To Progress

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

Billy M. and Tommy S. are highly intelligent, healthy boys—but both failed at first-grade subjects . . . until their "handicap" was discovered.

Now, both youngsters are making progress in school, and are living a "100 per cent" life.

It was a "70-per cent" existence until their need was discovered.

Now, Billy wears a hearing aid. Tommy is learning to pronounce words properly. Both are receiving "speech therapy."

BACKGROUND

Back of the "success story" of these two seven - year - olds stand the state department of education, Ouachita and Monroe City School Systems, and three dedicated people.

Louis George, speech therapist for the parish schools, Miss Frances Barnes, city speech therapist, and Edward J. Rynes, speech and hearing consultant in the special education center at Northeast State College work with local youngsters who require help in speech or hearing.

A special class for the hard of hearing has been approved for the Monroe City system by the state department. It is slated to start in September. All that is needed is the hiring of a qualified teacher.

Fortunately, two other persons who have met academic requirements for speech therapy reside here, although they are not yet certified to teach, and another individual may teach. Mrs. Nell Vogel, wife of Dean Fred J. Vogel of Northeast, is qualified for such teaching.

ESTIMATES

Therapist Louis George estimates that 700 children in parish schools have speech difficulties and another 700 have minor speech impediments — all needing special treatment.

Many culprits are to blame for speech disorders — hearing loss, psychological tensions, cleft palates, cerebral palsy, voice disorders . . .

"A speech defective child is a handicapped child subject to all the penalties and deprivations of his crippled brother. In this day in which so great a premium is placed upon oral communication, the disabling effect of a speech deviation may be even more devastating than that of other handicaps," George points out.

But there is hope.

"A large percentage of the youngsters with speech defects are capable of complete rehabilitation, if they are given the proper treatment by qualified therapists," he points out.

DIFFERENCE

"For many more youngsters, a therapy program may mean the difference between mere existence and useful, contented living," the therapist stresses.

Why have a qualified speech therapist to work with these Ouachita parish and Monroe children who need special aid?

The American Speech and Hearing Association has the answer.

"The welfare of the patient must be considered paramount," the association stresses.

"The therapist must possess suitable qualifications for engaging in clinical work. The association's program for certification provides measures for such qualifications . . . every precaution should be taken against causing any sort of injury to the patient," the national organization says.

The three local therapists point out a few ways in which an unqualified person working as a "therapist" might do grave harm to youngsters with speech or hearing problems.

"It can be very dangerous to the youngsters to have an unqualified person working with them. A therapist has to know what to do and what not to do. For example, he must be able to recognize the difference between a primary and a secondary stutterer," George mentioned.

"A primary stutterer is not aware that he has a speech defect. A therapist must work very indirectly with him, never letting the child know that his speech is different. If an unqualified person were to try to correct this defect directly, he might turn the child into a secondary stutterer—who would find it almost impossible to stop stuttering," the therapist stressed.

DIFFICULTY

Rynes mentioned the danger associated with a voice problem.

"Most speech therapists require the patient to have a medical examination before working with a person with a harsh voice. A lot of cancer cases have been found in this way," Rynes noted.

"An unqualified person would not know this, attempt to merely correct the voice problem, and place the patient in danger," he added.

Miss Barnes and Rynes have their basic certifications with the state and national speech and hearing associations. George is in the process of being certified. Each is a college graduate with extensive additional study and work experience — fully qualified.

The three therapists work hand-in-hand with local physicians and civic groups although they take no part in the physician's work.

They "exchange" services with each other.

Rynes primarily holds a "diagnostic job." He finds and evaluates hearing and speech difficulties in first - grade children.

He also works with these youngsters, to help them in speech and to interpret sounds.

The special education center contains extensive equipment for testing and aiding hearing. Rynes loans this to the other therapists and to schools.

George, as the parish therapist, stresses speech therapy and ear training.

They work with children who have cleft palates, voice problems such as stuttering, faulty articulation, hearing defects, hearing loss.

The children receive instruction in lip reading, auditory training, are taught to try to distinguish the minor differences in sounds.

Psychology has an important place in such work. "You must know how to work with children and with their parents, and how to change their attitudes," Rynes mentioned.

"A child who was a problem in the classroom was sent to me by his teacher. An audiogram disclosed that he had a hearing problem. I told his teacher and principal about the hearing difficulty, and therapy was begun," Miss Barnes revealed.

'I HEAR IT' — Seven-year-old Alice Haynes of Sherrouse School takes hearing test given all elementary school youngsters. Edward J. Rynes, speech and hearing consultant in the Special Education Center at Northeast State College, conducts the test.

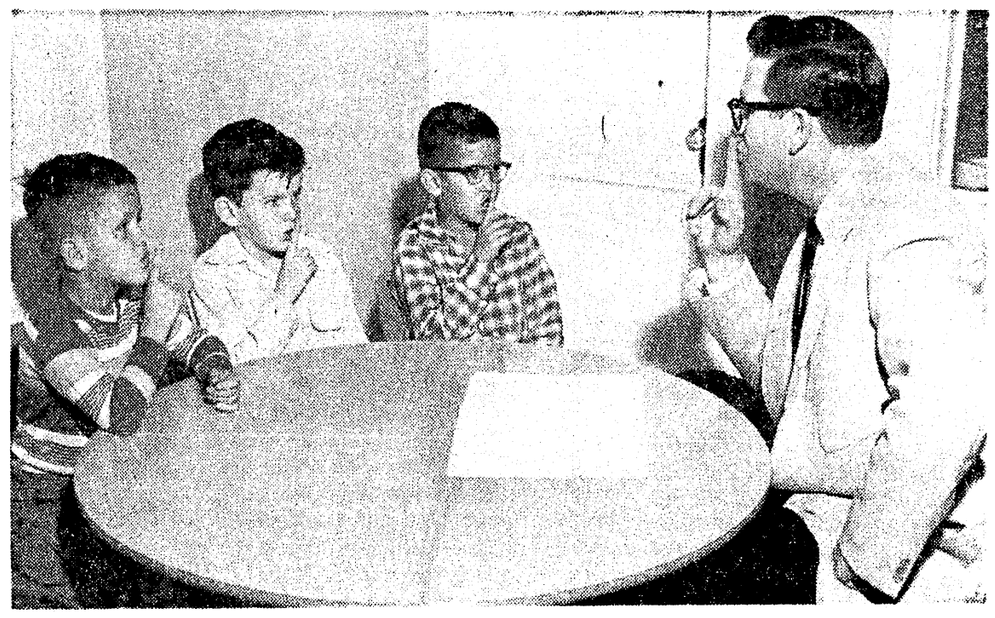
FEATURES



BE QUIET SOUND—David Feazel, 6, Ricky Windham, 7, and Ricky Martin, 7, all of Crosley School in West Monroe, learn speech sounds from parish speech therapist Louis George. Like many other parish youngsters, they have normal hearing, but also have speech difficulties.

CROSSETT, Ark. — You can't tell a book by its cover — and it's a sure thing you can't tell a hunting dog by his appearance! Old Peggy, the pride and joy of Walter Holland, of the Berlin Community, in Ashley County, gave the appearance of utter dejection as she slumped around deer camp on her three legs last November. A sort of sandy red hound, her head hung and her tail drooped between her right leg and the stump of her left hind leg. If you had hit her as you cruised down the highway, you would have thought, "Well, there goes nothing." Yet, according to every hunter in the Walter Holland camp, she was a sure-fire "buck dog," which is a treasure in any man's books.

EARLY KNOWLEDGE

According to those who knew her, Peggy started knowing the difference between a buck trail and that left by a doe when she was nine months old. From that time on, Peggy's full cry on the trail brought hunters on their stands to attention, because they knew a buck deer was somewhere up front of her.

Everyone who has hunted with Peggy during the past 13 years agrees that between 250 and 300 deer have been killed in front of her, and Dale Holland says, "I believe that'll underestimate her quite a bit." At the peak of her career she had 21 deer shot in front of her in one week.

The pale red "half registered Trigg and half registered Black and Tan" failed to return to camp after a run through the woods about three years ago. As nightfall came the men in camp started wondering when it was they had missed old Peggy. Walter said, "I listened for her bark and stopped hearing her in the morning run." Others agreed on just about when they stopped hearing Peg — and a search party went out to investigate. They found the lean red hound caught in a fence which she had tried to jump as she raced after a deer. She had hung there fifteen hours — stopping circulation in her left hing leg, so that it had become gangrenous and had to be cut off. For a while they thought of trying to fit a peg leg to the prized dog, but as she began to get around pretty well on three legs, they just let her go. She continued to hunt right on through November's deer season.

LACKING

However, something was lacking this year. She stopped eating, and drooped about the camp looking more forlorn than ever—coming to life only when on the trail. The men said she was beautiful then! But it was her last hunt. Fourteen year old Peggy died the week after the November hunt. Her name will remain a part of the legendary background of the Holland camp, growing in stature with each year's telling.

Peggy was one of many dogs to rise above the pack and carve her name in the history of hunting in Ashley County. All deer hunting in southern Arkansas is keyed to the rider and the string of dogs. With hunters stationed at predetermined points, the rider, dressed in tough jacket and western - style chaps for protection from briars, runs the dogs in an area where deer are suspected to be hanging out. The same man generally sticks to riding throughout the hunt, because he knows the dogs and gets a thrill out of handling them. He might trade off occasionally to rest, but generally will stick to riding.

He will have a pack of mixed breeds. There will be registered and mixtures of registered dogs of such breeds as Beagle, Blue Tick, Black and Tan (a favorite), Red Bone, and off-beat dogs called Julys, and "mixed up hound types called "pot-likkers." There is also an occasional Catahoula hound, though they're mostly pig dogs; and a Walker or so.

PERSONALITY

Each dog will have his own personality and reputation. The man on the stand will hear a low-pitched cry on the trail, and mutter into the chill air, "Now, that's Blue. He's as apt to be running a fox as not," and wait to see what pops out of the brush in front of Blue. Old Rough is a "cold nose" dog, which means he can pick up a cold trail and follow it for miles — right up to his quarry.

Ashley County, with 72 per cent of its total land in woodland, has become a sportsman's paradise in the past decade, with deer hunting the number one sport in the county. The combination of a managed forest, and the creation of a 27,000 - acre game refuge in the heart of the county, has brought the officially recorded deer kills from 10 in 1930 to a record 500 during the first half of the split season last month.

Game Warden, Erby Byrd, who retired as warden the end of November, has seen the deer population expand from a few tracks in the southeast corner of the refuge when he first started work 19 years ago, until the woodland over the entire county is now heavily populated. There are deer now which have grown up completely outside the refuge, and hunting is good all over the nearly half a million acres of forest.

TELLS OF DOG

Warden Byrd tells of a dog that worked on the opposite side of the fence from Old Peggy, and Rough and Blue. Byrd had a Red Bone hound named Major, that worked with him for years as he patrolled the refuge. Major could track down a man who had left his scent on the scene of an illegal kill — or he would run the hunters' dogs out of the refuge. He walked directly behind the warden, and if Byrd stopped to listen, Major froze, foot in air, to listen too. If Byrd heard a shot, but couldn't "course" it, Major led him straight to the hunter. It's dogs like Major that contribute to a game warden's reputation for appearing "out of thin air" when a man is standing in great embarrassment over a dead deer which shows not the least sign of a spike.

Whitlow Sawyer of Hamburg came in from the November hunt with a new dog story concerning Ole Charlie, a Red Bone hound from the Barnes Camp. It seems that Whitlow and Earl Baxter, of Monticello, were on a deer stand deep in the woods east of Hamburg when they heard the dogs jump a deer. The deer led them across the road and into the swamp, where most of the dogs gave up the chase. It is easy for a deer to lose the dogs in a swamp, by simply jumping across a stretch of water here and there until the dogs give up in confusion.

Ole Charlie went on into the swamp after the deer, however, as the rider called in the other dogs. Whitlow left his stand to return to camp, while Baxter remained in the woods. In a little while Ole Charlie came into camp with a folded piece of paper tucked into his collar. There was no writing on the paper, but as the men examined it closely, they saw the word, "Baxter," impressed in it with the tip of a sharp stick. So — with Ole Charlie in the lead, they headed out to look for Baxter.

FOUND

It seems that while Charlie was in the swamp, a buck "slipping deer," one that is just slipping along through the woods with no one on its trail, came by and Baxter shot it. It ran into the woods, and died — but Baxter couldn't find it in the deep undergrowth. About that time Ole Charlie came along on his way back to camp from the swamp chase. Baxter said, "Charlie, I got a deer down here, son. Come help me find it." Charlie located the deer without hestitation. However, Ole Charlie wasn't much help in pulling it out of the brush — he tended to pull one way and Earl the other. Finally Earl said, "Charlie, we need some help. You go into camp and take this note and get us some help out here." Within 45 minutes Charlie was back with help. According to Whitlow, "His price went up to $2,000 right then!"

Mother Gertrude Leaves

The city of Monroe and all of northeast Louisiana have learned with deep regret that Mother Marie Gertrude is leaving St. Francis hospital. This noble, consecrated and devoted administrator of the most outstanding hospital in the Monroe area is being honored by being sent as administrator to Our Lady of the Lake hospital in Baton Rouge, where she formerly served as operating room supervisor. Baton Rouge's gain will be Monroe's loss.

At ceremonies today, Mother Gertrude will be presented with a plaque in honor of her extraordinary services here. The plaque reads:

To
Sister Marie Gertrude
Administrator
St. Francis Hospital, Monroe, La.
July 1949 to January 1960 for meritorious and outstanding leadership in serving the health needs of the community
City of Monroe
W. L. Howard
Mayor

Another honor for the splendid record St. Francis hospital has achieved under Mother Gertrude's administration was accorded a few days ago when the hospital was presented a certificate of commendation for its part in the Missouri Pacific railroad wreck and explosion in January 1959. The presentation was made by B. W. Brown, president of the Louisiana Hospital Association to Mother Gertrude, who accepted in behalf of the hospital.

In a period of one hour, 57 persons were admitted to St. Francis. Such services as this have earned the respect of the citizens of Monroe and all northeast Louisiana for the hospital.

The commendation was earned by the hospital for activities in the disaster which claimed the lives of eight persons and injured more than 50 others.

An idea of the great progress made here during Mother Gertrude's administration can be gained from the fact that the hospital capacity was increased from 150 to 275 beds. In 1950 a new chapel was erected, in 1955 a new hospital building of massive proportions and great beauty was constructed and in 1958 the seventh floor was completed.

Mother Gertrude is a member of the American College of Hospital Administrators, has served as a member of the board of directors of the Louisiana Hospital Association, vice-president of the Northeast Louisiana Hospital Council, and director of the Louisiana Catholic Hospital Association.

Mother Gertrude's foresightedness and ability to gauge the health needs of the community were responsible for the inception of the planning for a new hospital building, shortly after her arrival in Monroe in 1949 and for its eventual completion in 1955. She was able to foresee the great increase in the use of hospital facilities, as a result of medical research and progress, during the 1950s and thus the new St. Francis hospital became a reality and a community asset. Even now, as she leaves Monroe, further plans for improvement and expansion are in the making.

Her kindness to the sick and injured who have come to the doors of St. Francis during the years of her administration has become legendary. Her words of comfort and sympathy have been a consolation to many troubled souls through the years.

She has gone about her duties, doing good without ostentation, often without the knowledge of anyone but herself.

Her sincere regard for and interest in the employe personnel of the hospital has been noteworthy. Her door has always been open and her precious time available to the employes of the hospital. The same consideration and cooperation has been shown the medical staff, whose members number our community leaders and whose efforts and abilities have made our city the medical center of northeast Louisiana.

Mother Gertrude typifies the fulfillment of the prayer of St. Francis of Assissi, etched in the marble walls of the St. Francis lobby:

Louisiana Is Safer

Louisiana scored one triumph in the first 10 months of 1959 not achieved by any other state in the union. National Safety Council figures for those months showed that Louisiana led all states with a 17 per cent decrease in motor vehicle deaths.

This is all the more remarkable because increased traffic fatalities were the rule, as was to be expected with the increasing number of automobiles and trucks on the highways and the rising number of miles they traveled.

Some pertinent comment on the Louisiana achievement was made by the Memphis (Tenn.) Commercial Appeal, which said in part:

"We salute Louisiana for highway safety.

"We wish we knew who or what is responsible for the Louisiana accomplishment. It seems to have little direct connection with the big cities and large population. Two of the most sparsely populated states, Nevada and New Hampshire, are most striking contrasts. Each had 30 per cent more traffic deaths during the same months.

"At least until more information is available we can suggest that the Louisiana records support the idea that modern highways save lives. New Orleans has more expressways than some rival cities and tourists often remark on the quality of the state's major highways.

"We have small interest in any particular answer, so long as we can find out how it was done and do likewise."

There can be no doubt that better highways are a major factor in safety and the constant campaign carried on in Louisiana to urge greater caution undoubtedly also played a major part in the reduction of traffic fatalities.

Although there are many apparently unexplainable accidents in which only one vehicle is involved, one of the great hazards of the highways is trying to pass on a two-lane highway without being able to see whether any traffic is coming from the opposite direction. This danger is eliminated when two-lane highways parallel each other, with traffic on one going in one direction and the other going in the other direction. Elimination of curves and hills also greatly increase visibility.

As recently mentioned in the Monroe Morning World, most drivers in Louisiana apparently are obeying the maximum speed laws. It is often possible to drive from Monroe to Baton Rouge, within the maximum speed limit, without being passed from the rear by more than one or two automobiles. This indicates a high degree of law observance.

As stated by the Commercial Appeal, the reason for Louisiana's better safety record may not be known but it is highly gratifying.

Subsidizing Cuban Sugar

Principal Of Taking Money From People's Pockets By Agreeing To Pay Higher Price Is Wrong

The principle of subsidizing a nation out of the pockets of the American people, not by taxes but by agreeing to increase the price of that country's commodity in our stores, is wrong. It places upon the American people a heavy but hidden burden. When Americans buy sugar, they do not realize that they are subsidizing Cuba because Americans pay more than the world market price; when they buy a pound of coffee and pay an outrageous price for that commodity, they do not know that they are paying a hidden tax to aid the economy of such countries as Brazil and Colombia.

All reports establish that there is a surplus of coffee and by the law of supply and demand, the price of coffee should decrease sharply. However, by market rigging and price manipulation, the price of coffee is kept high. This is policy designed to aid the coffee-growing countries. It is the economics of the "Good Neighbor Policy."

But the American consumer was never asked whether he wanted his coffee to cost so much that he has to drink the new style powdery stuff that provides more cups of coffee per pound. This is an ingenious method of healing the high price of coffee.

As things still stand, the United States is subsidizing the Castro government in Cuba by paying a higher price for sugar than sugar costs in world markets. We are doing the same with coffee. It is one thing, having an item in the budget, including it formally and legally in an aid program against which a protest is possible in Congress: it is another loading it on the price. The gimmick used in the matter of sugar and coffee is to tell the people nothing but to make a deal with a country to fix a price for a commodity which Americans like to buy. How false such a policy is became clear in the conduct of Fidel Castro who despite the fact that the American government is subsidizing Cuba through the price of sugar, operates an absolutely anti-American government. Do we need to subsidize our enemies, too?

As regards coffee, no coffee country is our enemy, but is that a reason to subsidize this product? To what extent is the American household to be taxed? And how is it possible for the American people not to become demoralized by the enormous burden of taxation, high cost of living, subsidy prices? How is it possible for the American worker not to lose his incentive not only to create but to work?

This then is the major problem of this campaign year and the politicians ought not to be permitted to confuse us with side and unimportant issues. If prices continue to rise, we shall have an increasing number of strikes. These strikes occur during a period of the devaluation of the currency and thereby endanger the value of the dollar. The basic peril to the United States, at this particular moment in our history, is not bombs or missiles or rockets but the value of the dollar—that is, what happens to our money.

As long as candidates talk poppy-cock and the people accept the loose talk, the loss to the people will be great. If the candidates can be pinned down to discuss money—our money — what it is worth, what it can buy, what it can buy abroad, how it affects the prices of our goods at home and abroad — unless the candidates speak about that, they are ducking the essential issue of our swer, no glib reply, no avoidance of facts concerning the dollar.

It is usual for candidates to avoid unpleasant subjects. They prefer to deal with questions to which there can be a happy answer. There can be no happy answer. There can be no happy answer. There can be no

Gen. Douglas MacArthur

Larger Than Life

By SAUL PETT

NEW YORK (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur will be 80 years old Jan. 26 and, as usual, will appear somewhat larger than life size.

There will be birthday greetings from all over the world for the general of the Army, the senior officer of all branches of the American military service, possibly the most decorated soldier in American history, a hero of St. Mihiel, Bataan, Corregidor, New Guinea, Manila, Tokyo and Inchon and the man whose life has probably touched more history than any other living American.

There will be messages from presidents and prime ministers, from generals and admirals, from the great, the near-great, the never-great.

THE CLIMAX

But the climax of the birthday will come in the evening, as it has every year for the past eight since Gen. MacArthur returned under forced draft from Tokyo and Korea. At about 6:45 p.m., he will accept the arm of an escorting general, depart from the splendid isolation of his Waldorf Towers apartment and descend by elevator to a stag reunion of his old World War II staff.

Judging by past birthdays, the ensuing program might remind viewers of the late show of the regimental ritual of the old Bengal Lancers back when India was still a Kiplingesque outpost of emire.

As the general approaches the door of the hotel's Jansen suite, his old staff will be assembled inside, in black tie or uniforms for those who can still get into them. At a given moment, someone will shout "'tenshun!" and the general will enter, himself in black tie.

As he moves in, the men will sing "Happy Birthday." The general will pass among them, shaking each hand firmly, gazing deeply into each pair of eyes from a face which, though thinned by age, remains chiselled in epic lines. It is still a face which seems to suggest that it alone stands between mankind and Armageddon.

After a drink or two—during which the men will begin to refight the second World War—the party will then pass into the mirrored dining room, to an elaborate three-wine dinner.

At the table, Gen. MacArthur will be flanked by the ranking officer of each branch of the service under him in the Pacific—Gen. Walter Krueger of the ground forces, Adm. Thomas C. Kinkaid of the Navy and Gen. George C. Kennedy of the Air Force.

As the brandy glasses are drained and the old warriors light fresh cigars, the roll will be called and each man will rise and answer in alphabetical turn. Some names will be followed by good-humored cat - calling, even occasional bun-throwing.

But there will be none of this when MacArthur rises. If there were, said one general and admirer, it would be "followed by the most silent moment in history."

According to a man privy to MacArthur's feelings, the general still "feels deeply hurt by the Truman firing—feels it cast a stigma over his military record, which will never be erased. He will go to his grave with a deep sense of bitterness."

But MacArthur remains convinced that Chinese Communist bases in Manchuria should have been destroyed, that it would have won the war in Korea and then and there aborted the rising power of China.

He is said to be concerned that the "time may be dangerously close when American soldiers may not have the heart to fight for their country." He attributes this, too, to the "fact that we failed to fight Red China through to victory after she caused huge American casualties."

This is paraphrase of MacArthur opinion as reported by a man who sees him almost every day but asks that his name be withheld.

Since his return from Tokyo in 1951, Gen. MacArthur has never traveled abroad although every year he receives invitations from the governments of Japan, Australia, Korea and the Philippines.

"The general feels," said the same source, "that the circumstances of his dismissal preclude his going back to the Far East even for a visit unless he went back as some sort of special ambassador with the dignity of the U.S. government behind him."

MacArthur's longest trip in recent years covered 55 miles. On a rainy Sunday morning two years ago, he suddenly invited his former aide and old friend, Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney (Ret.) to drive up to West Point.

They arrived unannounced at the Military Academy, where MacArthur led Whitney to the cadet mess hall. An attendant stopped them; visitors, he said, weren't permitted at that hour.

The general said, "I'm sorry. We were just browsing. I graduated from here. MacArthur's the name."

The attendant almost disintegrated. At West Point, the MacArthur name is held in almost the same reverence given Robert E. Lee. They were allowed into the mess hall.

As a general of the Army still on active duty but without specific assignment, MacArthur has a three - room office downtown, manned by a master sergeant, warrant officer, and civilian administrative assistant. MacArthur is entitled to Army pay and allowances of $20,543.

The general rarely visits the office. His mail is brought to him every day. The Army motor pool also provides him with a driver and car, usually the same old black Chrysler he used back in Tokyo.

Every year the general uses the car less as he spends more and more time in his apartment. Here he lives with Mrs. MacArthur and Ah Cheu, the Filipino nurse, who came out with the family by torpedo boat from Bataan in the dark days of 1942.

Arthur, the MacArthurs' son, has his own apartment uptown near Columbia University, where he is a senior majoring in English. A dark, reserved young man of 21, he has indicated a great interest in writing and little in a military career. However, after graduation next June he will be subject to compulsory military training.

Birthday greetings will be spoken for each branch of the old command by Kreuger, Kennedy and Kinkaid. Then, Ten. MacArthur will speak, perhaps in recollection or on the general theme of leadership or the state of the world. As always, he will speak in Ciceronian rhythms, rolling phrases and rising clauses, each marching by in highly polished cadence.

The evening will close with all members of the staff rising and singing the old barracks ballad which ends, "Old soldiers never die, they just fade away"—a line which has evoked the warmest emotion in the general's admirers and the coldest derision among his detractors.

The elevator will rise again to the 37th floor of the Waldorf Towers and Gen. MacArthur will once more disappear into his seven - room apartment, from which he rarely departs these days.

MUTED

Here in the muted magnificence of his Oriental furnishings, in a living room 47 by 28 and adorned by delicate carvings, ancient screens and a pair of gleaming, two-foot high silver vases given in gratitude by the Emperor of Japan, Douglas MacArthur lives out his years, making no direct contact with the public, seeing no reporters and allowing his past and present to come to him.

As chairman of the board of Sperry-Rand Corp., largely an advisory job which earns him $68,800 a year, Gen. MacArthur runs board meetings once a month in his living room. All other business matters are dealt with in the apartment with one exception.

Once a year he must go out to conduct the stockholders meeting, which requires more space. Two years ago, history of a sort was made when the general of the Army, rolling through a long peroration about high taxes and the menace of the Soviet Union, was heckled from the floor by a lady stockholder from Brooklyn.

"I came here to hear about dividends, not Russia," she shouted. The general returned to his theme in the grand way generals have of ignoring snipers.

The general sees a variety of people, almost all of them in his apartment. His visitors are said to include government leaders from the Far East, congressmen, businessmen, and military officers, including the last three chiefs of staff, all of whom were cadets at West Point when MacArthur was superintendent.

Except for stockholder meetings, MacArthur no longer speaks out on public issues and makes very rare public appearances. One of these is an annual visitation to the National Football Hall of Fame dinner, where this year, without notes, he delivered a remarkably vivid speech on the effects of football in later life.

He recalled the death in Korea of a platoon commander who had been a star end at West Point.

"As he lay dying on the field," the general said, "his commanding office knelt over him to catch his final words and through those bloody lips came that last gasping whisper — 'Stupid, thinking they could turn my end!"

The general recalled the football remarks made personally to him by presidents dating back to Theodore Roosevelt, who at a Harvard-Yale game more than 50 years ago said to his aide de camp:

"Douglas, I would rather be in the Harvard backfield today than be in the White House."

He recalled comments made to him by Presidents Taft, Wilson, Harding, Coolidge, Hoover, Franklin D. Roosevelt—MacArthur was chief of staff under Hoover and Roosevelt—and Dwight D. Eisenhower.

"And then," he added to a rising laugh, "there was Harry Truman, who surely tried to look like a fullback when he kicked me out of Korea."

This was MacArthur's first public reference to Truman since he replied in a published statement to the Truman memoirs.

Guest, Going, You'll Laugh For Fun Of It

Muawiya, an Egyptian, has been invited formally by the British to visit London just as the Suez trouble begins to crackle. He is a newsman and an enigma. "Your Egyptian is just not reliable," declares cocksure Waldo Grimbley, who doesn't trust a one of them. But Muawiya can be relied on to do the unexpected, argue the wrong way round, be a friend and act a foe or be a foe and act a friend.

He calls on a former teacher, Edgar Perry, head of a London school. He saved Perry's life in Egypt, as he sees it, and expects gratitude; but what he regards as saving a life looked very much to Perry's friends like an attempt to murder him. He borrows, if he doesn't steal, Hillingdon's car, which he wrecks; and the question whether he shall be punished by English standards, or win from the case enough notoriety to make him seem to his fellow countrymen a martyr and thus advance his political prospects is the main thread of the story. Hanging to it are many fascinating matters, like Hillingdon's relations with Mrs. Blainey, Grimbley's prejudices, and even a lesson on how not to refuse money to Egyptians — as Dulles refused it for their High Dam. Some scenes are phenomenally full of chuckles, for instance, the party given by Muawiya vicariously, and the way Mary Perry decides, with her elbow in her husband Edgar's stomach, to repulse his conjugal advances, followed by his resignation to her attitude once he feels the cold kitchen linoleum on his bare feet.

There are two official fictional views of Egypt, both proffered by Englishmen: Lawrence Durrell with "Justine" and Newby with this and other novels. Durrell gives us the dark, erotic life—the veils, the assignations, the abandon to the constant surges of passion. Newby is cool and aloof, writes with dispassion, shuns the lovers' couch. Durrell seems to need the perfumed, dimly lighted setting of the Nile; Newby seems to need — only Newby. The purplish, lush view is more popular. But Newby is consistently the truer artist. In this novel a felicitous wit plays over every scene, and the men and women become acquaintances so original, convincing and provacative that long after you finish their story you will carry on in your mind the conversations they started and the intriguing arguments you want to answer.

'Last Valley' Portrays Life Of Fugitive

THE LAST VALLEY. By J. B. Pick. Little, Brown. $3.50.

It is the winter of 1637-38. Marauding armies have laid waste towns and cities in Southern Germany, but back in from the banks of the Rhine there is a haven from the fury of the Thirty Years War — "Last Valley," or as it was called in the original English edition, "Fat Valley."

Vogel, the civilian fugitive from fighting, plague and hunger, comes to this refuge, and before he can sense his good luck, is caught by a wandering band of soldiers led by the Captain. Challenged to tell where the inhabitants are and threatened with execution, he inveigles the Captain into settling in this unexpected oasis for the winter, taking a vacation from the turmoil of arms and living on the peasants' stores of food. The wily officer accepts, and a quick thrust of his knife disposes of his chief dissenter, Korski. Then two uneasy groups start the almost impossible task of living together for half a year. No one trusts anyone else; Gruber determines to hang on to the riches of which he has cheated his neighbors; the priest interferes; the lover mistrusts Vogel hidden in the barn of the house where pretty Inge lives; Korski's friends plot vengeance; and no one lifts a finger, or fails to, without arousing the uncontrollable fears that can bring on all the violence in which they have lived and which they hoped to escape.

To be sure, there is one promising surge of love and a curious friendship dangerously triggered and fatally consummated. But the author is saying that even in the last ditch man does not curb his bent for violence and destructiveness. It is a grim story full of fury and madness, and told with primitive simplicity — its curious archaic tone caught nicely in the jacket design.

With JOHN CALE

The sense of humor unique to United States lore, customs and production came forward here last week in two instances through the canned medium of the movies. The first bell - ringer was an underwater sage involving a pink submarine and an unlikely cargo of sailors and nurses, "Operation Petticoat."

The second funnybone tickler was based on the newspaper comic strip of the same name, "L'il Abner." It turned out to be well suited to musical comedy treatment a la showed the reflections a la cartoonist Al Capp to good advantage.

Capp — whose strip runs daily in the News-Star and on Sunday in the Morning World —has over a period of years used the Dogpatch characters' observations of politics, society and the international scene as "meat" for his plots. The music of Johnny Mercer latched onto this idea completely in the song, "The Government is in Good Hands."

The barnyard ballet handling of the "Sadie Hawkins Day" race incorporated some of the fastest - moving stylized hoedown this writer has seen since the days of the Ritz Brothers movies over 20 years ago.

The colorful hillbilly prefab sets and the dialogue had a big city quality about them which required the viewer from the lesser populated areas — the real country — a little getting used to. But the corn was artistic even if artificial, and "L'il Abner" turned out to be a fine humanized cartoon.

SAILORS' HUMOR

The ground soldiers have tried for drama and the flyboys for some of the same, but the best humor and play writing in the past 20 years about the military has come from the men who go down to the war in ships.

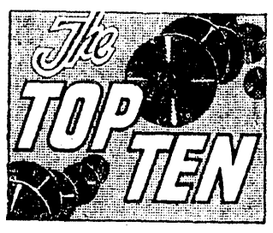
"Mr. Roberts," the "Caine Mutiny" and "Don't Go Near the Water" — all have dealt with nautical themes. Now comes Operation Petticoat with a once over lightly treatment of one of the gloomiest periods of U. S. history. The post-Pearl Harbor days saw withdrawal in the Pacific and the rise of the universal supply officer many commanders relied upon to snatch necessities out of chaos. Operation Petticoat was a comedy of field substitutes and altered tables of organization. If comedy is supposed to serve as a valve to let misfortune blow away in a hiss of decompressed diesel fuel, this one should fill the bill. The skillful underplay of Gary Grant as the submarine commander lifted the farce to the higher levels of entertainment.

A possible reason for better plays and comedies about the Navy is the fact of confinement — as good plays are confined to a stage, they are already kin in one sense to the confines of a ship or submarine.

COMING EVENT

Tuesday at 8:15 p.m. in Brown Hall Auditorium on the Northeast campus, photo-journalist Julien Bryan will present an account of several of his assignments as part of the Northeast State Concert and Lecuture Series.

Bryan is an internationally known photographer and lecturer. Still coming on the series and slated for March are the play, "Dark at the Top of the Stairs," and Fred Waring's Choral Ensemble.



1. WHY, Frankie Avalon.
2. EL PASO, Marty Robbins.
3. WAY DOWN YONDER IN NEW ORLEANS, Freddy Cannon.
4. THE BIG HURT, Toni Fisher.
5. AMONG MY SOUVENIRS, Connie Francis.
6. IT'S TIME TO CRY, Paul Anka.
7. RUNNING BEAR, Johnny Preston.
8. HEARTACHES BY THE NUMBER, G Mitchell.
9. OH CAROL, Neil Sedaka.
10. PRETTY BLUE EYES, Steve Lawrence.

HI-FI and STEREO

by Greg Hare

What is Stereo? Have you ever thought of the factors that account for our ability to assign spatial position to a sound source. Directionality, directionality refers not only to lateral spacing of sound but also to depth and perhaps even to height. We sense directionality by several means- difference in arrival time of the sound to each ear, intensity difference at each ear, and ratio of direct to reverberated sound.

Spaciousness spaciousness has nothing to do with lateral or depth perception. The objective is to make the listener believe the source is a large one rather than just coming from the speaker enclosure and to create the illusion that the performance is taking place in a large hall instead of in the living room. Although stereo is not necessarily high fidelity, the best stereo is at the same time high fidelity. Therefore the sound should possess the following characteristics essential for realistic reproduction - low distortion, good frequency response, wide dynamic range, high signal-to-noise ratio and the proper reproduction level. So stereo is a means of reproducing the whole sound with sensations of directionality and spaciousness.

CLASSICAL

"MUSIC FOR TRUMPET AND ORCHESTRA, VOLUME 2." Roger Voisin, John Rhea, soloists and Orchestra directed by Kenneth Schermerhorn. Kapp KC-9033-S.

From earliest days when, we are told, a platoon of such instruments vanquished the walls of Jericho, the trumpet has been a symbol of power and prestige. In Tudor times Germany enacted laws forbidding the unauthorized use of the instrument by any except the king's men. Special permission had to be obtained for municipal bands to hire trumpeters.

Today, the trumpet serves mainly as a member of the orchestra's brass section, yet only two centuries ago it was the undisputed musical leader and prince of the orchestra proof of which can be found in the magnificent music of that era. Roger Voisin is one one of those cheifly reponsible for re-kindling interest in these master pieces of the 18th century. The stereo seperation is more than adequate and the performance is great

POPULAR

"GREAT OR DANCING." Eddy Howard and his Orchestra. Mercury SR 60104. This is a well-played program of dance music by a band previously condemned to supporting the leader's vocal efforts. The excellent teamwork, the crisp orchestra playing and the uncluttered arrangements make this an album that will bring a lot of pleasure to both listener and dancer. Mercury's stereo sound is very fine, throughout the album.

Civil War In Perspective

A COMPENDIUM OF THE WAR OF THE REBELLION. By Frederick H. Dyer, Yoseloff. Three volumes. $30.

Ardent though today's Civil War buffs are, Dyer could have given them lessons. He labored 40 years on this stupendous assembly of war information, without the help of secretary or stenographer. Through the last five years, according to a contemporary newspaper story, he worked continuously, "knowing little difference between night and day and between Saturday and Sunday," leaving his room only for "the few hours each week which it was absolutely essential that he have in the open air for health's sake."

The three volumes were hailed as a unique and monumental war record when published in 1908. They have equal stature today. This new edition, with a critical introduction by Bell Irvin Wiley, adds another star to the record of publisher Yoseloff for making Civil War classics available to today's historian and student ("Photographic History," "Civil War Atlas").

It is almost impossible to convey in a few sentences the scope and detail of the Compendium. Volume One tabulates enlistments and losses, identifies around 3,000 units which served in the Union Army, and lists alphabetically some 7,300 commanders of brigades or larger units. Volume Two tabulates 10,455 Civil War actions from battles and campaigns to scouting forays and skirmishes. They are listed chronologically and by states. Volume Three details the records of more than 3,500 Union regiments, battalions, batteries and independent companies. You will not find the like of it anywhere else.

Dream Comes True

Wish On A Star

By W. G. ROGERS

NEW YORK (AP) — "Every time I saw a falling star, I wished to be a singer."

So it isn't just superstition to wish on a falling star. At least for once it worked, and Birgit Nilsson, little Swedish farm girl, grew up to win the plaudits of the great opera house audiences of Europe and America.

This rise from falling star to stage star has brought Miss Nilsson to the Metropolitan here for four roles this season: Isolde, in "Tristan and Isolde," Bruennhilde in "Die Walkuere" and Senta in "The Flying Dutchman," all Wagnerian, and the title role in Beethoven's "Fidelio."

When she made her Met debut in December as Isolde in a new production designed by Teo Otto and staged by Herbert Graf, it was the 67th time she had sung the part, and the sixth time last year that she had sung it in a new production, and she counted them off: Rome, Lisbon, Barcelona, Milan and Vienna besides the Met.

Her debut made other records, too. She was given a tumultuous ovation for her fine acting, and for her voice, which rolls out with ease to the farthest reaches of the vast Met. The worst the music press could say about her was that she missed being a Kirsten Flagstad, her principal predecessor.

She is the newest in a line of distinguished singers from Scandinavia. We are apt to think Italy or Germany produces the best voices, but Miss Nilsson was preceded at the Met not only by Flagstad but also by Lauritz Melchior, Kirsten Thorborg, Set Svanholm, Joel Berglund, Jussi Bjoerling, Aase Nordmo Loevberg, Elizabeth Soederstroem and Nicolai Gedda. There was also, for 1950-51, a cousin of her father's, Sven Nilsson, a basso.

Aside from the cousin, and the amateur singing of her mother, nothing in Miss Nilsson's upbringing could introduce her to song.

"As a people," she says, "Swedes don't sing."

But she can't remember when she herself didn't. "I sang and spoke before I could walk. I even sang in my sleep. The nurse had to wake me to stop me. I was disturbing the family."

Her father was a farmer, and still is, though on a smaller scale. An only child, she was brought up on the farm and helped tend a herd of 3 cows.

SWEDISH STAR — Birgit Nilsson, who as a Swedish farm girl dreamed of being a great singer, has seen her wish come true. She is singing four roles at the Metropolitan Opera this season.

"It is wonderful to be born on a farm," she says. "If you're born in a town, you're not so strong in your nerves or your body."

A broad-shouldered, young-looking woman with a head of flaring black hair, she speaks English a little brokenly. But she's never at a loss for a word: If she can't say it, she can gesture it with a twist of her fingers, an eloquent fling of an arm, a toss of her head or a pronounced grimace — and always a quick look after into the mirror at her dressing table to be sure she got nothing out of order.

"I'm always feeling so happy, too, when I can go back to the farm."

She doesn't work there any more, she has been too busy with a career that developed with phenomenal rapidity.

"When as a child I wanted to be a singer, I didn't know what kind I wanted to be. I didn't know what kinds there were. I sang solos at the church, and for weddings. An organist heard me and prophesied I'd be a 'great' singer."

Her father didn't really approve, her mother was sympathetic. After six months' study, she was one of two out of 48 to win a contest for admission to the Royal Music Academy. Then tickets to the opera became inexpensive to her as a student, and she saw her first work, an obscure contemporary German piece, and then her second, "Tannhaeuser." Her debut was in Verdi's "Lady Macbeth" 12 years ago.

When she met her husband he was a veterinarian, now he owns three restaurants in Stockholm.

Can she explain how singers from the cold north countries differ from others?

"I can only say that their voices are clearer, and cooler. They are not like the Italian or German, those voices have something in along with them, it is voice plus something else. The Scandinavian voice is clean."

This first season she stays only to Feb. 21. She has already signed her contract for 1960-61, when among other roles she will sing the Met's first "Turandot" in 30 years, with Mitropoulos conducting. She has been heard in opera in Chicago and San Francisco in previous years, and has done some recitals outside New York City.

The Soldier, Young Love, Two Worlds

GENERATION WITHOUT FAREWELL. By Kay Boyle. Knopf. $3.95.

A small town in the American sector of Germany three years after V-E Day is run by Col. Roberts, a hulking square - head of an officer. He and his wife Catherine welcome their 18-year-old daughter Millicent during her summer holiday from college, and her visit sparks the tense drama which Miss Boyle builds up in her 13th novel.

Roberts, severe disciplinarian used to having his own way, believes a good Army man is what his child needs more, even, than an education, and his candidate is Lt. Stephany. But lovely Millicent draws the glances of men in general in and out of uniform and two who don't see why they need the father's favor to qualify for the daughter's are Seth Honerkamp, civilian director of America House, and Chris Horn, groom at the riding stables of the town's old count, where only Lipizzan horses are trained.

The story is told by Jaeger, once with the proud German Africa corps, for two years a prisoner in Colorado, and now a fluent interpreter when the Americans want one and also a newsman. He had a world and it has vanished. He wonders what the Americans can do toward replacing it. He sympathizes with the local gamekeeper's complaint about poachers — maybe Germans, maybe Americans. He knows too well the incredible blows dealt his people, the ironic tricks played on them, by Russians, Americans, an Austrian upstart, or simply Fate. Despite his effort to remain aloof, he falls in love with Catherine.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

New books to interest every type of reader arrive each week at the Ouachita Parish Public Library. "The Edge of Things" by William E. Barrett is a collection of four short stories. They are very timely and will interest all who are awake to the world of the present. Manning Coles is a master of the mystery story. His latest book is called "Concrete Crime" and will appeal to all who have enjoyed his previous works. "The Golden Scalpel" by Seymour Kern is a story about doctors which will interest some readers and repel others. "Thrush Green" by Miss Read is an English novel and will appeal to readers who enjoy stories about the small and snug life of a village. There are some very sympathetic characters and the book is well-written. A new western is "Bitter Water" by Thomas Thompson. It has a conventional setting, but is very well done. Two books of fiction of special interest to young adults are "Ride into Danger" by Henry Treece and "Starship Trooper" by Robert A. Heinlein. The latter is an excellent book of science fiction.

Career books giving factual information are always popular with young adults. We have two new ones this week. One is called "Find a Career in Photography" and was written by Robert H. Hood. The other is "News Reporters and What They Do" written by David Botter. If you are interested in either of these careers, I would advise you to read one of these books.

An old art, which is becoming popular again is that of fencing. The library has just added a new bok on the subject called "Right and Left Hand Fencing." If you are interested in mastering this sport, be sure to see this new book. The author is Leonardo F. Terrone.

Everyone who is interested in the present day scene will want to read "The Facts About Nixon" by William Costello. This is a careful analysis of the many facets of Nixon's career. It is written by the White House correspondent for the Mutual Broadcasting System, a man who knows Nixon intimately and who has done a very good piece of work. A very sensational book is "My Wicked, Wicked Ways" by Errol Flynn. Published posthumously, this autobiography of the playboy of the western world gives a graphic picture of his life, but does not explain it, probably because Flynn did not understand himself.

A very valuable new book is "Audio - Visual Instruction, Materials and Methods" by James W. Brown. It should be of utmost use to teachers and college students. A fascinating book written by Gustavus S. Paine is called "The Learned Men." This is the story of the scholars who together created a masterpiece, The King James version of the Bible. Little has been written on this subject before and it will interest many readers. A fine book for Lenten reading is "In His Likeness" by G. McLeod Bryan. It is a book which shows how people through the centuries have tried to live in a Christ like manner. Historians will read with interest "The Megalith Builders of Western Europe" written by Glyn Daniel. Little has been written on this subject before and there are many people today interested in the field of archeology. The books mentiond above show the wide range of material added to the Ouachita Parish Public Library in one week. We have books to interest all types of readers. If you are not using the library we invite you to come and examine our resources.

Man Willing, Hard Work, Brassy Job

YOUNG MAN WILLING. By Roy Doliner. Scribners. $3.50.

In a stage - door, Greenwich - Villagey sort of way, Ben Horne works hard through this brassy first novel to be a Bohemian and like it. He has one troublesome mistress, Maggi Clair, when the story opens, and he is thinking of turning her in for a new better - behaving model named Martha. Maggi would like to marry him partly for his money, but however willing the young man is in other respects to please her, he balks at this. And in view of her temper and flightiness, I don't blame him. But it is her untrammeled cave - girl characteristics that seem to account for her theater success and you can understand why he

Little Theatre Curtain Call

Our director, Mr. Ivan Uttal, is a busy person these days. He is casting and rehearsing the next production, a delightful comedy — Sabrina Fair. But at the same time, he is making preparations for the musical, which will follow Sabrina.

If you are a clothes designer and-or seamstress, we would like you to call Ivan right away. Plans are being made now for various committees. One committee will be the costume and designed committee. Another, set design. There are numerous persons in the Monroe area who have these talents, so please let us hear from you soon. A crew of twelve will be needed backstage. We need some strong men for moving sets. These committees and other details of the musical will be announced later.

A very good turnout at the playhouse for tryouts of Sabrina — those present were: Bill Cody, Ed Anders, Lamar Mullican, Bessie Mullican, V. P. Dalrymple, Almedia Babb, Charlene Currero, Vi Cotton, Dot Elmendorff, Gerry and Tavie Kenny and Mrs. Kenny, Curtis Rape, Betty Bandy, Joanne Lay, Rita Blanchard, W. J. Haddad, Sandra McMillan, Jackie Durham, Clarice Brown, Jerri Lynn Gilstrap, Jerry Lester and Pat Davis.

W. J. Haddad will be working as Stage Manager and assistant to the director.

The new Gallery Circle Theatre in New Orleans held a grand open house about two weeks ago. Ivan attended and said there were familiar faces to New Orleans theatre goers such as Monroe Lippman, Head of the Tulane Drama Department, Mr. George Hendricks, one of the advisors for the new theatre there and also to our own new Little Theatre. Mr. Hendricks is the technical director at the LePetit Theatre in New Orleans. Mr. Stocker Fontelieu, director of new Gallery Circle Theatre and former director of Monroe Little Theatre, is most pleased and very proud of his new theatre. He has opened with "Girls in 509".

Rehearsals are now underway for Sabrina and the opening will be announced soon.

Next week we'll give you a little history on the people in the up and coming Sabrina.

Charley Conerly of the New York Giants completed 113 of 194 passes for 1,706 yards in 1959 National Football League games. Fourteen of his passes went for touchdowns and only four were intercepted.

ACADEMY PERFORMANCE — Susan Hayward as Barbara Graham faces reporters as she is led to her cell in "I Want To Live", the motion picture performance that earned her an Academy Award for the best actress. The controversial, true movie opens today at the Delta Theatre.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: I have read in the New Testament many times where it tells about Jesus praying — such as Luke 11:1. What I cannot understand is, if Jesus were God, why did He pray? L.T.

ANSWER: This is one of the wonderful truths of the New Testament, and it is explained in Philippians 2:5-11. We learn there that Jesus during His earthly ministry had condescended to take the form of a man and to accept a position as one under authority, though He was actually equal with God. He did not cease to be equal with God because He did so (John 5:18). No doubt His praying was different from your praying and mine. After all, the primary purpose of prayer is fellowship. Asking for things in order to receive them from God is the secondary purpose of prayer.

Jesus would not have conducted Himself truly as man had He not made Himself dependent by His own voluntary choice. Being dependent, then, He would have to ask for things and rely upon a power outside of Himself. It does not mean He lacked that power, for Hebrews 2:14 says that Christ Himself partook of human nature in order that through death He might bring to naught him that had the power of death — that is, the devil. Prayer, then, for us ought to be the highest privilege granted to human beings.

Church Group Slates 2-Day Meeting Here

Monroe will be the site of the Church of God's third evangelism conference in the organization's history, it was announced today.

The meeting will open Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the church located at 800 Georgia, Monroe. Durthere will be meetings at 10 a.m. ing the two days of the session, and at 2 and 7:30 p.m.

The conference will be under the direction of Rev. J. H. Walker, state superintendent of the Church of God in Louisiana, and the Church of God's National Evangelism committee: Rev. Ray H. Hughes, chairman, state superintendent of Church of God in Maryland, Delaware, and D. C.; Rev. L. Luthur Turner, Detroit, Michigan, and Rev. Doyle Stanfield, Akron, Ohio.

Guest speaker will be Rev. Wade H. Horton, state supt. of the Church of God for the State of Mississippi. Minister at the local church said persons from Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas would attend the conference which will be open to the public.

James Methodist church, 916 Adams St., Monroe, tomorrow at 7:30 p.m.

The program which the quartet will present here is one of more than 200 appearances which it is making in 29 states during the fall, winter and spring of 1959-60. The African folk music and hymns which the quartet brings will be new to most of their audiences, as this is believed to be the first musical group from African Methodism to have visited the United States.

The tour of the Ambassadors Quartet in the United States is sponsored by the Rhodesia Annual Conference of the Methodist Church, which includes 42,000 Methodists in about 200 churches in Southern Rhodesia.

Negro Quartet From Africa Set To Perform Here

The Ambassadors Quartet, composed of four young Methodist Negro laymen from Southern Rhodesia, Africa, will present a program of African music at St.

TURNS TO HOME FRONT

NEW YORK (AP) — Martin Gabel frantically searched for two days for a replacement in the major role of "Sweet Love Remember'd" and then found the answer right in his own home.

The role went to his wife, Arlene Francis, whose last appearance on Broadway also was under her husband's aegis. This was in "Once More, With Feeling."

Originally starring in the new play was Margaret Sullavan, who died New Year's Day, in New Haven, Conn., where the play was having its pre - Broadway try-out.

Because of Miss Sullavan's death — and because of prior commitments by Miss Francis — the play's scheduled Broadway opening has been shifted from Feb. 4 to Feb. 15.

Biblical Film To Return Here

"Samson and Delilah," the renowned Cecil B. DeMille's spectacular dramatization of Judges 13-16 of the Holy Bible, opens Friday at the Jim Theatre. It still rates as one of the greatest motion pictures of all time.

The Paramount production, in Technicolor, stars Victor Mature and Hedy Lamarr in the title roles. Both give incomparable performances. As the bewitching Delilah whose voluptuous charms enslaved a man where mighty armies had failed, Miss Lamarr is unbelievably beautiful and a dramatic actress of fire and persuasion. Mature keeps Samson always within the bounds of credibility, never once succumbing to what would have been an excusable urge to overplay the strong man of Gaza. Whether falling prey to Delilah's seductive charms or performing prodigious feats of strength, Mature makes Samson live.

Other starring roles are brilliantly filled: George Sanders as the suave Saran of Gaza; Angela Lansbury as Delilah's beautiful sister; and Henry Wilcoxon as leader of the Philistine armies.

As everyone who has read the Bible knows, the story concerns a man's fight to free his enslaved people, his betrayal and his ultimate retribution. But words cannot accurately describe the color, pageantry and pulse-pounding excitement which build to the tremendous climactic scene of Samson's destruction of the Philistine Temple. So stirring and memorable is this and many other scenes that anyone who has already seen the picture will surely want to see it again, and those who for some strange reason might have missed the film, certainly will want to see it now.

McGuire Church Sets Six-Week Mission School

A six-week mission school is now in progress at McGuire Methodist Church on Arkansas Road in West Monroe, according to Rev. Don Wineinger, pastor.

During the course, the children and youth are holding studies on Africa and adults are studying Africa and other lands, Mrs. Charles Magown, conference leader, said.

A special film on the life and work of Dr. Albert Schweitzer has been scheduled for January 24, the announcement said. In addition, a direct telephone conversation with Dr. Harold Brewster who recently toured the mission fields has been scheduled for January 31.

Brotherhood Of Central Baptist To Hear Holiday

Mr. Robert Holliday, Assistant Pastor and Minister of Education of the First Methodist church in Monroe will speak to the Brotherhood of the Central Baptist church, 340 Lee Ave. at their regular monthly meeting on Monday, Januar, 19, 7:30 p.m.

Mr. Holliday was a member of the professional football team, the Los Angeles Rams, before coming to the First Methodist church.

Mr. Harold McGriff, president of the brotherhood invites the public to come and hear him. Refreshments will be served afterwards.

Ouachita Parish Baptist Women Slate Meeting

Mrs. George Albright, district president of Bastrop, will bring the devotional.

Mrs. H. L. Sampson, of Parkview Baptist Church, will be in charge of the memorial service. Following promotional plans by officers, the main message will be brought by Miss Jean Stamper, of the Rachael Sims Mission in New Orleans.

Lunch will be served by the hostess church, Mrs. Litton said.

TURNS TO ACTING

NEW YORK (AP) — Opera singer Lawrence Winters has turned actor to take the major role in Ketti Frings' dramatization of "The Long Dream," a novel by Richard Wright.

With a Mississippi locale, the play deals with a Negro who has amassed a considerable amount of money through his dealings with corrupt politicians.

Monroe Area Presbyterian Women To Meet

Presbyterian Women of the Monroe area will meet Thursday at the Ruston Church for a conference of the church's business women, according to Mrs. Bernice O'Neal, chairman of the conference.

Speakers will be Mrs. S. B. Hicks, president of the Red River Presbytery; the Rev. S. E. McFadden and the Rev. J. W. Lipscomb. Registration will begin at 5:30 p. m. and a supper will be served at 6:30. Activities for the evening will include a program beginning at 7:15

Other districts in the church's north Louisiana area will hold similar meetings at Delhi on January 22, Winnsboro, January 23; Springhill, January 26, and Natchitoches district at Smyrna Church, Grand Cane, January 27.

SURPASSES OLD MARK

NEW YORK (AP) — When "Our Town" originally opened on Broadway in 1938, it found an enthusiastic reception and subsequently was awarded a Pulitzer Prize. Starring Frank Craven and Martha Scott, it ran for 336 performances.

Its current off - Broadway production with Jane McArthur and Clinton Kimbrough as the young romantic leads and Richard Dysart as the narrator - stage manager, on Jan. 10 surpassed the original run, marking its 337th performance.

Niven, Gaynor Appearing In Spicy Comedy

"Happy Anniversary," opening today at the Paramount Theatre through United Artists release, is a frank and funny exploration of a subject which most married couples — including the one in the film — try to shove under the carpet when the kiddies (or the in-laws) are around: whether or not they were intimate before the wedding bells rang out.

Adapted from the spicy, sexy, occasionally rowdy Broadway comedy hit by Joseph Fields and Jerome Chodorov, "Happy Anniversary" stars David Niven and Mitzi Gaynor as the couple abovementioned, and co-stars Carl Reiner, Loring Smith, Monique Van Vooren and Phyllis Povah. The large, featured cast is headed by Elizabeth Wilson, Patty Duke and Kevin Coughlin.

A Fields Productions presentation, "Happy Anniversay" was produced by Ralph Fields and directed by David Miller. Joseph Fields and Jerome Chodorov wrote the script in an adaptation of their own play "Anniversary Waltz."

Niven, who last year won his first Oscar for his work in "Separate Tables," is one of Hollywood's wittiest men and deftest performers in that most difficult of all acting genres, light comedy. The son of a British general, Niven landed in Hollywood accidentally a couple of decades ago, after a career that included such oddly mated professions as lumberjacking, whisky-selling, delivering packages for a Chinese laundry and running a pony racetrack.

Mitzi Gaynor, at 27, plays the role of a 32-year-old woman, a bit of precocity which has characterized her career from the start. For example, she was only thirteen (and said she was sixteen) when she landed a leading role in the musical "Music in My Heart," and not much older than that when she was starred in "The Great Waltz." She later appeared in such pictures as "Anything Goes" with Bing Crosby, "The Joker is Wild" with Frank Sinatra, and "Les Girls." Her triumph was complete when she was chosen for the role of nurse Nellie Forbush in the screen version of "South Pacific," followed by her assignment in "Happy Anniversary."

OUT OF TOWN TRIALS

NEW YORK (AP) — Out of town engagements have started for "Motel" and "Roman Candle," with "Motel" unveiling in Boston and "Roman Candle" in Wilmington, Del.

Siobhan McKenna, Myron McCormick and Vicki Cummings star in "Motel."

"Roman Candle" stars Robert Sterling, Inger Stevens and Julia Meade.

If Murder Trial Can Have Class, Finch Case Does

EDITORS NOTE: UPI roving correspondent Jack V. Fox is a veteran of many court room trials. In this dispatch, Fox gives his impressions of the current murder trial of Dr. Bernard Finch and Carole Tregoff.

By JACK V. FOX
United Press International

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — If a murder trial can be said to have class, the trial of Dr. Bernard Finch and Carole Tregoff has it in oversupply.

The two are accused of plotting the "accidental murder" of the doctor's wife. When she inconveniently resisted — the state says— the doctor had to shoot her in the back as she fled. Finch will attempt to show the fatal injury was an accident.

That and the husband-mistress-wife triangle are fairly cut and dried so far as murder trials go. But there the cliches end. Consider:

Dr. Finch played tennis. But not the lob-it-over-the-net kind. He was so good he won the last tournament at Charlie Farrell's fabulous Racquet Club in the desert resort of Palm Springs. Farrell says Finch has sent word he hopes the "notoriety" won't prevent his playing there again.

The car Mrs. Barbara Jean Finch drove to the scene of the slaying was not just any old car. It was a Chrysler convertible with a red body and black top.

PIXIEISH TO BEAUTIFUL

All the women in the case so far range from pixieish to beautiful. Carole Tregoff is a red-head who carries her chin high in the manner she learned as a model. She is far more striking than her pictures, has a beautiful profile. Her large-boned figure has put on more than 20 pounds as a result of inactivity and the pasty jail menu.

Mrs. Finch was a stunner. She had trim long legs nicely browned from her own tennis. She was was very dark-haired and looked particularly fetching in the white sheath cocktail dress she wore to the Los Angeles West Side Tennis Club with another man the night of her death.

Finch's wealth has been estimated at $750,000. That is probably considerably too high. The figure comes from a divorce action by his wife seeking a big share of community property under California law. He estimated his income at $20,000 a year and that is probably far too low. He was a major shareowner in the new West Covina medical center.

Their house is a sight to bring the envious sigh. Perched on a range of hills overlooking the San Gabriel Valley, it has a swimming pool as big as the one in the YMCA in St. Joseph, Mo. Three has been much talk to the houe's lanai — which to most of us is a sunporch.

200-FOOT CLIFF

You have to see the cliff falling away from the driveway to understand what the state means when it says Finch intended to shove his wife and their governess over it in the car. When the jury was taken to the scene, they peeked very gingerly over the rim down into a ravine 200 feet below.

The maid, Marie Anne Lidholm, makes you appreciate why Steven Rockefeller brought home a Scandinavian bride. Her smile-provoking Swedish accent seemed to take the menace out of her story of finding Finch standing over his wife in the garage and then chasing her into the night.

The lawyers live up to the setting. Finch's attorney is a tall gray haired man wielding horn-rimmed glasses who aspires to replace Jerry Giesler as the top criminal lawyer in Hollywood. He is devastating on cross - examination, charming in jury box manner.

All three of Carole's lawyers are from Giesler's stable. One is a would - be humorist named Rexford Eagan who refers to himself in football jargon as the "lonesome end" because he has had so little to do so far in the trial. He scrimmage will come.

Another is an unusually handsome man, Don Bringgold. It is he who stays almost constantly at Carole's side, comforting her when she weeps and listening to her asides during the trial. He confided last week that Carole is still very much in love with the surgeon — an presumably vice versa.

The two deputy district attorneys are Fred N. Whichello and Clifford Crail. They are a strange combination. Whichello is a fatherly looking man of great good cheer who chuckles and smiles continuously for no apparent reason. Crail sits back in a grouch with an apparent shoulder chip for all comers.

The jury has sensed the high drama of the occasion. One exasperating - appearing woman swathed in the mink immediately began taking the testimony down in a notebook and now all but a few of the men busily wield pencils during the most tedious detail. They will have a third volume of a big city "Peyton Place" if they keep it up.

Miss Tregoff speaks to virtually no one except her lawyers.

Finch reminds me in appearance of George Gobel. He is pleasant and intelligent looking.

It has not been particularly noted that Finch previously was married to the woman who is now the wife of Mrs. Finch's previous husband, Forrest Dougherty — if you can follow that. It was not exactly a wife trade. One couple was divorced before they met their future mates.

The one thing the trial is not is a "whodunit." There is no "bushy haired" intruder such as Dr. Samuel Sheppard evoked in his murder trial in Cleveland. The defense has offered previously to concede that Finch held the death gun.

The high point in the trial will come in about two weeks when Finch himself takes the stand.

Perhaps he has a reasonable explanation of how his wife could have been shot in a struggle for a gun she had.

But the sticking point may come when he is asked why, as a doctor bound by the Hippocratic Oath, he left her to die in the night while he went to Carole's apartment in Las Vegas.

And Carole will have to tell of waiting in the dark outside the home for Mrs. Finch, blowing up a pair of surgeon's gloves and playing with a dog to while away the time. That, she has said, is why pieces of rubber glove were found there.

She also must explain again why she carried the alleged "murder kit" attache case up the steep driveway to the home. Finch wanted a flashlight, she says, so she just brought the whole case— bullets, knife, rope, hypodermic syringes and all.

Major Building Work Here In Year Just Past

Eight - hundred and seventy-five new buildings were constructed in Monroe during 1959, at a cost of $7,279,514.08. Building Inspector William Hines called it a "new record in construction here."

Largest month for permits was June, when 101 permits were issued for construction worth $1,297,730.

The totals, by months, are: January, 54 permits, $315,954. February, 57, $383,385. March, 81, $579,788. April, 77, $734,167.

May, 78, $510,929.28. June, 101, $1,297,730. July, 97, $624,692. August 76, $806,462. September, 82, $716,622.80. October, 55, $419,073. November, 79, $674,936.

As usual, December was the low month for construction. Only 38 permits for buildings valued at $215,780 were issued.

MEAN THIEF

LARAMIE, Wyo (AP) —Folks around Laramie have their own idea as to who is the world's meanest man.

A 15-year-old boy who had polio when he was 8 and spent much of the last seven years in hospitals for surgery and treatment went on his first outing and hunting trip with his father.

His paralysis allowed him use of only one arm, but he got his limit of three birds and put them in the family car.

Adventists Name Church Officers For Coming Year

Officers for 1960 at the Seventh Day Adventist Church, Oaklawn at Sandel Drive, Monroe, were announced today by J. H. Everett, church secretary.

Elected as elders were A. A. Perkins, Lea Facundus, Sr., Ray Purcell Jr.; as deacons: Huey Martin, J. H. Everett, deaconesses: Mrs. Leona Martin, Mrs. J. H. Everett and Mrs. Huey Martin.

Other officers elected were Mrs. O. Hatten, clerk; Mrs. Jack Lucas, treasurer; Mrs. J. S. Jameson, church organist and Mrs. A. A. Perkins, religious liberty secretary.

Huey Martin will serve as Sabbath School secretary.

SUPERINTENDENTS — Rev. L. C. Ashbrook, left, district superintendent for Assembly of God Churches in Louisiana, and Rev. G. W. Hardcastle and Robert E. Groggins of Arkansas and Oklahoma districts respectively, will speak here at seven-district conference of church. Host church will be Central Assembly of God, Hall at Calypso, Monroe. Conference opens tomorrow

PAUL MARTIN LOOKS 'EM OVER

This is reclassification year for Louisiana's high schools, but enrollment figures indicate only one school in the Monroe area will be making the jump to a higher class.

Advancement in a class is mandatory when certain enrollment figures are reached. No school can compete in athletics in a class below that which its enrollment warrants. A school may apply for admission to a higher class, however, and several are already competing in classes above their enrollment.

Unless some area school is planning to apply for advancement, such as St. Matthew's of Monroe did a couple of years ago, then the only area school that will advance by necessity is Dodson in Winn parish. Twenty other schools, mostly in south Louisiana, will advance.

A frequent argument heard in recent months concerned Neville of Monroe. There are those who thought Neville should be in triple-A from the way the Tigers, state double-A football champs, were blasting all opposition the past season. The 1959 Neville eleven could have whipped most of the triple-A teams in the state, and could have made it hot for the top two or three.

But Neville's enrollment of 367 boys for this school year (355 a year ago) is well below the required enrollment of 401 boys to be forced in to triple-A.

Triple-A schools of the Twin Cities are West Monroe with 691 boys this year, and Ouachita of Monroe with 567. Two-year enrollment figures for boys show West Monroe ranked thirteenth in the 28-team triple-A circuit with a 683 average and Ouachita eighteenth with an average of 562.

Who has the greatest enrollment? Two Shreveport school. Byrd and Fair Park. The two-year average for boys' enrollment shows Byrd tops with 1,106. Fair Park averaged 1,067. Istrouma of Baton Rouge, the state triple-A football champion, has 822 and a two-year average of 807.

Lake Charles High, 368 average; Bogalusa, 338 average; and Redemptorist of New Orleans, 360, are double-A enrollment schools playing triple-A athletics.

The double-A enrollemnt requirement for boys is from 201 to 400. Neville leads its class in enrollment. Two schools, Haynesville and Homer, play double-A ball at their own request although Haynesville's enrollment of boys (112 this year) actually rates Class A, and Homer is on the fringe between A and B. Homer had 100 boys a year ago and only 98 this year for an average of 99 for the two years.

The Class A circuit (116 to 200) has three teams of lower class enrollments among its members. St. Matthew's, a non-football school that has been concentrating on basketball lately, applied for Class A two years ago with only 60 boys in school. This year's enrollment shows 52 boys. St. Amant and Hanson Memorial also have less than 100 boys in school, but compete as Class A.

Class B schools enroll from 50 to 115 boys. Class C includes those schools with less than 50 boys enrolled. Smallest in male enrollment this year is Grand Cane with seven. Some of the smaller area schools and this year's enrollment of boys are Hico 15, Oak Ridge, 17, and Kelly, 18.

Football competition is not recognized below Class B, and any "C" schools with grid teams must compete in the higher class. The lone such representative in Northeast Louisiana is Waterproof. Start, with less enrollment than Waterproof, played football until the past season. Waterproof listed 43 boys for this school year. Start showed 39.

Area Class C schools competing in Class B although non-football schools are Dubach, Gibsland, Gilbert, Quitman, and Simsboro. Epps, Harrisonburg, Linville, Sikes.

Classification changes come in even years with average male enrollment in the high school grades for the two years determining class.

Enrollment figures used are those supplied T. H. Waters, commissioner of high school athletics, and made available to all school officials in preparation for the Louisiana High School Athletic Association meeting in Alexandria on March 25-26.

Veteran Jerry Barber Captures Leadership Of Yorba Linda Open

Jack Burke One Stroke Back At 138

YORBA LINDA, Calif. (AP)—Veteran Jerry Barber of Los Angeles took the lead in the $20,000 Yorba Linda Open Golf Tournament Saturday shooting a 70 for his second successive sub - par round and a mid-way mark of 137.

Barber, 43, a former regular on the tournament circuit but now primarily a teaching pro, toured the par 36-36—72 Yorbe Linda Country Club course in 35-35—70.

One stroke back was Jack Burke Jr., of Kiamesha Lake, N.Y., who four-putted the 11th green but still wound up with 68 for 138.

Tied at 139 were Julius Boros of Mid Pines, N.C., with a 72, and Harry Weetman, a five-time member of the British Ryder Cup team, with a 71.

Scores of 146 and under for 36 holes qualified for the final two rounds as the field was trimmed to 60 and ties.

Biggest shock was the failure of Gene Littler to survive the cut. Littler had 73-74—147. It was the first time he had failed to qualify since the Pensacola Open last March.

The day's lowest score was a sparkling 67, turned in by John Brodie, who divides his time between professional golf and professional football as a quarterback with the San Francisco 49ers.

Tony Lema, the handsome surprise leader in the first round with a 66, hit over two greens, lost a shot to a tractor cut on the 15th and wound up with a 75 for 141.

Tied at 140, three strokes off the pace, were Dow Finsterwald, winner of the Los Angeles Open last Tuesday, who had a 69; Don Fairfield, 71, and Lionel Hebert and Bo Wininger, with 72s.

Lionel's brother, Jay Hebert, was a casualty of the cut. He had a 74 for 147.

Tied at 141 were Lema, Brodie, Dave Ragan, Jim Ferrier, Doug Sanders and John Barnum.

Hardest luck man was Johnny Bulla of Phoenix, Ariz. Big John enjoyed a 70 Friday but followed with an 82.

Other big name players who trailed included Art Wall Jr., 73; Mike Souchak, 71; Arnold Palmer, 71, and Bob Goalby, 72, all in the 143 bracket.

The leaders:

Jerry Barber	67-70—137
Jack Burke Jr.	70-68—138
Julius Boros	67-72—139
Harry Weetman	68-71—139

BODY ENGLISH DOESN'T DO IT — Jack Burke uses body English in a vain attempt to sink a 15-foot putt on the seventh green yesterday during the second round of the Yorba Linda Open Tournament. The ball stopped just short of the cup and Jack got a par 4 on the hole. Burke shot a 68 yesterday and is second behind Jerry Barber in the tournament. At right on the green is Mike Souchak. Tigers, Rebels Swamped Again

LAKE CHARLES, La. (Special) — Neville and West Monroe took two more pastings from south Louisiana powers tonight, Neville falling to Sulphur, 61-33, and West Monroe losing to LaGrange, 66-33.

The two games completed a disasterous trip south for the invaders. Last night, Sulphur mauled West Monroe, 66-34, and LaGrange swamped Neville, 61-31.

Sulphur jumped into a 22-7 lead over Neville in the first quarter and coasted the rest of the way. LaGrange had West Monroe down, 17-5, after a quarter and run in subs for most of the game.

Durl Schultz led Sulphur with 17 points and Ed Nelson got 16. L. M. Welch put in 14 for the losing Tigers.

Jinks Welch scored 19 points for LaGrange in one half, then retired. Will Lawrence got 11. Larry Danna paced the Rebels with 10.

Forest Beats Irish, Takes Central Title

DELHI, La. (Special) — Undefeated Forest boys romped past St. Matthew's, 51-31, and Winnsboro handed Pioneer girls their first setback of the year, 39-31, here last night to win the annual Central High School cage tourney.

Lanky Larry Butler led the way with 22 points as Forest kept its season slate clean and drubbed the Irish for the second time this year. Buddy Embanato was high for Jim Mahoney's St. Matthew's quint with 12 points.

Playing without the services of high - scoring Mary Katherine Ross, Pioneer dropped its first verdict of the year to a strong Winnsboro sextet. Wilson put in 15 points to take scoring honors for Winnsboro and Virginia Stegall accounted for 14 for Pioneer.

Baskin's boys took third place by beating Winnsboro, 69-55. Jarrett led the way with 24 points while Sisk topped the losers with 18. In the girls' bracket Crowville grabbed consolation honors by defeating Mangham, 41-36. Pierce with 23 was high for Crowville and Johns hooped 27 for Mangham.

Mangham girls and Ogden boys were awarded sportsmanship trophies. Wilson of Winnsboro was selected the most valuable girl and Butler of Forest was the most valuable boy.

Girls named to all-tournament berths were Shirley Pierce, Crowville; Claudire Watson, Winnsboro, Virginia Stegall, Pioneer; Lanelle Waits, Pioneer; Donice Smith, Crowville and Joanne Hammons, Central.

Selected for the boys' all-tourney squad were Harold Kelly, Forest; Johnny Sisk, Winnsboro; John Varino, St. Matthew's; John Gray, Baskin and Don Gwin, Epps.

Bradley Deals Cincy Initial Defeat, 91-90

Cincinnati, the nation's No. 1 team, led 47-43 at halftime before Alpha Saunders, Bobby Joe Mason and Walker turned the tide for the Braves in the second half.

Robertson, who set a field house scoring record with his 45 points, had the ball and was pivoting for a shot when he stepped out of bounds.

Bradley thus avenged its only defeat this season, an 86-71 loss at Cincinnati. Bradley, ranked fourth nationally, has a 12-1 record and Cincinnati is 13-1.

Bradley's trio of Walker, Saunders and Mason more than offset Robertson's scoring spree. Walker scored 28 points, Saunders 22 and Mason 21.

It was Bradley's 31st consecutive victory on its home floor.

Bosox Receive Signed Pacts

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox Saturday received signed contracts from pitcher Dave Hillman and infielder Ray Webster. Hillman, a right-hander, was acquired from the Chicago Cubs in an inter - league trade for first baseman Dick Gernert. Webster came to the Sox in a trade with Cleveland for pitcher Leo Kiely.

BARELY MISSES RECORD

Thomas Clears Seven-Foot Mark

By BOB HOOBING

BOSTON (AP) — Incredible John Thomas easily sailed over the high jump bar at 7 feet, ½ inch Saturday night at the 34th Knights of Columbus track meet, his first competitive effort in nine months.

The 18-year-old Boston University student narrowly missed on three tries at 7-2¼, highest jump he ever attempted.

Thomas, who has not faced opposition since he hurt his feet in an elevator accident last March 27, cleared 7-½ on his first try. The height was only ¾ of an inch less than his world mark.

The public address announcer said that Thomas would try 7-1½ but later informed the Garden throng of 10,044 that because of the structure of the high jump equipment, the bar was set at 7-2¼.

On each of this three ties, this young space explored cleared the bar with his body, only to have the trailing foot knock off the slender piece of lumber.

Thomas cleared 6-2, 6-4, 6-6, 6-8, 6-10½ and his Boston record altitude of 7-½ without a miss.

"My timing has to be straight-end out," Thomas shrugged when asked if he thought he could make the 7-2¼.

"Don't worry, he'll make it next week," said runner-up George Dennis who stayed with Thomas as far as 6-10½.

Phil Coleman called on a reserve spurt to catch Ed Moran and win the mile in 4 minutes, 7 seconds.

The veteran Chicago distance runner surrendered his lead to Moran at the start of the final lap but overhauled him a scant 15 yards from the finish.

As Coleman broke the tape he was too strides ahead od Moran, collegiate mile and half king from the New York Athletic Club. Coleman's time was the second fastest in this meet, bettered only by Ron Delany's 4:05 in 1958.

Coleman, the only American to win the K. of C. mile since Fred Wilt in 1953, also turned the trick in 1957.

A member of the U.S. Olympic squad in '56, Coleman took over the pace at the end of the first lap. Moran moved from last in a tight five-man field on the third lap to hang right on Coleman's heels.

BEATS LAKESHORE, 61-20

Frenchie's Wins Merchant's Title

Favored Frenchie's woman-handled Lakeshore Washomatic, 61-20, in the championship game here Saturday night to grab first place honors in the second annual all-girls' Merchant's Basketball Tournament.

Pine Sol Queens of Jackson, Miss., downed Calhoun, 52-44, to take third place.

Slender Linda Thompson, playing only three quarters, had a busy night with 29 points to lead the rout over Fuzzy Huff's host Lakeshore sextet. Miss Thompson, hitting in clusters of three points in the first period, staked Frenchie's to a 15-6 lead and the champs has it easy from that point on.

Lakeshore managed to score six points in each quarter except the third when they collected only one field goal.

Katherine Tucker followed Miss Thompson's high-scoring effort with 18 points while Cathy Aarant dumped in 11 for the losers.

Jones popped the nets for 23 points in the Jackson victory over Calhoun for third place. Betty Jarrett scofed 20 points to take scoring honors for Calhoun.

With former Odgen all-stater Linda Thompson leading the way, Frenchie's smothered Barksdale, 67-20, and moved past Pine Sol, 54-42, to gain the finals. Miss Thompson dropped in 17 points in each game.

Against Barksdale, the Twin City entry built up a 37-5 lead at the half and coasted on into victory. Katherine Tucker and Annette Ford aided in the rout of Barksdale with 15 points apiece.

Harden and Landry with six each were high for the Air Force sextet.

Frenchie's commanded a 27-16 advantage at intermission against the Jackson entry and held the margin throughout the remainder of the game. Thompson's 17 points took scoring honors for the winners while Jones tossed in 26 for the Queens.

Tourney host Lakeshore whipped Calhoun in its opener, 33-26. Jackie McGuffie scored 13 points to pace the victory while Cathy Aarant put in 11 counters. Betty Jarrett headed the losing effort with 16 points.

Calhoun earned a spot in the consolation game by defeating Barksdale, 36-24, in a battle of losers. Jarrett was again high for Calhoun with 20 points while Landry, Harden and Joyce scored 7 points each for Barksdale.

Calhoun led at halftime, 22-16.

The most valuable player trophy went to June Ross of Lakeshore and Jennie Jones was awarded the best sportsmanship trophy.

All - tournament team members were Katherine Tucker, Maxine Sikes and Linda Thompson of Frenchie's, Betty Jarrett of Calhoun, Myrt Jones and Red Boone of Pine Sol and Patsy King and Betty Huff of Lakeshore.

Jefferson, Ouachita Win At Woodlawn

Jefferson downed Sterlington, 34-24, with Courson pacing the winners and English leading Sterlington. Ouachita boys whipped Jefferson, 33-26, as Slusher scored 12 points. Canal got 19 for the losers.

Consolation scores were West Monroe girls 22, Woodlawn 16, and West Monroe boys 32, Downsville 17. High scorers were West Monroe girls' Patton 16, Woodlawn's Kennedy and Wheelis 6, West Monroe boys' Robinson 9 and Downsville's Williams 10.

Girls' semi-final results were Jefferson 46-6 over Woodlawn and Sterlington over West Monroe in a double overtime, 21-19. High scores were Jefferson's Courson 26, Woodlawn's Kennedy and Wheelis 3, Sterlington's Swayze 13 and West Monroe's Patton 11.

In the boys' semi-finals, Ouachita beat Downsville, 36-21, and Jefferson topped West Monroe, 16-14. Leading scorers were Ouachita's Jones 14, Downsville's Williams 12, Jefferson's Factor 8 and West Monroe's Aulds 4.

All-tournament girls were Courson and Varnado of Jefferson, English and Puckett of Sterlington and Woodlawn's Varnado. All-tourney boys were Canal and Factor of Jefferson, Slusher and Jones of Ouachita and Williams of West Monroe.

Sportsmanship trophies were to Jefferson boys and Sterlington girls.

Nash Sparks Lake Charles To Meet Win

JONESBORO, La. (Special) — All-state Charles Nash's brilliant individual performance paced Lake Charles boys to an 81-63 victory over Castor in the finals of the Jonesboro-Hodge Tournament here last night.

Nash scored 43 points, 26 of them in the first half, to run his scoring total for three games to 111 points. Ronnie Daniels got 19 for Castor.

In an afternoon game, Arcadia beat Quitman, 53-46, with Bowman scoring 14. Bobby Thrift got 18 for Quitman.

Lake Charles stopped Jonesboro- Hodge, 77-65, with Nash scoring 35. Chuck McClain got 22 for Lake Charles.

Neal Retained As GW Aide

WASHINGTON (AP) — Coach Bill Elias Saturday selected Bill Neal as his holdover assistant on George Washingtons football staff.

Neal was an aide to former Coach Bo Sherman, and a GW spokesman said he would be the only assistant retained on a full-time basis. Elias has yet to name two other year-round assistants and additional parttime helpers.

A former GW guard, the 28-year-old Neal will be in charge of the Colonial freshmen and serve as head scout.

Most New Grid Coaches Improved Marks In 1959

NEW YORK (AP) — Of the 19 college football coaches who took over new jobs last fall, 12 were able to improve on the won-lost records of the men they replaced.

And of the seven who failed to improve on the 1958 marks, only three finished below the .500 mark.

Over-all, the 19 rolled up 100-4 mark. This was a shade below the 80-84-6 record notched in 1958 by the men they succeeded.

Arizona University, Baylor, Coast Guard, Colgate, Detroit, Drake, Marquette, Maryland, Michigan, UCLA and Utah State all finished with better records in 1959 than in 1958.

Three of the new coaches—Jim Miller at Detroit, Wayne Hardin at Navy and Bill Barnes at UCLA — had winning seasons. Miller and Barnes bettered 1958 records. Detroit was 4-4-1 under Wally Fromhart in '58 and UCLA a mediocre 3-6-1 under George Dickerson. Navy fell a shade in 1959 from 6-3 to 5-4-1.

Navy's biggest problem was one of getting back in the groove after a 20-7 upset by Southern Methodist in the season's third game. The Middies didn't hit their peak again until clobbering Army 43-12 in the final game.

UCLA had a better line and greater over-all speed, depth and strength than did the 1958 team, and that helped Barnes. Miller's Detroit eleven matured as expected and had a great individual effort from halfback Bruce Maher.

Five of the new coaches finished 1959 all even. Colorado's Sonny Grandelius, Tom Nugent at Maryland, Jim Hickey at North Carolina and Notre Dame's Joe Kuharich each had a 5-5 record. Dale Hall finished with a 4-4-1 mark at Army.

Of these, only Nugent improved on his school's '58 mark. Maryland was 4-6 the previous year.

Grandelius had to start pretty much from scratch at Colorado after the school graduated most of a team that finished with a 6-4 record. Hickey was called on by North Carolina suddenly, after Jim Tatum died in mid-summer. After losing the first two games with "Jim Tatum's team," Hickey shook up the Tar Heels and emerged with "Jim Hickey's team" that won its next two and improved performance-wise during the season.

Kuharich, who took over for the fired Terry Brennan at Notre Dame, had only 11 lettermen and a bunch of untried sophs. He had no experienced tackles and fullbacks, but managed to beat Big Ten power Iowa and powerful Southern California to close out the season. The Irish had been 6-4 the previous year.

Hall, who took over from Earl (Red) Blaik, never had a whole team and key injuries to the brilliant halfback Bob Anderson and a horrendous backfield personnel problem proved his downfall.

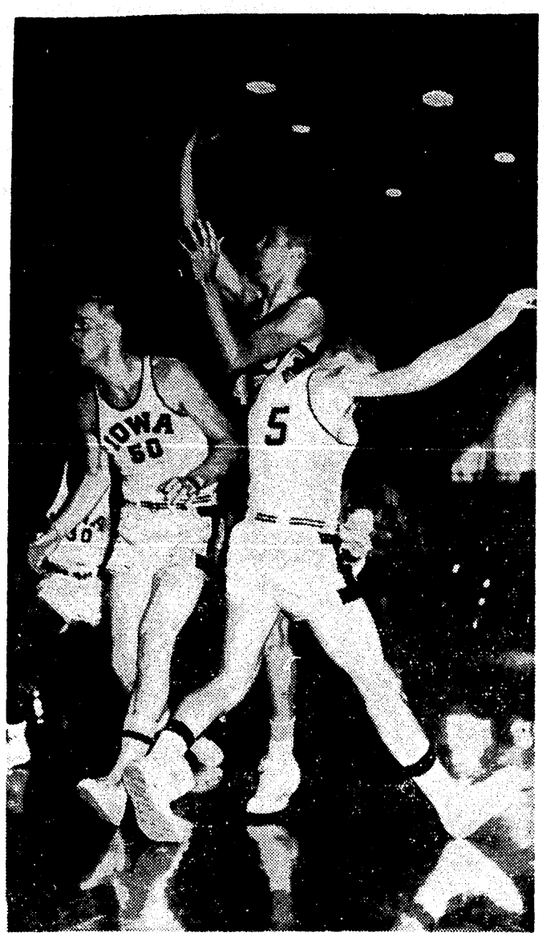
Bridgers brought Baylor to 4-6 after a 3-7, 1958 mark, while Blackbourne won the last three games for a 3-7 record. The Warriors were 2-7-1 in '58. Kelley had a 2-7 mark at Colgate, 1-8 the previous year.

Utah State, under Ralston, went from 3-7 to 4-6. Graham had a 3-4 mark at Coast Guard, bettering the 2-4-1 1958 mark.

Michigan took a big jump to 4-5 under Bump Elliott after a disastrous 2-6-1 season the previous year. Drake (2-6), under Tommy O'Connell for the first time, had one less loss and played one less game. Arizona gained to 4-6 under Jim LaRue after a 3-7 season in '58.



WHERE'D IT GO? — Pete Schebler (50) and Dave Maher (5) of Iowa seem to have lost track of the ball in this play early in a game with Purdue yesterday. Terry Dischinger (43), Purdue's 6-7 forward, sneaks a shot. Iowa won, 63-54. (AP Wirephoto)

ANNUAL MEETING

New Franchise Main NBA Topic

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The National Basketball Assn. holds its annual meeting here Thursday with the new franchise in Chicago and playoff details the prime business.

"We'll decide when to hold a meeting to iron out details of alloting players to Chicago," Maurice Podoloff, NBA president, declared Saturday.

"And we'll finish up establishing a schedule for the playoffs," he added. "Other than that there isn't a great deal of business I know of right now."

Chicago was granted a franchise in the Western Division last September. According to Podoloff, the team will be ready to operate next year. The franchise is headed by Max Winter, former general manager and part owner of the Minneapolis Lakers.

Both the Western and Eastern Divisions now have four teams each. Asked about scheduling problems with five teams, Podoloff said:

"It won't be quite as easy but it can be managed."

Podoloff said he didn't expect any other expansion matters to come up.

He added that Pittsburgh will not be considered for a franchise at this time but possibly in the future.

"There was some interest two or three years ago in Piltsburgh," the NBA president explained, "but as of late there is no active interest."

The NBA playoffs will be the same as last year, Podoloff said. The No. 2 and 3 teams in each division will meet in the best-of-3 series. Winners will play the No. 1 club in best-of-7 series. Then the two division finalists will meet for the world championship in a best-of-7. Boston captured the crown last year.

Meanwhile, Tom Heinsohn of Boston, a member of the NBA Players Assn. Committee, disclosed the committee and player representaitves of all eight teams will gather here just before the NBA meetings.

Other members of the committee are Dolph Schayes of Syracuse and Richie Guerin of New York.

Heinsohn said at the present time there is no active leader of the players association but one probably will be elected.

He added the players expect to meet with Podoloff and the league owners to discuss a pension program.

"We feel the owners are 100 per cent for it, and we only need to show them it can work to get it accepted," Heinsohn asserted. "We haven't worked out all the mechanics yet. Perhaps we'll suggest another all-star game to raise the money needed for the program."

Heinsohn said several other matters will be presented to the owners but he did not elaborate specifically.

He added he knows of no grievances although some may be brought up by representatives of the various clubs.

The 10th annual All-Star Game will be played Friday night in Convention Hall.

PENDER CHALLENGER

Sugar To Defend Title This Week

BOSTON (AP) — Aging Sugar Ray Robinson, who has held the middleweight championship of the world more times than any other man in history, is scheduled to defend his version of that title against Paul Pender Friday night.

The fight, which will be nationally televised (NBC), is for the title that is recognized only in Massachusetts and New York. Gene Fullmer, West Jordan, Utah, is recognized in the other 48 states and by the National Boxing Assn.

Pender, a part-time fireman from Brookline, Mass., is rated No. 10 in the latest NBA list of challengers. He is generally considered a boxer more than a puncher, and could give the 39-year-old Robinson trouble if he is able to force the fight into the late rounds.

But the Boston odds favor the dapper champion, five-time holder of the title, by 2-1 at the latest quotation.

And there are indications that Sugar Ray may be looking past his Friday test to a possible bout with Fullmer, which would clear the title in the mixed-up middleweight standings.

Robinson said earlier that he would like to fight the NBA 160-pound boss, and Fullmer's manager, Marv Jenson, said last week such a fight is "in the planning stage."

Robinson, with an entourage of about 40—butlers, barbers, valets, golf pros, etc.—is scheduled to arrive in Boston Sunday.

Monday he will begin workouts in a downtown Boston department store window. Collections from by-standers will go to the March of Dimes.

Reports from his training camp in New York indicate Sugar Ray probably is looking for a quick knockout. He has been working at a fast pace, but calling off his sparring sessions after only three or four rounds.

After his last bout, a second-round TKO of light-heavy Bob Young, Robinson said he felt he had a lot of work to do before he would be ready to go 15 rounds.

The Sugarman knocked Young down four times before the fight was stopped, but Robinson said it was a move of desperation. He said the little-known Providence, R.I., fighter hurt him in the first round and he had to get it over with in a hurry.

That fight, two months ago, was Robinson's first in about 17 months. It was for that inactivity that the NBA stripped him of the NBA title.

Pender, who has won 10 straight in a comeback since trouble with brittle hands, has enlisted Young as his latest sparring partner. Four earlier ones quit on him, largely because of the punishment they were taking.

Stadium Planned In St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Pledges totaling $15,775,000 have been made toward the 20 million dollar goal in equity capital for the downtown project that will have a 55,000-seat stadium as its centerpiece.

This was announced Saturday by Civic Center Redevelopment Corp. Also in the 75 acre project will be a motel, garage, office buildings, a bowling alley and a restaurant.

Progress on the stadium project is said to be the key factor in whether St. Louis receives a franchise in the National Football League. Target date for opening of the stadium is 1964.

Winnfield, Atlanta Win Meet Crowns

WINNFIELD, La. (Special) — Atlanta girls and Winnfield boys each took two-point decisions to win the championships in the annual Winnfield Invitational Tournament here last night.

Atlanta edged Winnfield girls, 31-29, and the local boys squeezed by Eros, 67-65.

Anna Bandy got 14 points and Maurin Shelton 12 for Atlanta while Mary Beth Shaw paced Winnfield with 14 and Patsy Finney contributed 10.

Don Nicklas came off the bench to score 17 points and pace Winnfield boys to victory. Gary Carter got 16 and Jerry Smith 15 for the winners. Posnell led Eros with 21, Hayden got 18 and Bunn 16.

Selected on the girls' all-tournament team were guards Jean Bandy, Atlanta, Shirley Key, Calvin, and Shirley Scott, Winnfield, and forwards Lou Ann Simons, Chatham, Mary Beth Shaw, Winnfield and Maurin Shelton, Atlanta.

Boy all-stars were Carter of Winnfield, Silmon of Farmerville, Bunn of Eros, Tumbs of Weston and Mixon of Atlanta.

Eros boys beat Farmerville 43 to 35. Curtiss Bunn was high with 16 for the winners and Joe Tettleton got 13 for Farmerville.

In the other boys semi-finals scrap Winnfield sneaked past Weston, 54 to 48. Gary Carter got 23 for Winnfield and Gus Toombs netted 16 for Weston.

Swede Cage Team Leaves; AAU Blasted

Ake Nilsson, Swedish basketball federation president, said he had lodged a protest with the International Amateur Basketball Federation. He also asks that his team be reimbursed $5,000. He said the team borrowed $6,000 and received $30 from a Chicago game, and $150 from three in Canada.

The AAU refused to let the Swedes play its U.S. schedule on the grounds that a promoter and coach had made arrangements for the tour instead of going through international amateur channels.

Nilsson and team members were critical of Dan Ferris, honorary the tour instead of going through president of the AAU Nilsson said, "We are at a loss as to why the AAU took this decision," adding:

"It was an incredible one and we do not understand the motives. We cannot accept this decision without protest. Mr. Ferris is a kind old man, but he was absolutely unmoved by our arguments."

Howard Wins Grid Letter At Abilene College

During the 1959 season Howard carried the ball 13 times for 76 yards and a 4.2 average and was credited with 13 tackles and one assist on defense.

Nineteen lettermen are expected to return for the 1960 campaign.

9 Reds In Fold

CINCINNATI (AP)—Five more Cincinnati Reds have signed for the 1960 season, bringing to nine the number under contract, the Reds announced Saturday night.

The most recent contract signers are infielders Willie Jones and Cliff Cook, and pitchers Jim O'Toole, Marv Fodor and Jim Maloney.

Van Brocklin May Not Play In Pro Bowl

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Norm Van Brocklin, who was to quarterback the East in Sunday's pro bowl game, is down with the flu.

Bobby Layne of the Pittsburgh Steelers was named to replace the old pro from the Philadelphia Eagles if he can't make the game.

Also hit by the flu was another East starter—offensive guard Jim Ray Smith. It's doubtful he'll play, either.

Ernie Stautner, normally a defensive regular with the Steelers, was named to replace Smith.

The two key illnesses are expected to make the underdog East team a little more so. The West was favored by 3½ points before Van Brocklin and Smith went on the sick list.

Van Brocklin and Smith were the only players on either team who missed Saturday's workouts. A flu epidemic has been sweeping Southern California and much of the West. Coaches for both teams in the charity classic said everyone else looked tip top.

A crowd of more than 50,000 is expected at Memorial Coliseum. Bright, sunny weather is predicted, with the temperature in the low 60s.

2nd Benefit Wrestling Show Slated

JONESVILLE, La. (Special) — A second March of Dimes benefit wrestling event has been scheduled in Jonesville by popular demand. Set for Monday, January 18, at 8:15 p.m., the event will feature two 15-minute preliminary matches and a 90-minute two out of three falls 4 - man tag team.

The first preliminary will pit Billy Starr of St. Louis, Mo. against the Wild Louisiana Cajun from the swamps of Lafourche Parish.

Louisiana March of Dimes Champion Wrestler Phil Brummett of Alexandria will match wits with Jack Snow, Little Rock, Ark. for the second preliminary.

The main event will be a 4-man tag team featuring Brummett and Starr vs. Snow and the Cajun.

In last Monday nights wrestling event, Sonny Champlin, Jonesville businessman, defeated Jac Hobert, Ripley, Tenn. in 7 minutes of a 15 minute one fall event. Champlin conquered his opponent with an arm stretch.

In the same event Brummett defeated the Cajun and Snow won over Starr. Both matches were one hour time limit, two out of three fall events.

GUNSEL TOP CANDIDATE

New President, Expansion Head NFL Meeting Agenda

By RALP BERNSTEIN

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The National Football League opens one of its important meetings in history at Miami Beach Wednesday with election of a commissioner and the vital problem of expansion heading the agenda.

Election of a commissioner to succeed the late Bert Bell probably will be the first order of business. Bell died last Oct. 11.

The battle over expansion between the forces of Washington owner George Preston Marshall and Chicago Bears' owner George Halas figures to come later with a permanent commissioner on deck to arbitrate.

Of many names mentioned in recent weeks as possible successors to the flamboyant Bell, present acting commissioner Austin H. Gunsel seems to lead the field. Gunel, according to a number of owners, has a lot going for him including competent operation during his brief tenure as acting boss and a lack of controversary surrounding the 50-year-old former FBI agent.

Others expected to be given some consideration include Edwin P. Anderson, president of the Detroit Lions; Don Kellett, general manager of the Baltimore Colts; Halas and Marshall; Joe Donoghue, vice president of the Philadelphia Eagles; Paul Brown, coach-general manager of Cleveland; former Army Coach Earl Blaik; Paul Schissler, Los Angeand Atty. Marshall Leahy of San Francisco.

Halas and Donoghue have said flatly they don't want the job. Marshall would take it if the owners insisted. Anderson is an avowed candidate. Kellett also probably would accept. Brown has been noncommittal. The others appear to have little chance on the premise league owners want someone from within the ranks. It takes nine of 12 votes to elect a commissioner.

The subject of expansion seems sure to produce fireworks. Marshall, determined opponent of any effort to increase the 12 - team league to 13 or 14 teams, already is in Miami and last week fired the first shot in the battle.

He said NFL expansonists are only trying to destroy the new American Football League. He promised to carry the issue to court if necessary. He feels expansion now will leave the league wide open for congressional monopoly charges.

Halas, like Marshall a veteran pro football executive, is in the opposite corner and according to an informal vote in Philadelphia after Bell's funeral, has the owners with him. The Chicago owner would admit Dallas and Minneapolis-St. Paul to the NFL. Dallas and Minneapolis-St. Paul have put up the $25,000 deposit required with an application.

Other cities seeking a franchise are St. Louis and Miami.

Unless Marshall can convince his colleagues of his viewpoint, or at least get two other clubs on his side, expansion appears likely to be approved. Under the present constitutional rule it takes a unanimous vote to expand. But Halas is prepared to propose an amendment which would reduce this to 10-12ths. It takes 10-12ths to pass an amendment.

Other problems scheduled to come before the meeting include proposed playing rules changes, television and radio, proposed change in the date of the player draft, schedules, the congressional investgation into pro sports, the player limit, increase of the minimum game guarantees, and a report on the player pension plan.

DISAGREEMENT AT BUFFALO

Squabble Rocks Continental Loop

By TOM BENTON

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—An apparent agreement to disagree among Buffalo baseball interests had Buffalo's hopes for the eighth franchise in the Continental League very nearly hung up on a reef Friday.

Reginald B. Taylor, the moneyman in Buffalo's baseball picture, came back to town after a two-week absence to find the air thick with charges and countercharges.

Taylor said it was his understanding that he was to be named chairman of the board of the Buffalo baseball club and that he would handle the financial details of the proposed new league franchise.

Branch Rickey, Continental League president, said that was his understanding, too. He said he was given this word by John C. Stigmeier, president of the company that operates Bufalo's international League Bisons.

But Stiglmeier said that was impossible since there was no such position as chairman of the board.

To add to the confusion, Continental League founder Bill Shea charged the whole thing was an undercover effort by the major leagues to sandbag the continental.

And the heretofore orderly process of moving the Bisons from 14,000-seat Offerman Stadium to 40,000-seat Civic Stadium in the spring was suddenly upset by Sportservice, Ind., the national arena and stadium concession firm that owns Offermann Stadium. The company said it would fight the condemnation of Offermann Stadium, tabbed by the city for a school site.

Now Mayor Frank A. Sedita has stepped into the picture. He has called a public meeting for next Wednesday and invited everybody he could think of—Taylor, Stiglemeier, the Bison board of directors, Rickey, Shea, Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick and anybody else interested.

All hands agree that the present club, with its nearly 4,000 stockholders, must be the foundation of a Continental League franchise. To begin with, it has nearly half a million dollars in assets and is the most successful operation in all the minor leagues. In addition, it probably will be securely ensconced in Civic Stadium by the time the new league gets under way.

Taylor, whose financial interests are rooted deep in the worlds of banking and industry, says that preliminary plans for financing have been worked out.

Stiglmeier says he'll call a meeting of the Bisons directors when he sees the plans in writing. The board can decide if it wants to call a stockholders meeting and create a chairman's job for Taylor.

Says Stiglmeier: "I am not going to be rushed into doing something we may regret."

Says Taylor: "If they don't want me to run the show . . . to make the move to big-league ball here, I'll step aside."

Says Rickey: "We can by-pass Buffalo. We don't want to do that, but time is pressing."

Says Shea: "vg" if Taylor bows out of the Bufalo picture, then Buffalo is dead as far as we're concerned."

Says Mayor Sedita: "I'm sick and tired of all this talk.

On-And-On Sets Hialeah Track Record

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — On-and-On sped a mile and an eighth in 1:46 3-5 Friday to win the $63,500 Tropical Park Handicap and set a track record for the distance in the closing feature of Tropical Park.

Hialeah opens Saturday for 40 days, featuring the $25,000 added Royal Poinciana Handicap.

On-and-On, owned by Calumet Farm and carrying 119 pounds including jockey Steve Brooks, won by two lengths with L. P. Guy's Pointer second and Modan Stable's Stratmat third in a field of 12.

The Calumet 4-year-old, a son of Nasrullah out of Two Lea, was second until they turned into the stretch. Then he moved up to take the winner's purse of $40,175.

Frank C. Rand's St. Amour 2nd, closing out a brilliant career, got up in the final strides to take fourth money, followed in order by Nobel Sel, Easy Spur, Mariners Guide, One-Eyed King, Open View, Pensilvania 3rd, Master Palynch and Verdi.

Fractional times were :22 2-5, :45 2-5, 1:09 and 1:33 3-5. The time of 1:46 3-5 shattered the track record of 1:47 2-5 set Christmas Day by Stratmat in winning the Christmas Handicap. The world's record for the distance is 1:46 2-5 set by Bug Brush at Santa Anita last February.

On-and-On, favorite with the closing day crowd of 12,337, paid $5.80 $3.90 and $2.90. Pointer paid $22.80 and $9.40, Stratmat $3.40. Easy Spur carried top weight of 122 pound.

Tropical's closing day handle was $1,215,825 and gives the track a total of $36,019,353, a gain of .5 per cent in the parimutuel department. Attendance totaled 415,098, an increase of 6.4 per cent over the 1958-59 season.

Yugoslavia Bows Out Of Winter Olympic Games

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (AP)—Yugoslavia bowed out of the 1960 Winter Olympics Friday. Yugoslav Olympic officials apparently felt their athletes would not make a good showing.

"As our athletes could not achieve sufficient sports results we cancel or participation in Winter Games," the Yugoslavian National Olympic Committee cabled the 1960 Games organizing committee.

Yugoslavia had planned to enter the men's and ladies' Alpine and cross country ski competition and ski jumping.

Losing Yugoslavia brought the number of competing nations for the Feb. 18-28 games to 33.

Earlier in the week Romania was told it could not compete because of its failure to make the Dec. 24 deadline for submitting a list of events it wished to enter.

32 Techmen To Receive Grid Letters

RUSTON, La. (Special) — Thirty-two members of Louisiana Tech's championship football team of 1959 have been awarded letters, reports Joe Aillet, Tech athletic director and head coach.

Selected to receive letters from the Bulldog team that won the Gulf States Conference title with a perfect 5-0 record and which won nine of 10 games during last season were six seniors, 15 juniors, seven sophomores and four freshmen.

Quarterbacks: Taylor McNeel, Pineville; Johnny Hudson, Minden; Mickey Slaughter, Alexandria.

Halfbacks: Jack Howard, Sulphur; J. W. Slack, Bossier City; Jack Lestage, Lake Charles; Paul Hynes, Sulphur; David Williamson, El Dorado, Ark.; Herman Farless, Vivian.

Fullbacks: Max Rudd, Minden; B. K. Miller, Sicily Island; Wayne Parker, Minden; David Stone, Springhill.

3 NE Bowling Teams To Meet To Decide Title

Three Northeast State College health and physical education class teams will meet in a roll off to decide the school bowling championship.

The Termites took first place honors in the Monday-Wednesday League, the Black Hawks triumphed in the Nine O'Clock League and the Jinx copped top honors in the Eleven O'Clock League.

Each individual member will receive a trophy.

Black Hawks — Donald Slack (Capt.), Ken Slomosky, Rodney Johnson and Katherine Price.

Zybysko In Title Defense Here Monday

Baellangeon, a towering 6-4, 248 - pound gladiator, gave Zybysko a rough time here last week in a non - title go and was awarded the decision when Firpo gave up. It seems Zybysko tired of having the Canadian break loose from his best holds.

Baellangeon, reputed to be the sixth member of the "strongest family in the world," also came back in last week's main event tag match to whip the Mighty Jap, an Oriental who can usually hold his own against the best.

Tomorrow night's championship affair will have a one - hour time limit with two falls to win.

Supporting the main event will be a four - man tag team match pitting Chris Belkas and Ken Cooper against Carlos Mendoza and the Mighty Jap. This prelim is scheduled over 45 minute with the usual two falls required for a victory.

Cooper and Mendoza meet in the night's curtain - raiser, a 15-minute one fall battle. Jack Kennedy will referee the card.

Not a single member of this season's North Carolina State basketball team is under 6-feet tall. The tallest, sophomore center John Key of Durham, N. C., is 6-foot-8.

Professional Grid Battle May Prompt SEC Controls

By BILL KING

BILOXI, Miss. (UPI)—The recruiting battle between the two professional football leagues may prompt rigid rules aimed at preventing signing of players from the talent-rich Southeastern Conference before expiration of eligibility for collegiate sports.

The SEC, holding its annual winter meeting here last week, apparently recognized the situation might become serious, hampering spring sports and even post-season bowl games, but took no action pending spade work this year by the conference commissioner.

Commissioner Bernie Moore, facing "something we've never had before," said athletic directors and coaches from the 12-member conference agreed "we'd have to do some work on this thing next year."

Moore said he planned to meet with commissioners of the new American Football League and the old National League in an effort to reach some agreement to keep the pro teams from signing players prematurely. If that doesn't work "I'm sure the conference will take some action" at its meeting in Florida next January, Moore said.

The SEC has two of the most famous examples of the recruiting fight: All-Americans Billy Cannon, Heizman Trophy winner from L.S.U., and fullback Charlie Flowers of Mississippi.

Cannon, a halfback, apparently signed with the NFL Los Angeles Rams before he played in the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans against Mississippi New Year's Day and then signed with the Houston Oilers of the AFL after the game.

Flowers has signed contracts with the New York Giants of the NFL and the AFL's Los Angeles Chargers.

"If I knew Cannon had signed a contract with Los Angeles, and it looks like he did, I would have ruled he couldn't play in the Sugar Bowl," said Moore. "And the same would be true for anyone else."

In any event, under SEC rules Cannon and Flowers, and any others who have signed pro contracts, lost their eligibility for collegiate sports when they signed and if they accepted bonuses they must also lose their scholarships, Moore said.

CANNON HONORED

Syracuse, Giants Capture Awards

WASHINGTON (AP)—Syracuse and the New York Giants won acclaim again Saturday night. They led a lustrous field of football greats and captured the most trophies at the Washington Touchdown Club's annual feed and frolic.

Their 1959 performances earned 5 of the 10 major awards presented before a crowd of 1,400 notables and sports buffs at the Touchdown Club's silver anniversary banquet.

Secretary of the Interior Fred A. Seaton was called on for the main speech. Head table quarterbacks, summoned to hand off trophies, included Supreme Court justices Tom Clark and William O. Douglas, House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex), Sen. Kenneth B. Keating (R-NY), Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr. (R-Mass), Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers, Adm. Arleigh Burke, chief of naval operations, and Lt. Gen. D. M. Shoup, Marine Corps commandant.

They can be seen 'most any time around Washington. The patrons were more interested in a glimpse of Billy Cannon, Louisiana State's All-America halfback who was named college back of the year.

Col. Lawrence (Biff) Jones, former LSU coach, was here to present Cannon the Walter Camp Memorial Trophy.

Baseball bugs came primarly to observe Nellie Fox, the Chicago White Sox second baseman who was chosen to receive the Clark Griffith Award from Commissioner Ford Frick for the year's outstanding contribution to baseball.

Football occupied the remainder of the program. Syracuse was honored as No. 1 team in the country, Schwartzwalder as college coach of the year and Davis as the outstanding lineman. Howell was named pro coach of the year and the 38-year-old Conerly the top pro player.

Bowling Green, designated small college team of the year, was represented by Coach Doyt Perry. Lt. King Dixon, Quantico Marines' halfback, was feted as the outstanding player in the armed forces and Navy halfback Joe Bellino as best in the Washington area.

In five years as head basketball coach at West Virginia University, Fred Schaus has compiled a record of 120 victories and 32 losses. He has been named basketball coach of the year in the Southern Conference three times.

Jim Owens To Assume Double Duty

SEATTLE (AP)—George Briggs for four years director of athletics at the University of Washington, resigned Saturday to accept a position with a bank in Los Angles.

Both actions are effective Feb. 1.

Briggs came to the university in February 1956 when the school's athletic department was in turmoil.

A revolt by football players at the close of the 1955 season had brought the resignation of Coach John Cherberg and Athletic Director Harvey Cassill. The Pacific Coast Conference had placed the university on probation for three years for unauthorized payment of athletes.

Briggs hired Darrell Royal as football coach. He served in 1956 and resigned to become head coach at the University of Texas. The following year he hired Owens on a three-year contract. In 1958, despite a losing football season, Briggs tore up the Owens contract and wrote a new three-year pact for a coach who this year took his team to the Rose Bowl.

Salary terms for Owens were not announced by Dr. Odegaard. His coaching contract called for $15,000 last year with a $1,000 raise this May. Briggs received in excess of $12,000 annually.

THANK YOU

I wish to thank the voters of Louisiana for the confidence you placed in me in electing me your Commissioner of Agriculture for the next four years.

I will do my best to fill the office with honor and dignity—Serving all.

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

You can have your 10 best dressed and 10 best tressed o 1959. Male critics of us poor females would rather concentrate on woman's 10 grooming booboos of last year.

"How else does woman improve herself," asked one man. "If we don't tell her what we dislike, she'll just go on making a mess of herself."

Another pointed out that . . . "Women go to great lengths to dress, make up and scent themselves to please men, so why should they be offended when the criticism is constructive?" (But is it ever?)

Well, here goes, with their explanations of complaints:

1. The Lipless Look. "Man may complain about lipstick, but what he really objects to is the excess of it — the part that comes off on close contact. We don't like a girl who looks like a warmed-over corpse, ideal though she may be for frightening ghosts."

2. Matador Trousers. "These are so repulsive that they make one ill to look at them. A fat girl shows every ounce in her bounce. A skinny girl knobs out like a Jerusalem artichoke."

3. Colored Wigs: "Green, orange and yellow wigs are fine for a masquerade party, but who wants to take Raggedy Ann to a nice social event? There's nothing like the natural locks of a woman."

4. Casual Hairdo: "Untidy hair should never be a fad. Ideal for the sky terrier who looks better with his hair over his eyes. We surely must have good enough hair stylists who can design coiffures that have some affinity to the comb.

5. Hobble Skirts: "If you've ever tried to wedge one of these with a girl in it into your car, especially a sports car, you'll agree. This is a style that belonged back in the days when women were carried from house to cart. Some of the largest traffic jams are created by women trying to climb a flight of stairs in one of these creations."

6. Spinter Heels: "The thin heel has become a greater menace than the ice pick. You should have to get a permit to wear them."

7. Green and Purple Powder: "Save it for the parakeets. They're used to those colors. A man doesn't want to date a girl who looks like she's just recovered from an attack of billiousness.

8. Jeweled eye - lidscould be fun at balls and other very dressy parties, and I'll even go along with the gag when a girl wears them 'just for fun' but I draw the line when I see a girl wearing rhinestones on her eyelids when she's waiting for a bus."

9. Pointy-Toed Shoes: "The Advantage of these shoes, style-wise or otherwise, escapes me, but the disadvantages are pronounced when you get one of these spike toes in the ankle on the dance floor."

10. Sequin Stockings: "These are ideal for calling attention to pretty legs, but why are they always worn by girls with legs shaped like hatpins or pineapples?"

Garden Club Guest Speaker Mrs. Garnett

Mrs. V. S. Garnett was lecturer at the meeting of the Monroe Garden club held Monday night in the Louisiana Power and Light auditorium. The meeting was open to families of members.

Mrs. Jamar Adcock, president, presided at the short business meeting. She appointed Mrs. Dewitt Milam, Mrs. Kent Breard, and Mrs. Warren Taylor to serve on the nominating committee. Their report will be heard at the February meeting, and new officers elected at that time.

Mrs. Garnett's subject was "Cronucopia of Birds." She stated that of the 377 kinds of birds in the United States, over half are found in Louisiana. She described markings, nesting habits, and songs of some of the birds seen around this vicinity. A display of birdhouses and feeders showed the different types which attract different varieties of birds.

Living Room May Include Dining Area

CHICAGO (UPI) — Today's living room, enlarged to include a dining area or to accommodate family activities, has prompted one manufacturer to produce a versatile table-and-four-chairs set.

An exceptionally large room and generous pocket book are requirements. The octagonal table measures 59 inches wide, and the five pieces cost about $2,500.

Three woods are used in the top of the table. A center star of natural ebony is inlaid on pin-knot walnut, and the apron is of sap-grained walnut. The base is scuff-proof russet leather.

Bleached walnut chairs, upholstered in beige raw silk, can be used at the table or as occasional chairs.

The woods are oiled to emphasize the grain and to make the finish resistant to hot dishes and wet glasses.

The chairs are made of shell-shaped moulded fibreglass and rest on a broad - bottomed cast aluminum pedestal which will not tip.

Chairs come in white, charcoal gray or light gray fibreglass, with or without arms, and swivel or non-swivel varieties. Prices range from $76.50 to $112, not counting upholstery.

The single pedestal line includes a small, round fibreglass ottoman, and a marble - topped table with a base of cast iron.

Attic Bedroom Can Serve So Many Purposes

Finishing off that attic bedroom? It can be used for more than a bedroom by furnishing it with a piece of dual purpose equipment. Bring in a small television set, a record player, bookshelves equipped with a selection of favorite literature and you have a room for relaxing and "getting away from it all."

Miss McDonald Presented At Annual Military Ball

Miss Anne McDonald was among the young ladies presented at the Annual Grand Military Ball of the Society of 1812 in the State of Louisiana held at 8 p.m., Friday, January 8, at the New Orleans Country Club.

Some of the 1959-60 debutantes and members of the college set took their bows at the cotillion.

During the day there were festivities commemorating the Battle of New Orleans.

The demoiselles presented included: Miss Paulette de la Vergne, as Miss Columbia; Miss Judith Walshe, as Miss Justice; Miss Ann Pratt, as Miss Liberty; Miss Sue Cantrell, as Miss Louisiana, all from New Orleans; Miss Anne McDonald, of Monroe, as Miss Georgia; and Misses Celia Chalaron, Suzanne Bayon, Linda Kostmayer, Kathleen Wisdom, Karolyn Kuntz, Lillian Helen Page, Katherine Clark, Martha Jane Collins, Lydia Bezou, Florince Macdonald, Sylvia Hoag, Cornelia Jordan, Lydia Marrero, Judith Sharp, Frances Stall, Gail Stiwell of New Orleans.

The Society of the War of 1812 was organized to join its members together to honor and perpetuate the memory of those who died in the War of 1812, to commemorate the anniversary date of the Battle of New Orleans, to collect and preserve documents related to that period, encourage research and publication of historical documents; and to care for, cherish, maintain and extend the institutions of American freedom and foster true patriotism and love of country.

DR. AND MRS. RAUL A. ARMSTRONG, their children, Raul, Antonio, Nilda and Jose, accompanied by Dr. Armstrong's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Aristides F. Armstrong, sailed from New Orleans January 8, on the S. S. Claiborne en route to their home in Ponce, Puerto Rico.

Rayville Wedding Set For Dolories Pitman

Mr. and Mrs. Tatum Henry Pitman, of Rayville, announce the engagement and wedding plans of their daughter, Dolories, to Gene Frantom Tarver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Allen Tarver, Sr., of Monroe. This has been a week for intimate parties of small groups, for beginning to reorganize after the Holidays, and for looking ahead to coming larger events. Several of our organizations are planning frolics of one kind or another in forthcoming weeks.

Tickets are on sale this week for the Junior Charity League benefit style show, planned for February 6. A cruise theme will be carried out, and clothes shown will range from shorts to evening dresses. This year's party will be similar to the one given by the League two years ago, which attracted a sell - out crowd of ladies and gentlemen. The style show will be held in the Paragon ballroom.

Bayou DeSiard Country Club members are looking forward to the oyster roast Saturday night. These parties, of which several are held each year during the "R" season, are particular favorites. "Little Melvin" and his orchestra will play for dancing.

The Revelers dance club's year begins in January. The new executive committee, which takes over tomorrow, will consist of ANN and TOMMY HOLMES, DOYLE and JEAN HAMILTON, and CAMILLE and ROBERT WOOD. The first dance of the year will be scheduled within the next few weeks.

On Wednesday, one of those days when one needs waterwings to walk outside, JOYCE KELLOGG brightened the day with a luncheon at home. Ten lucky guests escaped the 100 per cent humidity to gather at the party. Joyce centered her table with a dome - shaped arrangement of pink camellias in a silver bowl, flanked by a pair of compotes, also holding camellias.

Nine friends of AURELINE SLADE surprised her with a dinner party on Friday night. The table in the private dining room at Bayou DeSiard Country Club was centered with red camellias in a silver bowl. The menu began with oyster cocktail, and proceeded with crabmeat on toast, ending with apple pie flambeau.

CREARY SMITH entertained with a luncheon at home honoring SUSANNA JOHNSON, who is visiting here from San Diego. Susanna, who is GERRY SPERRY's mother, is a favorite annual visitor in Monroe. At Friday's party, Creary used African violets down the table. Other guests were JUANITA WILSON, SARA M'SHERRY, and MAMIE DAVIS.

Duck dinner was the seasonal treat when the ROY LEDBETTERS and the JACK T O M JACKSONS invited friends over on Thursday night. The party was held in the Jackson home, where tables were set up in the dining room, and on the porch. Camellias and silver appointments were used in the dining room. Ceramic onions and artichokes in shades of aqua to olive green centered the aqua - covered table on the porch. With the duck the hostesses served dirty rice, broccoli, a congealed lime and grapefruit salad, hot rolls, and chess pie.

Among the travellers who are taking advantage of our mid-season lull to take themselves elsewhere are ISABEL and A. L. SMITH. They left on Friday for Baton Rouge and New Orleans, will be back Wednesday . . . and BESS and SOL COURTMAN are due back soon from a trip to New York. Sol attended a professional meeting, while Bess visited relatives and took in the sights and shops.

'Tis always a pleasure to visit new houses, and at this time there are several interesting ones being completed. This week we toured the lovely new French provincial home of the HAROLD WOODS, JR., on Deborah Drive. Shrimp brick is used in the construction, with an inviting blue front door. The high pitched roofline is broken by four domer windows.

The blue of the front door is accented in the entrance hall by the use of a bench upholstered in blue velvet. A gold - framed mirror hangs above the chest on the opposite wall. The hall, which is floored with dark - finish hardwood blocks, is separated from the living room by a folding screen to the left as one enters.

Eye - catching in the kitchen is the clock, with figures and hands built directly into the walnut - finished rock maple of the cabinets. The yellow of the Formica counter is repeated in the yellow curtains, printed with poppies in a darker shade. The beige Tessera floor of the kitchen is extended into the breakfast room. The poppy print is repeated here in the floor-length draperies used in the deep bay window.

Extending across the back of the house with doors into the entrance hall, living room, and breakfast room, is the den with its birch panelling. The beamed ceiling and open fireplace lend distinction to this room. Carpet and draperies are beige, and furniture upholstered in a khaki and blue print. Blue leather lines the shelves built in across one end of the room for books, television, and stereo control center.

A hall to the right of the entrance hall leads to the bedroom wing. The master bedroom is furnished with French provincial fruitwood. Walls and draperies are white. An interesting material of white brocaded in green is used on the headboard of the bed and on the chaise lounge, and repeated in appliqued hems of the draperies . . . The guest room with its green walls and draperies, features white woodwork, white fringe trim, and white beds . . . In daughter LARKE's room, an unusual beige - green is used for walls and bedspread, with draperies and dust ruffle of a gay animal print on white chintz.

For our poem of the week, we are again indebted to Ogden Nash. As a sample of the type of work that earned him an accolade (from Clifton Fadiman) as "poet laureate of our age of small frictions", here is his "What Makes Monday Blue?":

Monday is the day that everything starts all over again,
Monday is the day when just as you are beginning to feel peaceful you have to get up and get dressed and put on your old gray bonnet and drive down to Dover again.
It is the day when life becomes grotesque again,
Because it is the day when you have to face your desk again;
It is a day with no fun about it,
Because it is the first of a series of days filled with one task or another that something has to be done about it.
When the telephone rings on Saturday or Sunday you are pleased because it probably means something pleasing and you take the call with agility,
But when it rings on any other day it just usually means some additional responsibility,
And if in doubt,
Why the best thing to do is to answer it in a foreign accent or if you are a foreigner answer it in a native accent and say you are out.
Oh, there is not a week-day moment that can't wring a sigh from you,
Because you are always being confronted with people who want to sell you something, or if they don't want to sell you something, there is something they want to buy from you,
And every shining hour swaggers arrogantly up to you demanding to be improved,
And apparently not only to improve it, but also to shine it, is what you are behooved.
Oh for a remedy, oh for a panacea, oh for a something, oh yes, oh for a coma or swoon,
Yes, indeed, oh for a coma that would last from nine a.m. on Monday until Friday afternoon.

Home Shampoo

Every season calls for shining hair! And shining hair calls for shampooing the professional way. To maintain a gleam to your tresses right in your own home, follow this beauty routine:

First, brush your hair vigorously and rinse in warm water. Then work up a rich shampoo lather — massaging your scalp with your knuckles (not with fingertips, because nails scratch the scalp). Rinse away this first soiled lather and repeat with more shampoo. This second time, your rinsings should be thorough enough to remove every trace of the suds.

Next, wipe your hair with a towel, set it, and let it dry completely. When you brush it out, it should be sparkling — and ready for a party!

MISS REBECCA WALLIS, whose engagement and approaching marriage to Donald Waddell is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Wallis, Jr., of West Monroe. Mr. Waddell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Waddell of Beaumont, Texas. The wedding is planned for January 30 in the Ridge Avenue Baptist church in West Monroe, with the Rev. A. T. Mitchell officiating. A reception will follow in the educational building at the church.

Wedding Plans Revealed By Miss Imie Noble

The parents of Miss Imie Noble, bride-elect of Bob Carpenter, today announce plans for her wedding on January 29 at the First Baptist Church in Hamburg, Arkansas.

Reverend E. E. Griever will officiate in the double-ring ceremony which will take place at 5:30 in the afternoon. Doctor T. J. Welch of Monticello will be the assisting minister.

Mrs. Joe Lucky of Luling, Louisiana will serve as the bride's matron of honor. Mrs. Harry Noble, Jr. of Prescott, Mrs. Jerry Anderson of Warren, Mrs. Charlie Ripley of Magnolia, Mrs. Rex Hyatt of Pine Bluff and Mrs. Jimmy Harbison of Little Rock will serve as bridesmaids. Miss Diane Carpenter of Memphis, Tennessee and Miss Tonya Taylor of Pine Bluff will be candlelighters for the ceremony.

Ringbearers for the occasion will be Miss Robin Elizabeth Noble of Prescott, niece of the bride-elect and Miss Kay Frances Carpenter of Memphis, Tennessee, niece of Mr. Carpenter.

The bride will be given in marriage by her father, Harry Noble, Sr., Springhill Road, Hamburg. Jack Carpenter, Hamburg, will serve his brother as best man, Harry Noble, Jr., Prescott, Tommy Carpenter, Memphis, Gayle Linwood Noble, Van Carpenter, Mike Shell, Billy Joe Scott, of Hamburg, will act as groomsmen.

Mrs. Max Funderburk of Monroe, Louisiana, will be vocalist and Mrs. A. A. Harris of Arkansas A&M, Monticello, will be the organist.

Following the ceremony a reception will be held in the home of the bride's parents on Springhill Road.

Mrs. Dawson Hostess For Swartz HDC

The Swartz Home Demonstration Club held its regular January meeting in the home of Mrs. W. H. Ricks with Mrs. S. C. Hixon, president, presiding.

The merits of washable velveteen were given by Mrs. Gordon Humphries, and an instructive demonstration was given by Mrs. Audrey Dawson, Home Demonstration Agent, on the values of various floors, comparing costs, lasting qualities and ease of upkeep.

Lunch was served to Mrs. Dawson and the following members: Mrs. Hixon, Mrs. S. C. Hixon, Jr., Mrs. D. A. Mears, Mrs. G. Humphries, Mrs. W. J. St. John, Mrs. W. J. Roper, Mrs. George Speir, Mrs. Jack Farmer, Mrs. Roy Cagle, Jr., Mrs. W. P. Gee, and Mrs. Ricks.

Town and Country Club Hear Mr. W. L. Harker

The Town and Country Garden Club held its first meeting of the new year in the home of Mrs. Burchall Liles on Deborah Drive, with Mrs. Lon Heuer and Mrs. Dan Moore co-hostesses. Members were received in the family room overlooking the bayou.

Mr. Warren L. Harker of a local florist shop showed many examples of houseplants which have become weary of indoor heat and dryness during the winter season. He told what causes various conditions of plants and how to overcome the effects of these conditions.

He showed many beautiful azaleas and cyclamen which are particularly beautiful blooming indoors at this time of the year and which may successfully be planted outdoors later.

Of special interest were his "slim-line arrangers" in brass and pewter, which consist of interchangeable parts strung on a central rod, designed especially for dried arrangements.

Mr. G. A. Osborn Claims Bride in Mangham

In a ceremony characterized by simplicity and beauty, Miss Kathryn Elizabeth Thames of Mangham became the bride of Airman First Class George Alvin Osborn of Winnsboro.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Alton Thames of Mangham. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Osborn of Winnsboro.

The Rev. Fred Guilbert, pastor of the New Light Baptist Church, performed the double ring ceremony on Saturday afternoon, Jan. 2, at 4 o'clock in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Flint near Winnsboro. The vows were spoken before members of the couple's families in the living room of the Flint home, where baskets of white lilies and tall white tapers provided the setting.

The bride was lovely in a white raw silk suit, which featured a dress designed along slim lines and a fitted jacket. She wore a white feather hat, and her corsage was of white carnations.

Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Flint hosted a reception in their home. The bride's table was covered with a white, hand - embroidered cloth over pink. It was centered with an arrangement of pink roses flanked by tall pink tapers in crystal candelabra. At one end of the table, topped with the traditional bride and groom, was a four - tiered cake, a creation of the bride's mother, Mrs. Clifford Flint, aunt of the bride, served the cake. Miss Carolyn Lishman, of Winnsboro, served punch, from the crystal punch bowl.

The bride, a graduate of Mangham High School, is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Graves of West Monroe and Mr. and Mrs. Neal Thames of Mangham, and the great - granddaughter of Mrs. T. O. Buie and the late Mr. Buie of Mangham. The groom, a graduate of Crowville High School, is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Osborn, Sr. of Winnsboro. He has completed four years with the U. S. Air Force and has reenlisted for another four years.

The young couple departed this week for his base at Sherman, Texas, where they will make their home.

THE ENGAGEMENT of Miss Barbara Jean Hogard to Kernel Lee Hobgood is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Hogard. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas V. Hobgood, of West Monroe. The wedding is planned for Friday evening, January 29, at the chapel of the First Methodist Church.

Daughter's Betrothal Announced by Parents

Mr. and Mrs. James N. Powell, Jr., of Monroe, formerly of Paris, Texas, announce the engagement of their daughter, Janice, to Bily Joe Hodnett, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Hodnett of Bosco.

The wedding is planned for 7:30 p.m. Friday, February 26, at Trinity Baptist Church, in West Monroe. Rev. E. E. Taylor will officiate.

Miss Powell is a graduate of Neville High School and is now attending Northeast Louisiana State College. Her paternal grandparents are: Dr. J. N. Powell and the late Mrs. Powell and her maternal grandparents are Mr A. K. Haynes and the late Mrs. Haynes of Paris, Texas.

The groom - to - be is a graduate of Ouachita Parish High School and is presently affiliated with a local firm of consulting engineers. His paternal grandparents are Mrs. W. B. Hodnett and the late Mr. Hodnett of West Monroe. Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Turnage of Rayville are his maternal grandparents.

P.H.D. Club Meets In Home Of Mrs. Morse

The Progressive Home Demonstration Club met in the home of Mrs. Benton Moore, Thursday morning, January 7. The business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. James Fletcher.

Mrs. Audrey Dawson, home demonstration agent, gave a most interesting demonstration on "House Plans for Family Living."

Lunch was served to: Mrs. Grace Guillary, Mrs. Charles Guraedy, Mrs. C. D. Shirley, Mrs. Tim Ford, Mrs. Robert Fowler, Mrs. Rowe Harrell, Mrs. Fletcher, Mrs. May, Mrs. Dawson, Mrs. Moore and a new member, Mrs. L. O. Guillary.

Be On Lookout For Symptoms Of Eye Trouble

By DOROTHY WHIPPLE, M.D.
AP Newsfeatures

It is surprising how many children have eye trouble that no one even suspects. There are a few symptoms that parents should be on the lookout for. If you see them, have your youngster's eyes examined by an eye specialist—an opthalmogist. A doctor who specializes in diseases of the eye is not the same as an optician. Some opticians do examine people for glasses, but a child who needs an eye examination should be taken to a competent eye doctor — if possible, one accustomed to working with children. Not only is it necessary to have a knack with children to gain their confidence and cooperation, but the problems of a growing child's eyes are quite different from those of an older person, whose eyes may be degenerating.

What are the symptoms that might mean trouble?

CROSSED EYES

First is the question of crossed eyes. At birth baby's eyes usually are not very steady. For the first few months a baby may move each eye more or less independently. A baby gradually brings his eyes under control and by the time he is four months old he will use his two eyes together most of the time. If by six months his eyes seem straight most of the time, you have nothing to worry about. But at six months if one eye is always off, either in or out, up or down, this is a sign of trouble. The baby, who at six months never uses his eyes to look straight is going to need help. He probably never will have straight eyes unless he has treatment. If at six months his eyes are crossed only occasionally you can afford to wait and watch him If at four years the eyes are crossed some of the time, even though for the most part they are straight, the child should go to the doctor.

Any child who complains of aching, smarting or tired eyes, whose eyes look red and inflamed, or who complains of headache should have his eyes examined. Sometimes a child who can see only out of one eye will cock his head on the side when he tries to look close. If he cannot see well he may bring objects very close to his eyes to look at them. All of these symptoms require further investigation.

Not all of them will be found due to eyes, but there is always the danger that such symptoms might indicate eye trouble.

ROUTINE EXAMINATION

It is very good preventive medical care to have all children examined by an eye doctor when they start school. This is not absolutely necessary if the child shows no symptoms and if either the school or his own doctor tests his vision with the standard eye charts.

After a child starts school, any trouble with school work calls for an investigation of his eyes. Sometimes a child can read the eye chart at 20-foot distance but has trouble seeing the printed page clearly.

Nearsightedness may be present before the child enters school, but often it doesn't develop until the child is 8 or 10 years old.

Parents need to be alert to signs and symptoms that a child holds the book too close or is having unexplained trouble in school, especially if nearsightedness runs in the family.

Eye blinking is a symptom that often worries parents. This symptom unlike all the other ones mentioned above is almost never due to real eye trouble. The vast majority of eye blinking is due to nervous or emotional troubles.

Kappa Sigma Fraternity Has Annual French Party

On Saturday, January 9, the Kappa Sigma Fraternity held its annual French Party from 7 p.m. to midnight at the Ruston Country Club. A typical French meal was served. To set the scene for the party moss was draped from the ceiling and the meal was eaten by candlelight.

At intermission a trio of pledges, Gene Bryson, Tommy Brakefield, and Drury Bynum, accompanied by Jimmy Allen provided special entertainment. Also at this time three awards were presented for leadership and scholarship from the National Kappa Sigma Fraternity. Edward J. Pohlman, III, of Monroe, was awarded a check for $100 and a certificate. M. Richard Ringheim, Jr., Monroe, received a $50 check and James C. Love, III, Ruston, was given a certificate. Then the demoiselles attending were presented with Kappa Sigma souvenirs.

The music for the occasion was provided by the "Counts". The chaperones were Captain and Mrs. Lockett and Mr. and Mrs. M. Shirley. Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Williams.

Soap Sketch Is Captured

Soap, which aids humanity in so many ways, also assisted the automobile industry in a unique manner.

One night some years ago, the late inventor - genius Charles F. Kettering was spending the night in an eastern hotel room.

Unable to sleep, Mr. Kettering worked out in his mind the answer to a complicated transmission problem. He got out of bed, sketched the design with soap on a mirror, and long-distanced Detroit for a photographer to capture it on film.

Girls Get Break From Designer

AP Newsfeatures Writer

It isn't true that nobody loves a fat girl, says Mariana Smillie, a designer who spends most of her time dreaming up new ways to glamorize the country's out-size beauties.

Further she feels that girls of Juno-esque proportions should not be penalized by having to buy their clothes in old-lady departments. Says she:

"There are lots of teen-age girls who wear size 44, but they don't want to dress like grandmothers. I get hundreds of letters from these high-school girls thanking me for making youthful clothes in big sizes."

Mrs. Smillie is a New York Social Registerite who turned to fashion design in her youth, and has designed clothes for all figure types, from juniors to size 52. She has made a special study of the large figure, and has definite ideas about how women can look attractive in a big way. She explains:

"It's a matter of balance. To offset big hips, a dress should focus attention above the belt—in an interesting neckline or dramatic color treatment. To minimize a big bust, the dramatic touch should be below the the belt."

She urges large women not to be afraid of bright colors and youthful styles. Her credo:

"Any woman of any size can look young and attractive if she chooses her clothes with wisdom and care."

Pool Your Knowledge Of Beauty With Friend

by VIVIAN BROWN
AP Beauty Editor

When your beauty stock is low, pick up those old idle dividends and cash them in. Improve your best features to overshadow the others.

Every once in a while skin, hair and complexion show the ravages of sleepless nights and over indulgence in fad foods. There doesn't seem to be anything you can do to get yourself in shape, and the more you think about it, the worse the glamor department gets.

When you get to that charm impasse, call in a friend, and pool your beauty knowledge. A real beauty session complete with mirrors can put you back on the beauty beam.

What can you do for your friend? What can she do for you? What are your low points? What are hers?

Eyebrows make a good starting point. You'll want to tweezer all the little stragglers over your nose, between your brows. Below the eyebrow you'll do the same thing. But you will not remove any eyebrow hairs from the top of your brow, spoiling the arch. Tell your friend how to do it.

MUTUAL PEDICURE

A pedicure is a good chore for a good friend to perform. It's so much easier to have someone else do it. Cotton goes between the toes to keep them apart. The nails are filed straight across, not rounded at the corners, and they should be smoothed with an emery board. The cuticle should be oiled as toenails have a habit of clogging up tight at that area. Apply a pretty polish to your [illegible] and see if you don't feel better for the effort.

The home permanent wave is a good idea performed with a companion. Your pajama partner can do your hair, then you can do hers, and if you get one of the books available on the subject, you can have lots of fun experimenting with new hair styles.

Even if you don't want curly hair, your coiffure will hang prettily with the body the permanent wave can give it. Some girls like the cap of curls with feathery bangs and a friend comes in handy to wind the hair in back on the little spin curlers. The newer creamy neutralizers come in a plastic bottle so a few drops can be squeezed out on each curl.

The pin curl permanents are easy to do also, particularly if a casually waved bob is desired. A kit is likely to contain curlers for neckline, rollers for brow curls, and pin curls for the rest of the hair. Choose what you need when you give the permanent wave.

It's a good idea to start your record session while the permanent waves are drying, and perhaps it's a fine time to experiment with new makeup techniques.

Many girls could stand improvement in the mouth area. The lip line should never go down, one expert cosmetician advises, and it should be filled out to the very end of the upper lip. That means that it should gently curve from its highest point, not go down sharply.

A beauty session at slumber time should include a facial, especially if the skin is troubled with blackheads. Use a warm towel to loosen the black heads and then cleanse the skin thoroughly with a good skin cleanser.

Home Builders, Use Quality Products

Almost every homemaker wants to cut costs when he builds. The really smart homeowner also thinks ahead and trys to build a house in which maintenance costs can be kept to a minimum.

The most important single way to keep maintenance costs down is to insist on quality materials in the very beginning.

This may result in a few difficult decisions for bargain hunters, but the principle is sound, expecially in long-range purchases like a home.

It costs a little more to install quality material, but real economy results from it.

Those who argue, "We'll only be in the house for 8 or 9 years," should consider the all-important item of re-sale value at the time they will be ready to sell.

Now is the time for careful planning and selection.

Baby Furniture Now Reflects Adult Taste

Babies are young Americans. Some are even going Early American with the new cribs that now decorate the nursery. Baby's furniture seems to be trending toward adult taste—traditional, modern, or what have you—but not a "room apart." Regardless of this decorating idea, the safety and comfort of the child is never forgotten. Side rails are being made higher to prevent the lively baby from bouncing out; the slats are close enough together so the baby won't get his head caught; mattresses are made firm, yet bouyant for good sleep and proper bone formation.

FALTERING START

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) —Attorney John Holt took 14 women seeking divorce into court and tried to calm their fears.

"It'll all be over in a few moments," he told the group. "Just watch."

Court convened, and Holt went into action. He put his first client on the stand, asked her name, and she fainted.

Clark-Willis Wedding Planned For March 12

Of interest here, is the announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Laura Anne Willis, of Shreveport to Mr. Herbert Grant Clark, Jr. of Highland Park, Illinois. Miss Willis is the daughter of Mr. John Virgil Willis of Shreveport and Monroe, and the late Mrs. Willis, the former Ruth deMoss of Monroe. Mr. Clark's parents are Mr. Herbert Grant Clark, of Highland Park, Ill. and the late Mrs. Clark. Their wedding will be a prominent event of March 12th, when the Rt. Rev. Monsignor John C. Vandegaar hears their vows at Holy Trinity Catholic Church in Shreveport, at four o'clock in the afternoon.

Mrs. Lytt W. Mahone, of Marshall, Texas will attend Miss Willis as her matron of honor. Her bridesmaids will be Miss Margaret Janice McBride, Miss Priscilla Ann Perry, both of Shreveport and Miss Dianna Lowe, of Houston, Texas. Junior bridesmaids will be Miss Mary Jean Fitzgerald, cousin of the bride and Miss Janet Leigh Younglove, of Highland Park, Ill., niece of the groom.

Mr. George B. Clark, of Glencoe, Ill. will serve his brother as best man. The groomsmen will be Edward T. Younglove, Lake Forest, Ill., Edward Hines, Winnetka, Ill., and Lt. Gary L. Parsons, Barksdale AFB. The ushers will be Lt. Earl E. Griffith, Barksdale AFB and John V. Willis, Jr. Dallas, Texas, Donald F. Willis and Harold B. Willis, brothers of the bride.

The maternal grandparents of the bride-to-be are the late Mr. and Mrs. JuMel deMoss of Monroe. Her paternal grandparents are Mrs. A. F. D. Willis of Shreveport and the late Rev. Willis. A graduate of the C. E. Byrd High School, she attended William Woods College, Fulton, Missouri and Centenary College where she was affiliated with Zeta Tau Alpha sorority.

Mr. Clark's maternal grandparents are Dr. George H. Bomer and the late Mrs. Bomer of Highland Park, Illinois. His paternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. Herbert G. Clark of Chicago, Ill. He attended Highland Park High School and received his B. A. degree from Williams College, Williamstown, Mass. He will be discharged from the United States Air Force in March.

Lucy Cox Engaged To C. Hemming, Jr.

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) —Mr. and Mrs. J. Vernon Cox of Texarkana, Texas, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Lucy, to Cliff Williams Hemming, Jr.

Parents of the bridegroom-elect are Mrs. A. Henry Volking and Cliff W. Hemming of Texarkana and Meridian, Miss.

Miss Cox, a graduate of Texarkana, Texas High School, is now a freshman at Texas Christian University, where she pledged Alpha Gamma Delta social sorority.

The bridegroom - elect is a specialist fourth - class assigned to the U. S. Army Air Defense School, Fort Bliss, Texas, as an instructor.

The wedding is to take place in Texarkana on Sunday, February 14.

Mrs. Cox is the former Louise Carlisle, of Lake Providence, La.

PETIT POINT — Perfect partners for a gracious evening at home (while you, too, do your embroidery, or watch television!), are these magnificent velveteen go-togethers. Exquisite petit point on black velveteen is used to border the "Crop Top" blouse, and accent the figure slimming lines of the carefully tapered ankle length pants. The square neckline of the bodice is particularly flattering.

Laundry Bag Of Canvas Is Off To School

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

Every boarding school girl needs a laundry bag — the bigger the better, and sturdy enough to stand the gaff of weekly trips through the mails, when the laundry goes home to mother.

A husky duffle bag of water-repellant, mildew - resistant canvas solves the problems of storage and transportation. You may choose either a solid color or a gaily striped awning canvas.

After much experiment, local sewing center experts have worked out the ideal school laundry duffel, simple to make at home. They suggest you make it with a drawstring top and an identification - card pocket. The pocket on the side serves as an address holder. A piece of cardboard with daughter's school address on one side, parents' home address on the other, serves as a permanent mailing label. Fourth class postal charges for nine pounds of laundry will be under 70 cents if the school is less than 300 miles from home.

The carryall can be stitched on your electric sewing machine. However, it is recommended that a heavy (No. 18) needle and heavy (No. 40) thread be used. A straight stitch on an automatic slant - needle machine will give greater seam strength. Canvas may be purchased from a local awning shop, mail - order house or large department store.

To make a bag 41 inches in circumference and 29½ inches deep, you will need one and five-eighths yards of canvas, matching thread and 12 feet of cotton clothesline cord. Here's how the bag is made:

1. Draw a circle 14 inches in diameter on the canvas, using pencil or chalk and a piece of string. This forms the bottom of the bag. Cut a 42-inch length of canvas for the sides.

2. Work drawstring openings about 20 inches apart and about one inch from the selvage on one side of your 42-inch length of canvas.

3. Use remaining fabric scraps for the card pocket. Cut two strips an inch and a half wide and five inches long, and two the same width and six inches long. If you are using a striped canvas, center a stripe in each strip. Turn under edges so that only the stripe shows. Top - stitch. Next join the four strips to form a rectangle. Stitch to the middle of your 42-inch length of canvas, leaving the top of the pocket open for insertion of the mailing card, which should be in a plastic holder.

4. Pin together the ends of the 42-inch piece, right sides together, so that a cylinder is formed. Stitch. Turn under the top about one inch, forming a casing. Stitch.

5. Pin the circular piece of canvas to the bottom of the bag, right sides together. Stitch. Draw the doubled cord through the casing.

This handy bag also can be used for carrying books, groceries, sports equipment and many other items. On trips to and from home, daughter probable will use it as extra luggage. It's easy to sew and makes a welcome gift.

ALL-PURPOSE DUFFEL—Easy to make from canvas.

Look Of 1960 Will Be Top-Heavy

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)— New York fashion designers usher in the 1960's with the top-heavy look.

The mid-section is skinny and elongated, a woman gets a choice of narrow or full skirts but seventh avenue manufacturers skip the Paris hobble of last season, hemlines remain the same as last spring, shoulders remain rounded, but sleeves never have been bigger or breezier.

Sleeves are caped, kimonoed, cut waistline deep, dolmaned, fluted, funneled and flared. And many of them on suits and coats are chopped off at the elbow and above.

The wide, airy sleeve treatments so dominate the New York collections being shown this week to some 250 visiting reporters that Jane Arend, showroom director for Lord's Sportswear, composed this bit of doggerel:

"Last season, my collars concerned me;

"Before that, I sagged in the sack;

"Between these, I floated winged panels

"With streamers from both side and back.

"Now, these things are no longer vital,

"It's almost too much to believe

"That all of the chic that I constantly seek

"Now depends on the size of my sleeve."

Helping to create the top-heavy look also are bloused effects in suits, dresses and costumes.

The New York couture group, with 55 designer members and auxiliary groups, sponsors the semi-annual shows. The group's "watch for" roundup suggested the woman shopper watch for these other major trends for spring:

—A tendency to longer jackets in suits, although there still will be plenty of latitude in choice. Some suit jackets come well below the hipbone for a tunic effect. An increase in the number of belted and collarless suits and continued popularity for the semi-fitted suit jacket.

—In coats, the cape back with flat front is a new silhouette; fitted, semi-fitted and belted coats continue, and there are many of the doublebreasted, coachman types.

—In dresses, slim silhouettes dominate for daytime, but there is a resurgence of the full-cut dirndl of another day.

—The coat dress as a favorite spring costume; runner-up, the full length coat and dress of matching silk or silk and wool.

Double skirts with the tunic almost as narrow as the underlayer; oriental over-skirts slashed at the sides; skirts box, knife and accordion-pleated.

—Drastically low-cut strapless evening dresses dominate, and there are sleveless daytime and sports dreses throughout the collections. The slender evening dress and the full-skirted, short formal share honors for dressy occasions.

—In fabrics, chiffon runs throughout the collections and designers now talk in terms of yardage in a skirt; one manufacturer showed an afternoon chiffon using 16 yards of material. Mesh and knit-like textures are important; silk prints abound in dresses and costumes.

—Grey looms large as a spring basic shade; the various tones of beige to bone are popular; strong violet is a favorite with many designers; and white is used for coats and suits as well as dresses.

Gray Hair Can Be Striking

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Gray hair is taking on an air of distinction. So many women have dyed their hair in the new colors of the season that the loveliness of gray hair is chic and fashionable. Along with it, the gray - haired woman who wants to achieve an air of sophistication will play up her mature beauty.

Charm and dignity are what she likes to achieve, if she wants to leave an impression.

She does it with the correct jewelry — a string of pearls, small gold chain, a good pin or clip, a trim watch, avoiding the garish and flamboyant, if she is not the type. Most older women are not.

She wears her clothes with dignity. Her skirt length is ideal for her age. Her shoes are neat and well - polished. Her clothes are conservative but not without accents of color that lift her morale and liven up her costume.

She must be impeccable. People expect it of her. She can't tolerate runs in her stockings as teen - agers might, and her shoes should be shined.

Her hair shouldn't have those tell - tale marks of age — dryness and drabness, whether gray or not. It should be soft, silky to the touch and bright.

Older women need just the little curl that they can get, perhaps, with the home permanent wave. It is easy to do and special ones are available for those silver curls. These home permanents are so simplified that one may be given whenever it is necessary, without too much trouble. Just apply waving lotior to clean, damp hair and wind on the curlers. Saturate again with the lotion that remains. Wait 15 minutes and spray rinse with hot water. Tie a bath towel over your curls, turban style, and wear it for half hour. The hair can then be neutralized to lock in the curl.

Premier Of Hair Styles For Summer

By DICK WEST
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It looks like the nation's hair styling experts have given up trying to make American girls look like Italian boys.

I got a peek at the latest hair fashions at a "sneak preview" of spring and summer styles for 1960 as drafted by the National Hair-Dressers and Cosmetologists Assn.

This is the outfit that dictates the way ladies should arrange their hair. Since men, as onlookers, have vested interest in the matter, I felt it my duty to see what was in the wind.

On the whole, it was an encouraging premier. Mrs. Pat Nixon, wife of the vice president, was there, as were the wives of a goodly number of senators. So were about a dozen beautiful models.

The association announced that one of the new hair styles had been named the "Pat-Tress" in Mrs. Nixon's honor. I couldn't tell what her present style is because her hat was too big.

NO BOY CUTS

It seemed to me that the committee is getting conservative. I saw nothing that resembled an Italian boy or even a French poodle.

That Italian boy fad was one I never could understand. If an American girl wants to look Italian, I say she ought to look like an Italian girl, say Gina Lollobrigida.

I also was happy to note that the recent upswept, or Swiss Alp, hair style, which required that all locks be piled precariously on top of the head, is being toned down.

To quote from the association's press release, "The top will have natural height to suit the individual. Hair will be dressed in a natural flow of soft draped waves, drifting with its natural growth direction. Its silhouette will be less bouffant than in previous seasons, with an almost total absence of forced support of back-combing."

Brownette Returns

I don't know exactly what this means, but on the models it looked good. As for color, the association has decreed that "the brownette has definitely returned to the fashion scene."

Some of the ladies in the audience, most of whom were professional hairdressers, hadn't gotten the message yet. I saw one coiffure that was tinted, so help me, pinkish-orange.

"What color is that?" I asked a lady sitting nearby.

"Pink champagne," she said.

Shuddering, I inquired whether female hairdressers dressed their own hair.

"Heavens, No!" she exclaimed. "We wouldn't want our customers to get the idea they can do it themselves."

Seven Basic Suit Designs For Spring

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
United Press International

NEW YORK UPI)—Suits strike a many - splendored tune for spring.

—The costume suit look. Jacket lining matches suit's own silk blouse.

—The double breasted, short-jacketed suit with fully pleated skirt.

Leilani Says It With Silver

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

Lovely Leilani Kam intends one day to be the world's foremost jewelry designer.

Now, at 20, the beautiful Chinese - Hawaiian student has made a long step toward fame and fortune as the only girl winner of the annual design competition sponsored by the Sterling Silversmiths Guild of America. She was awarded second prize for her original design of a sterling silver tea set, hand-crafted on simple modern lines, with unusual handles of padouk wood, a golden colored wood with black veins.

"Everybody has been curious about the padouk wood," says Leilani. "They seem to think it must be some strange oriental wood. Actually I bought a block of it from a woodturner in Massachusetts. I had never seen it before, but I was attracted by its bright orange color, its knots and the delicate black veins. I used the knots for the lid tops."

Leilani has been designing things almost ever since she can remember. Born in Shanghai, she is the daughter of Dr. Edwin T. Kam, a surgeon, of Honolulu. Her Chinese mother, who died when Leilani was 7, also was a doctor. Says she:

"My father always wanted me to be a doctor too. I used to help him in his clinic. But then I got interested in design, and here I am."

Leilani has been studying design in the United States for the last four years, first at the Boston Museum School of Fine Arts, then at the School for American Craftsmen of the Rochester Institute of Technology and now at the Cranbrook Academy of Art in Michigan.

"I started doing ceramic jewelry while I was still in grade school in Hawaii," says Leilani. "I sold it first to friends and then to tourists. Then I found some copper wire in my father's toolbox and started working with that. I had two exhibits in Hawaii — one when I was 12, the other when I was 14."

Leilani admits that she sometimes gets homesick for the beautiful island of Oahu and the companionship of her father and sister. Dr. Kam raises orchids as a hobby, and recently won a prize in the World Orchid Show in Hawaii. He also likes to fish and hunt.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Hate The Sin, Love The Sinner, Advice To Mom

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a God-fearing woman who has worked hard to raise a family. My youngest daughter is a widow 30 years of age. I just learned something which I've suspected for a long time. She's having a love affair with her boss who is a married man with a family.

I make my home with this daughter and take care of her three children. I am badly needed as she would have to hire a housekeeper if I weren't here, and it would be expensive.

At the same time I hate living in a home where there is shameless sin. I could manage alone on my small pension if I took a room somewhere. It would be difficult but at least I would have my self respect.

I read the Bible every night for comfort, but I don't find the answer to this problem which torments me night and day. Can you help? — IN SORROW

Dear In Sorrow: Keep reading, and when you come to the line, "Hate the sin but love the sinner," put a bookmark in the place and review it daily.

You are not responsible for your daughter's behavior. She's a grown woman and must choose her own way. If you leave to demonstrate disapproval of her conduct the ones who will suffer the most will be the children.

Stay where you are so desperately needed. You are performing a greater service than you know, Mother.

Dear Ann Landers: My dad says your picture in the paper is pretty. He says you look quite young to know so much. My mother says that picture was probably taken 20 years ago when you were 30.

Do you have all your own teeth, Mrs. Landers? My Mother says you probably have plates. My Dad says your teeth are your own natural ones. My Mother and Dad never agree on anything. Will you settle this please? It will be one less thing for them to fight about. Yours Truly—James S.

P.S. Do you think I will make a good newspaper man? I am 12 years old now.

Dear James: The picture that appears with my column was taken less than two years ago—when I was 40. I DO have all my own teeth so your Dad wins that round.

I think you will make a fine newspaper man because you are not bashful when it comes to asking question . Warm regards. — ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter who is 17 was asked to be a bridesmaid at a girl friend's wedding. The bride comes from a well-to-do family. We are in modest circumstances; in fact, the truth of the matter is we are pretty hard up.

Our daughter tells us the bride has selected the dresses and hats for the bridesmaids and the girls are expected to pay for them. They also must buy shoes to match the gowns. This is a pretty big expense and I wonder if it is right that the girls must pay for their own outfits? It hardly seems fair as they are actually doing the bride a favor. Will you tell us what is proper? — IGNORANT

Dear Ignorant: According to the rules of etiquette, the bridesmaids are expected to pay for their own outfits. Usually the dresses are conservative and can be worn for proms and parties later, so it's not a total loss. In special cases the bride's family has been known to outfit the entire wedding party. But this is indeed unusual.

To learn the knack of feeling comfortable with the opposite sex, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Be Date Bait." enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to hlp you with your proolems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Check Garden Resolutions

By MILDRED SWIFT

How many New Year's resolutions have you made — and broken? Did you resolve to do anything special in the garden? Maybe follow your garden guide? Well — let me remind you of a few jobs to be done now.

When the ground dries out some, you can begin planting gladiolus. Two all-American selections for 1960 are: Little Pansy, a small plant with violet florets marked by velvety, deep blue, "pansy-like" blotches; and Landmark, a tall cream-colored flower.

Landmark has unusual stamina and its growth is quite erect. Its sturdy spikes have 22 precisely placed florets. Ten to twelve of these blooms at the same time. Little pansy is all-America's first "tiny tot", growing to a height of 30 to 32 inches.

Back to planting gladiolus. Planting should be staggered at two-week intervals so as to give you a succession of blooms. It has been found that early planted bulbs, or corms, are less likely to be attacked by thrips than those set out later.

Plant these bulbs at least two inches deep. This depth will help support the tall foliage and spikes later on. In order to prevent thrip infestation, soak the bulbs overnight in a solution of half lysol and half water.

Start selecting your Amaryllis bulbs and get the beds ready for planting. Work bone meal in the soil. Plant these bulbs with about one-fourth of the bulb uncovered so that the neck is above the ground.

ROSES

You can start planting roses when the ground dries out. Remember pruning roses is a February job. Associate that with Washington's birthday. Pruning starts new growth which is tender to cold, so don't prune too early.

When selecting the varieties recommended in the Extension rose bulletin, maybe you'll want to try the three new all-America rose selections. The AARS program tests roses in all sections of the country, then recommends only those that perform well in every section. The three selections this year are: Garden Party, a hybrid tea rose; Fire King and Sarabande, foloribundas.

Garden Party is a white and pink hybrid tea. It was developed by crossing the Charlotte Armstrong and Peace, both all-America winners. Its cream and ivory petals are delicately tinted with soft pink. The giant, fully double blooms often measure as much as seven inches across and are supported on long sturdy stems. The bud is long and well shaped. Garden Party is a vigorous grower.

Fire King is a tall growing floribunda rose. It bears a brilliant vermillion flower of 45 to 50 petals. These petals are perfectly formed and measure two to three inches across. These blossoms form heavy clusters which mass dramatically at any point in the yard. It is a strong grower, has dark green foliage. The plant has a compact, rounded appearance.

Sarabande, the other prize winning floribunda is a semidouble rose, blossoms are scarlet orange in color. The blooms bear 12 to 15 petals and are somewhat larger than most floribundas. The plant grows low and compact, making it particularly suitable for hedges. Sarabande comes into bloom early and it flowers continuously through the season.

These new winners join 50 famous varieties which have been selected for the all-America award since its founding in 1933. The testing was started because rose growers recognized that the general public had no way of judging the more than 5,000 varieties available.

GARDEN JOBS

Camellia grafting seems to "take" best in January and February. Of course this is an excellent time to plant your camellias.

If you wish to change the color of your hydrangea blooms from pink to blue, give them aluminum sulphate now. Dig a narrow trench around each bush and pour in a fourth of a cup of this sulphate. Now — if you want pink hydrangeas, do the same but use lime, using one cup.

PITTASPORUM

One of our most beautiful and satisfactory large shrubs is pittasporum. It is evergreen and will grow in acid or alkaline soil, requiring little care. The shiny leaved foliage is the attraction that pittasporum claims, though the clusters of heavily fragrant creamy white flowers give it more interest at times.

Leaves of pittasporum are dark green, but there are variegated types with white and green markings and with cream and green markings. These are very effective in the average garden, as they give highlights. The solid green varieties grow much faster.

Buy pittasporum plants balled and burlapped. This plant grows entirely too large (both varieties) and too fast to use for foundation planting. Probably one of the shrubs could be planted as a speciman plant against a large expanse of building.

This plant makes an excellent screen planting. To cut and use indoors, it is unsurpassed. It takes the glycerin method well and is quite lovely.

Pittasporum is not too heavy a feeder and not too susceptible to insects or diseases. That latter is a big reason for its use. It does need some pruning each year, to keep the bush in shape. This pruning can be done anytime.

Pittasporum can be propagated by hardwood cuttings in the fall. The new growth will also root in May, April. However, hardwood cutting are best for amateurs. I've rooted pittasporum in water, too.

Your Open House TV programs for next week are: Monday Mr. Jesse Peterson will make an occasional chair; Tuesday Ruth Gulley will upholster the chair; Wednesday flower arrangements with Mrs. Jardine; Thursday and Friday marketing with Mildred.

See you next Sunday.

Nine Years' Breeding For New Roses

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

So you pick up your new flower catalogue and turn to the rose section. There's a mighty pretty new rose, you say, and you order a couple. Did you ever stop to consider how that new variety came to be?

It takes about nine years from the time the pollen from the stamen of one plant is brushed onto the pistils of another for the crossing, until a new rose has been proven and is ready for general marketing.

Of course the nine long years do not linclude the time the hybridizer is learning the background and characteristics of the bisexual roses he crosses while striving for a definite combination. It isn't a hit or miss matter although there are plenty of misses.

The crossing is covered with a small bag to keep wind and insects from disturbing the pollination. In six months, the crossing ripens into a rose "hip" or "Apple" containing seeds. The seeds are planted in flats where two months later they have germinated and have sent up tiny shoots.

Formerly it took a year to reach this stage but special handling has speeded up the process.

The sprouting plants are set in small pots where they grow for eight months.

First year results are too unreliable to judge. In the next two years poor plants are eliminated from the greenhouse and outdoor tent gardens.

The chief researcher for one big nursery estimates that out of 10,000 seedlings, he averages about three new roses worthy of national introduction. He doesn't discard all of the rejected seedlings. Those with some good characteristics are retained for future breeding experiments.

About seven years from the crossing, plants are sent to experimental stations throughout the country for additional tests and are entered in All-America Rose Section trials in competition with the best introductions of American and European hybridizers. Judges at 22 trial gardens in universities, parks and botanic gardens average the scores for selection of the new All-Americas.

If growing conditions are less than ideal, the elapsed time is longer. For instance, Diamond Jubilee, a prize winner, was hybridized in 1937 but was not put into production until 1947.

A laborious process known as budding has expedited production of new roses.

In the late summer, budders go through fields of wild roses (multi-flora), which are used because of their healthy, vigorous root systems. Using sharp knives, they make vertical and horizontal cuts in the shape of a "T". They fold back the loose sections of bark.

The stems of roses have many buds or eyes which, if permitted to grow, develop into flowers. These stems are cut and the eyes, along with a bit of bark, are stripped off.

Into the folded back bark of the multiflora is slipped an eye, which is covered with a strip of plastic.

If and when the budding takes, a new sprout emerges and the old top of the wild rose is lopped off, permitting the strength from the root system to concentrate in the new stem.

The following summer, all going well, the new plant has developed a minimum of three stems. After the plant has become dormant — has gone into its winter sleep — it is dug up and stored in temperature controlled areas until it is ready for shipping to you, as a 2-year-old rose bush.

Time elapsed: Nine years of careful attention.

The original grower is protected against pirating by a plant patent.

How much does it cost to develop a new variety of rose? You and I could do it for practically nothing, save a lot of time and patience. But one big commercial grower estimates each new one costs him $50,000.

UNCONVINCING

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Here's a novel way to win your husband's sympathy:

Police said a local woman, with that in mind, tied and gagged herself and lay on the floor of her home.

When discovered, she said a man posing as a roach exterminator tied her up and robbed her.

There was even a lethal-looking white powder on the floor. Police said it was baking powder.

CAN YOU STOP MOTION at snapshot speed? Yes, if you pan or swing your camera to follow the action itself. Here's how John Gorman did it at 1/25 second to win a prize in a Popular Photography contest.

Camera News

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Camera fans are full of questions from the moment they first get interested in photography. Often, the most urgent questions come when experts aren't around to answer them.

Take the typical photo amateur buying a camera or equipment. He may ask a few general questions and think he understands it all. But doesn't he wish he had the salesman handy later when he is actually loading film or trying to focus with the split-image rangefinder!

Editors of Popular Photography have been saving the most commonly asked questions for 15 years. There were turned over to Robert L. McIntyre, Chicago camera editor, who selected the choice ones and the correct answers to make "1,000 Photo Questions Answered by Experts" (Ziff-Davis). This can take the place of the salesman who isn't handy or the friend who knows everything or the instruction sheet which was tossed away.

Just about every possible category you might have a question about is covered — cameras, lenses and shutters, films, filters and exposures, portraiture, printing and enlarging, movie making, outdoor and indoor picture taking. There are also chapters on shooting stereo and travel photography, camera trickery, slide shots and the legal side.

Here are a few questions picked at random from the book. 1. Are the taking and viewfinding lenses of a twin-lens reflex camera exactly alike? 2. What can I do if I want to take pictures when the light is too dim to shoot with my box - type camera? 3. What is an f-number? 4. Should silicone-treated cloth or paper, used in cleaning eye - glasses, be used in cleaning lenses? 5. What is the difference between the three types of flash synchronization in use today?

Here are the answers:

1. The taking and viewfinding lenses of a twin-lens reflex are not necessarily exactly alike. The viewfinding lens sometimes has a wider aperture in order to give a brighter image and it need not be as fully corrected as the taking lens. However, both must have exactly the same focal length.

2. There are three things you can do to shoot pictures in dim light with a box - type camera: (a) increase the light by using flash or setting up floodlamps; (b) use extremely fast film and give more than normal development time in processing; (c) make a time exposure with the camera mounted on a firm support.

3. An f-number is used to calibrate the aperture settings of most lenses. Theoretically, any two lenses will form equally bright images at the same f-number. The number is derived by dividing the focal length of the lens by the diameter of the aperture. Thus a 4-inch lens with a 1-inch aperture would be rated as f-4.

4. Silicone - treated cloth or paper should never be used on coated lenses. The surface coating of a lens is porous and will take up silicone, changing its optical properties and making it less effective.

5. The three types of flash synchronization are: a) Class X, for electronic flash, with a delay so small it is considered as zero. Contact is made as soon as the shutter is fully open. b) Class F, for gas-filled flashbulbs, provides a 5-millisecond delay since these bulbs reach their peak 5 milliseconds after contact is made. c) Class M, for most other lamps, has a delay of 20 milliseconds.

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

Don't Forget Taller Trees

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

In planting shade trees on your properly, do not forget to plant some of the tall, erect types as well as the spreading ones. Pecans, hickories, tulip poplars, and other trees of this shape cast beautiful long shadows across the lawn and house. They shade you during morning and afternoon from the heat of the sun. Since the growth of these tall species is upward, they do not over shade an area but let in direct sunlight in the middle of the day.

TULIP POPLAR

The beauty of our native tulip poplar, its toughness and its longevity combine to make it a superb tree for the home grounds. The English will travel miles to see a good specimen of this tree. Here and there over the British Isles, there are fine specimens planted on the estates of the lords and ladies who set them out as early as 1688. Some of these trees are over 100 feet tall now.

If you will examine the flower of the tulip poplar, you will see at once that this blossom resembles a magnolia flower very closely. The genus Liriodendron is a close relative of magnolia. The word, liriodendron means lily tree. Perhaps it was the shimmering foliage when the wind blows that gave rise to the name poplar for this tree.

Hickories are hard to move unless you transplant a very small one. It is best to buy one of the improved kinds of hickory from the nurseries that specialize in nut trees. Ordinary nurseries do not usually carry our native species of hickory. The pecan is really a hickory. The many fine varieties available as nut tree make excellent tall shade trees. Be careful not to plant them where the aphids which like pecans so well can drop their sticky honey dew down onto other plants and cause them to be covered with sooty mold like the crape myrtles had so badly this past summer.

SWEET GUMS

Sweet gums are fast growing upright trees. They are not always very long lived because, after they get up to some height, the tip will sometimes die and then the rest of the tree very slowly. Since they grow so fast and are so plentiful and easy to transplant, however, one can set out several near the outer edges of property and hope to get some of them to survive. The many colored leaves are very showy in the fall.

As we have written in this space before, tall trees are good to have along the margins of your property where they will cast the longest shadows. They may, of course, also be planted, here and there, within a lot. Where there are spreading shade trees, the taller ones give contract without taking up much space.

STAMP NEWS

An unusual issue of special stamps commemorating the 75th anniversary of the Proclamation of the Protectorate will be issued by Bechuanaland on Jan. 21. This British territory has never previously honored any domestic event with postage stamps.

There are three stamps in the set —1-pence brown and black, 3-pence magenta and black, 6-pence blue and black.

Queen Elizabeth II plus a landscape scene.

The United Arab Republic has issued a new stamp to celebrate the inauguration of the Aswan Dam Hydroelectric Power Station. The design depicts an aerial view of the station in the foreground. On the same day the cornerstone of the new Aswan High Dam will be laid and a pair of commemoratives will be issued to mark this event. The High Dam should not be confused with the present Aswan Dam. They are two entirely different projects.

The United States will issue a new 4-cent commemorative stamped envelope next July 19 at St. Joseph, Mo., in connection with 1960 Pony Express centennial year celebrations, reports Postmaster Gen. Arthur E. Summerfield.

Commemorative stamped envelopes are comparatively scarce. The U.S. has issued such envelopes only in 1876 for the centennial of the Republic; in 1893 for the Columbia Exposition; in 1926 for the Sesquicentennial Exposition; in 1932 for the 200th anniversary of Washington's birth; and for two International Philatelic Exhibitions in 1947 and 1956.

A new 4-cent commemorative U.S. postage stamp already has been scheduled for first day sale at Sacramento, Calif., next July 19.

From Vatican City comes word that a set of stamps honoring the Nativity has been issued. The values in this set are 15, 25, and 60-lire. Also released was a set consisting of 50 and 100-lire adhesives honoring St. Casimir.

France has issued three new stamps, two of which honor the Red Cross. The Red Cross set has a 20-franc plus 10 adhesive bearing a portrait of Charles Michel de L'Epee, a crossed quill and a flower. The 25-fr plus 10 depicts a portrait of Valentin Hauy. Both of these stamps show the Red Cross emblem. The single isue commemorates the 10th anniversary of NATO. The 50-franc pictures the NATO Headquarters Building, the NATO symbol and inscription "NATO-10th Anniversary."

Tree Planting For January

By AUDREY DAWSON

The month of January is an ideal time to plant shrubs and trees in the landscape. If you are making plans to do some planting, the following suggestions will help insure the shrub or tree to live: Dig a hole twice the size of the plant ball or the spread of the roots. Use a good soil mixture around the new plant. If you do not have good top soil be sure to get some. A soil for trees and shrubs should be high in organic matter. Set the plants no lower than they were before being dug. In fact, setting one-half inch higher is best as this will allow for settling. A thorough watering once each week during first summer will help the trees to live. Remember if that tree you desire on the lawn is not planted soon it will be too late. If you are interested in a tree for the front lawn that is an evergreen select the magnolia but remember it needs plenty of room. The magnolia prefers a moist rich soil but it will grow under almost any condition. In transplanting, clip off all the leaves.

LIVE OAK

The live oak is another tree that is excellent for the front lawn for shade and is an evergreen. It needs a distance from other trees of at least 75 to 100 feet. A live oak prefers a rich moist soil.

The loblolly pine grows very rapidly and will make a shapely tree. This is a pine tree with short dark green leaves or needles. The slash pine is another quick growing pine that makes a beautiful tree. It resembles the long leaf. Both these transplant well but all pines should be moved while quite small.

There are a number of small flowering trees that are excellent in the landscape. The dogwood with its many mases of white flowers is among the better known flowering trees. It prefers semi-shade as it is usually found growing among pines or hardwoods. Keep a heavy mulch around the tree and never cultivate it as you will destroy the small roots near the surface.

A native flowering tree that is beautiful in the landscape is the crab apple. It blooms in March and the small fruits ripen in September and are excellent for jelly.

The redbud is probably used more than any of the small flowering trees. This is a fast growing tree that blooms in February and early March before the leaves appear. It will grow under almost any conditions and makes a light quick shade.

ENERGY IN MILK

I'm sure most of you would agree that milk is one of the best nutritional foods you can buy. But, have you ever stopped to think how much work can be done on the energy provided by just one glass of milk? Experts say you can do any of these activities on energy from one glass of milk: play 20 games of tennis; 9 holes of golf, dance an hour; play cards 3½ hours; sew for 2 hours; clean house for 2 hours; do office work for 2 hours; climb 186 stairs or walk a mile. If you don't drink milk wouldn't it be a good resolution for 1960 to learn to drink milk.

COUNCIL MEETING

Council members of the 24 Home Demonstration Clubs of the parish — please don't forget our first meeting for 1960. Friday, January 22 at 10:00 o'clock at the Agriculture Building in West Monroe. The guest speaker will be Dr. C. A. Ulrich and I know you will want to hear his message.

TALENT CONTEST

Mrs. John Osterland, chairman of the women's Farm Bureau for Ouachita Parish asked that I remind all members that the "Queen and Talent Contest" will be held in connection with the annual barbecue at the West Monroe High School cafeteria February 2nd. Please call Mrs. Osterland at FA 3-5566 or Mrs. W. A. Calloway at FA 3-2544 if you have someone to enter the Queen or Talent Contest or Talk Meet.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

By MARY JARDINE

A blue ribbon flower show was presented at the Garden Center by members of the Epps Garden Club. Organized less than two years ago, this is their first exhibit at the Garden Center.

In the horticulture section Mrs. Sam McIntosh was awarded blue ribbons for exhibits of variegated coleus and a collection of camellias. Purple Dawn and Professor Sargent.

RUSH BASKET

A flat rush basket served as a container for the crescent design composed of brown dock and a line of corn shuck flowers. The color of these is a soft creamy beige, the centers being grains of corn. They are very beautiful, looking somewhat like roses. The method of making is to select inside shucks from dried corn, soak in warm water for fifteen minutes. Partially dry, and cut petals to the desired shape. Curl edges over a pencil. Then wire, with fine florist's wire each petal and group into the size of flower desired. Wire to heavy florists wire for a stem and wrap with brown floral tape. There were about twenty - five flowers in the design above, grading in size from small buds to large open flowers. Mrs. Boyles relates that it took a whole day to make that many flowers.

Mrs. W. A. Lusk was awarded second place for a most colorful fruit and vegetable arrangement. A square wooden compote was selected for the modified Hogarth design. The compote was turned diagonally with one corner facing forward giving the design depth. A Hogarth line was arranged with juniper followed by carrots, lemons, small yellow squash, with bright orange tangerines as a center of interest. A small bunch of grapes trailed over the rim, tieing in with the juniper to complete the line. Glossy camellia foliage was skillfully placed in the background. The compote was placed on a brilliant orange straw mat.

The Oriental composition designed by Mrs. Sam McIntosh was the object of much admiration. A natural straw mat framed in black served as a base. The container was a small version of the traditional usabata of Japan. Mrs. McIntosh arranged a vertical triangle with lycopodium in the background followed by placements of mahonia (holly-grape) with deep red Professor Sargent camellias placed low in the design. A black crane (symbol of long life) was placed to the right of the design.

EXTRA

Mrs. S. D. Boyles provided our "extra" of the week. A beautiful arrangement featuring variegated camellias. A rectangular black compote held the mass design of sansevieria, tall for background. Burford nolly the brilliant red and white camellias and rosettes of pittosporum placed low unifying the plant material and container.

The garden club calendar brings many events now that the holidays are over. Two important dates are ahead in January: The Advanced Refresher Course for Accredited Judges will be held January 25, 26 at the Bentley Hotel, Venetial Room, Alexandria. Instructors for this course awill be Mrs. Robert Reister, Syracuse, New York, "The Sculptured Quality in Flower Arrangements and Original Designs"; Mrs. Walter T. Colquitt, Shreveport, "Iris Culture and Judging"; Dr. E. E. Puls, Hammonds, La., "Chrysanthemum Culture and Judging"; Professor Ira S. Nelson, Lafayette, La., "Amaryllis Culture and Judging"; Dr. R. H. Hanchey, "Camellia Culture and Judging." Registration fee $10.00, individual lectures $3.00, lectures for one day $5.00. The advanced refresher may be attended by any one but only judges may take the examination. Send reservations to: Mrs. N. P. Martone, Bon Air Ranch, Iowa, La.

Executive board meeting, Wednesday, January 27, 1960. Alexandria Community Center 12:30 noon. Presidents or delegates expected to attend.

Install Your Record Player In Your Wall

Put your music on your wall. This is the latest innovation for recorded music, as home entertainment takes another stride forward.

Two new wall installations for stereophonic music — from records or radio — make it far more practicable than ever before, and easier, to arrange your home "sound system" so as to require no floor space.

The new built-in sets have speaker units that are slimmer than conventional sound boxes but deliver real high fidelity sound. Special cabinets for the record changer and amplifier are the other ingredients of the new sets.

A built - in installation of this type presupposes a room where one wall is backed by a closet or stairwell, or the outdoors, as the record changer section must of necessity be deeper than the thickness of the conventional wall. There will, naturally, be a certain amount of carpentry involved but these sets are the first definitely designed to make it as easy as possible to do the kind of wall installation heretofore only the most expert radio and hi - fi technicians have attempted.

The two models, both decorator - designed, are available in walnut and cherry veneers or solid woods and can also be had unfinished so that they can be harmonized with the color scheme of the room.

In some homes it may be more convenient to house the record changer and amplifier in a different wall from the one where the speaker enclosures are placed. This will work just as well the only requirement being to get the speaker wires from the amplifier over to the wall where the speakers are.

Girl Scout News

All adult members of the Girl Scout organization, their families, and any other interested persons, are urged to attend the annual council meeting on Thursday evening at 7:30 at Georgia Tucker School. A treat is in store for them because Lois Jones, executive director of the Fort Smith Arkansas Council, will tell us of her experiences at "Our Cabana," Scout center for the Western Hemisphere, at Cuernava, Mexico. Mrs. Jones was chosen to attend the grand opening and the first Juliette Low session. She has some beautiful slides she will show us, too.

A number of troops have shown the filmstrip, "A Trip to Our Cabana", which can be borrowed from the office. Mary Ann Atkinson, Troop 15, and her mother visited "Our Cabana" summer before last and report that it is as beautiful as the pictures. It is not a hostel or a camp but a delightful home - away - from - home where individual girls or troops may live for a week or two and work together with girls of many countries and cultures on a program of Girl Guide and Girl Scout activities.

Because girls have shown much interest in the Cabana, Intermediates are being urged to attend Thursday's meeting, and Brownies may come if their parents wish to bring them. Girls will have an opportunity to see one use of the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund, to which they contribute each year. The fund will continue to sponsor international gatherings at "Our Cabana," as well as at "Our Chalet" in Switzerland.

For the leader recognition ceremony, the planning committee hopes that at least one leader and one girl from each troop will be present. After the meeting there will be a social hour and a chance to meet Mrs. Jones.

At the Sunday afternoon tea given by Mrs. G. N. Patterson and daughter Carol for Troop 5, girls were awarded the proficiency badges they had earned during the summer and fall. Leaders Mrs. J. H. Keeling and Mrs. Parrino awarded the following: Adventurer: Susan Kilpatrick, Barbara Parrino, Sally Taylor. Swimming: Barbara Parrino, Susan Stone. Cook: Sally Taylor, Susan Kilpatrick, Barbara Parrino, Leigh Russell, Ann Murphy, Carol Patterson. Tree: Ann Murphy, Leigh Russell, Susan Stone, Sally Taylor, Susan Kilpatrick, Barbara Parrino, Debra Beaver, Carol Patterson. Outdoor safety: Susan Kilpatrick, Barbara Parrino, Sally Taylor. Musician: Susan Stone. Drawing and painting: Carol Waschka.

Another troop that had a recent court of awards is Troop 40, Mrs. J. A. Salisbury and Mrs. Charles A. Heine, leaders. Badges earned were: Tree: Linda Correro, Harriet Wadley, Sharon Roberts, Mary Ann Salisbury, Nell Smith, Marcia Kissell, Dottie Kiper. Outdoor safety: Linda Correro, Harriett Wadley, Mary Ann Salisbury. Adventurer: Linda Correro, Harriett Wadley, Mary Ann Salisbury. Swimmer: Mary Ann Salisbury.

Leaders of Troop 40 were surprised on Christmas Eve to receive gifts of red roses from their troop. It's always nice to hear that girls and their mothers appreciate the work of leaders. It doesn't have to be roses, but an occasional word does help these fine volunteers who make Scouting possible.

Do plan your family's life so that you can be at Georgia Tucker School Thursday evening.

CLOTHES Make Your Man

By Harry Juster

DEAR MR. JUSTER: My husband came home with a new outfit. Listen to this description! Black suit, black tie, white shirt, black hat and black shoes. While it wasn't a happy thought, I couldn't help laughing and told him he was all ready for the unde taker. Honestly, is the latest for men?

mrs. G. S.

He's "overdone." A monotone look is exactly what the word implies— monotonous. Black is pppular but contrast is needed. A whiteground tie, white breast pocket handkerchief and gray hat will create an entirely different effect. Black still dominates but the contrast breaks it up so that everything about him doesn't remind you of Edgar Allen Poe's "Raven."

* * *

DEAR MRS. JUSTER: I waited on a woman shopping for gift shirts for her husband. When I asked his size she pointed at a man and said "My husband's just a little taller and heavier." A great help! Odds are the size I guessed was wrong. The result? Another exchange after Christmas. A few timely words about checking sizes might save shoppers and us "hard working" sales girls a lot of unnecessary headaches.

Wilma D.

Why is it so many women know everything about their men except the sizes they wear? No question, a little beforehand size sleuthing helps eliminate back tracking to stores. It also helps avoid Christmas day disappptments. Playing guessing games about gift sizes can be trying to all concerned. Indidentally, what's YOUR boy friend's shirt measurements?

* * *

DEAR MRS. JUSTER: I have a toast shade polo topcoat and always wear a chocolate brown hat with it. I prefer to wear dark gray or blue suits and black shoes all the time. Now am I wrong in wearing these colors with this coat and hat?

R.S.

Toast and chocolate are a tasty combination—for a topcoat and a hat. Don't worry about its clashing with your suit and shoes. Polo coats are traditionally camel or toast shade. You can consider it a neutral color that goes well with any other color. You've picked the right hat, too, as it always should blend with the coat.

DEAR MR. JUSTER: My wife returns practically every present I buy her because she claims I don't pay attention to the kind of things she wears. For instance for her last birthday I bought her a pair of silk pajamas. She claims she hasn't worn silk pajamas for 10 years. Should I stop buying her gifts?

.... G.C...

Don't stop buying her gifts but start finding out what she wants! This Christmas is a good time to begin. P.S. By the way, what does this have to do with men's clothes?

To Mrs. A.L. Measure the widest part of his palm. That's his glove size.

TIP FOR THE DAY

Ladies, Take Care Or Beware

Ladies, you mother us, feed us, sometime even inspire us. Being men, we thrive on it. But when you try to clothe us, please, a little care! Shy away from bizzare ties, noisy socks, wild pajamas and freakish sportshirts. We'll love you for not trying to make us look like a Christmas tree.

Mr. Juster will be glad to answer your questions. He also has a booklet, "Guide to Better Dress' which includes a color chart, physical proportions chart, and many tips for improving appearance. The booklet is available free. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope to Harry Juster in care of this paper.

Fowler Plans Legislation On Machines

BATON ROUGE (AP) —Douglas Fowler, Democratic nominee for state custodian of voting machines, said Saturday he will seek new legislation for more efficient operations in his office.

His office became elective with the new four-year term.

Fowler, who was on the winning ticket for former Gov. Jimmie Davis, termed the Jan. 9 Democratic runoff "the most efficiently administered" race for governor in the history of the state.

"It would be foolish of me," he said, "to assume that we in the custodian's office have solved all the problems relating to voting machines, despite the smoothness of the last election.

"I feel certain legislation is necessary to insure more efficient operation of the office of custodian of voting machines."

He did not indicate what changes he had in mind.

Fowler praised the work of election officials. He said a joint report by his chief technicians indicated the Jan. 9 election set a new record for machines used and votes cast with a minimum of trouble.

FORESEE OPPOSITION

Senators Comment On Highway Bills

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two senators active in highway legislation made it clear Saturday there would be bipartisan opposition to any administration move to curb city freeways under the national superhighway program.

Sens. Albert Gore (D-Tenn), author of the 1956 highway law setting up the interstate system, and Thomas H. Kuchel (R-Calif), assistant Republican leader, told a reporter they would fight strongly against any such effort.

Maj. Gen. John S. Bragdon, a special assistant to President Eisenhower, has been studying the interstate program with special attention to the high cost of the urban links.

Reports have reached congressional road experts that some recommendation may be made to cut down the federal participation in the building of these links. The U. S. government pays 90 per cent of the cost of the interstate roads.

Gore said the superhighway network would make no sense at all without the urban segments.

"If they were not in the program, we simply would be funneling huge volumes of traffic into cities with no provision to handle them," he declared.

The Tennesseean emphasized that freeways leading to downtown areas plus belt routes around most major cities are an integral part of the program as originally supported by the administration.

Administration officials are reported to have been unhappy because many states have concentrated first attention on the urban routes.

Kuchel said he regards this as entirely understandable because "that's where the big volumes of traffic are."

The Californian said he does not believe there is anything to reports that the administration will seek to withdraw from full support of superhighway projects in the congested cities.

When the 1956 law was passed, it was estimated the superhighway network would cost about 27½ billion dollars in federal and state funds. Last year the cost estimate shot up to 40 billion, leading to the new White House study.

The city links are by far the most expensive parts of the system because of the high cost of rights-of-way and the difficulties of building cloverleafs and other access roads in congested areas.

The congressional experts said they believe any move to curb federal participation in the city freeways would have to go before Congress. That definitely would be the case if the 90-10 formula were to be changed, since this is written into the law.

These sources noted that many of the city projects have been built in the last four years or are under contract, and said there undoubtedly would be opposition to changing the rules now and depriving other cities of the same opportunity.

Special Adult Classes Set At Grambling

GRAMBLING (Special) —Registration for seven special adult evening classes tailored to fit the needs of grownups and scheduled for six weeks beginning January 19 was completed at Grambling college this week, it was announced yesterday by J. Andrew Gaulden, director, bureau of publication.

Edward F. Purvis, director of the community adult education services division at Grambling college, stated that the special adult classes are offered free by the school as a part of its community service program designed to meet various training needs of grown up patrons of the school.

Formal courses in foreign languages will be offered for credit at a small fee starting Feb. 4.

BERGUNDY LACKS PUNCH

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Bergundy dispensed in vending machines at the Naval Training Center is not only nonalcoholic but noncarbonated too. The Navy said it is merely a grape drink, one of seven flavors available there for a nickle.

THANK YOU

One and All

In my opinion, to be elected to public office is one of the highest honors our people can bestow, and I want to express my deepest appreciation to all of you whose support elected me as one of Ward Five's police jurors.

I renew my pledge that I will do my best to make you a worthy police juror. I have no ill feeling toward any of you who saw fit not to vote for me, and I promise that my services will be available to everyone on an equal and fair basis.

CONSERVATION ROUNDUP

District Oil Activity Produces Four Completions

Field activities in oil and gas exploration in the 14-parish Monroe District last week turned up four new completions and eight new locations.

Also listed in the report compiled by Duncan S. Cook, district manager of the Monroe district, of the Louisiana Department of Conservation, were 28 active drilling rigs and one hole plugged and abandoned.

These are the new completions:

CONCORDIA

Lake St. John Field — The California Co's D. V. Applegate No. 12 in sec. 14-9-10E, completed to flow 145 barrel's through a 3-64 in choke perforated at 4231-36 ft., tubing pressure 560 lbs. Gas oil ratio 301:1, gravity 44.6.

Lismore Landing Field — William White et al's Simmons No. 3 in sec. 16-6-7E, completed to flow 99 barrels through a 3-64 in. choke perforated at 3273-87 ft., tubing pressure 400 lbs. gas oil ratio 400:1, gravity 47.

OUACHITA

Calhoun Field — Sinclair Oil & Gas Co's C. F. Butler unit No. 1 in sec. 29-18-1E, triple completion: No. 1-completed at 9265 ft. with 291 barrels and 2,800 MCF; No. 1-D-8855-62 ft. 4000 MCF; No. 1-T-at 7466 ft. with 4.24 barrels and MCF at 4240.

TENSAS

Justina Field — Pioneer Gas & Oil Co's E. S. Matthews et al No. 1 in sec. 30-12-11E, completed and gauged at 12 barrels through a 2-64 in. choke perforated at 8361-90 ft., MCF 433, tubing pressure 1375 lbs. gas oil ratio 206:59, gravity 54, shut in.

These are the new locations:

CONCORDIA

Wildcat Field—Justiss Mears Oil Co's J. M. Jones No. 1 in sec. 29-6-7E, located 2310 ft. north and 2320 ft. west of SE corner.

Lake St. John Field—The California Co's L. R. Atwood et al No. 3 in sec. 11-9-10E, located 630 ft. south and 330 ft. east of NE corner.

LA SALLE

Business Briefs

James B. Bradley has been appointed a special agent of the Franklin Life Insurance Co. in Monroe, according to Fred Petty, regional manager.

RUSTON (Special) — Employment at Lincoln Enterprises is reported up 15 per cent high at this time over a year ago, according to A. J. Colodny, plant manager.

The factory manufactures picnic equipment.

RAYVILLE (Special) — Two new directors have been elected by the Richland State Bank and two officers have been advanced, according to Fred Morgan, president. Another employee has been promoted to officer status.

Robert W. Calvert and C. J. Ellis Jr. were named to the Board of Directors. James R. Craig was named vice president; B. L. Waite was advanced to cashier and Mrs. Marie K. Ineichen was elevated to assistant cashier.

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) — Harry M. Clark has accepted a position with The Crossett Company here as editor of "Forest Echoes," the company publication, and assistant to the director of public relations.

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) — Robert Ross Wright III, has joined the Crossett Company's legal department.

Prior to joining the company, Wright was associated with the law firm of Norton, Norton and Wright at Forrest City.

A. P. Kitchens of Kitchens Construction Co., 3705 Lee Ave., Monroe, has accepted an invitation to participate in a panel discussion at the Home Improvement Show in Chicago, Ill., on Feb. 14. He will join two other building materials dealers and will explore more effective controls for remodeling operations.

One of the highlights of the meeting, Heflin said, was a talk on moral leadership in business and government by Rear Admiral Fitzhugh Lee.

Cotton Moving Narrowly

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures moved in a consistently narrow range on the New York Cotton Exchange this week, ending mixed with prices 65 cents a bale higher to 25 cents a bale lower.

Bullish factors behind the market were mill price fixing and scattered short covering in the nearer positions, plus commission house buying of the new crop months.

Selling came through profit-taking, scattered hedge selling and some spot house liquidation.

The exchange announced an extension of trading to 24 months ahead instead of 18 months, thereby clearing the way for trading in the October 1961 and December 1961 contracts earlier than was possible under the old system. The exchange hoped the switch would increase trading volume.

The 1961 domestic crop of upland cotton will have only one price support program available to those growers who take part. This contrasts with the current government program, which offers participants two choices with varying regulations and support levels.

Estimated exports of cotton during the week ended last Tuesday were off a bit from the previous week, but again ran far ahead of the comparable 1959 week. The New York Cotton Exchange service bureau estimated exports at 119,000 bales vs. 124,000 a week earlier and 43,000 a year ago. For the current season through Jan. 12, they reached an estimated level of 2,207,000 bales compared with 1,256,000 at the same time last season.

Stock Mart Continues Back Trend

The decline on average matched that of the week ended Oct. 24 which was the steepest weekly decline since the week ended Sept. 19.

The selloff wiped out most of December's advance and brought losses running to 4 or more points for key issues.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped $3.60 to $226.60, exceeded most recently only by the fall of $5.30 in the week ended Sept. 19.

Tight money remained the dominating market influence, brokers said, and Wall Street was reflecting the worldwide trend toward higher interest rates.

Trading activity was centering more and more on very low-priced issues. This reflected the appetite for speculative trading vehicles, rather than solid investment demand, and was regarded by most market analysts as a bad sign.

Volume for the week slipped to 17,680,696 shares from 18,027,086 the week before when the market also declined.

The five most active issues this week on the New York Stock Exchange were:

Fairbanks Whitney, up 1⅞ at 11 on 743,100 shares; Hupp Corp. off ½ at 11½; A. J. Industries, up 1½ at 6⅛; Graham-Paige, up ⅝ at 3¼; General Motors, off 2¾ at 51⅝.

The five most active on the American Stock Exchange were:

Anacon Lead, up 3-16 at 7⅜; Israel-American Oil, up ⅛ at 1⅝; Nuclear Corp. of America, up ⅜ at 3⅛; Silver Creek Precision, up ⅛ at 2; and Occidental Petroleum, up ¼ at 6⅝.

Bonds moved within a relatively narrow range, winding up with small plus and minus signs. Volume was $27,722,000 par value compared with $32,808,000 the week before.

Founder's Day Program Set

GRAMBLING (Special) — The Rev. Charles Morton, dean of the chapel, Dillard University, New Orleans, will be the featured speaker for the Carver Founder's Day vesper program of the Phi Beta Beta Sigma fraternity to be held in the Grambling College auditorium today at 1:00 p.m.

Grain Mart Influences Are Minor

CHICAGO (AP)—Influences in the grain futures market were scarce and minor this week with price shifts in most pits limited to small ranges.

Transactions generally were guided by technical considerations and long range views which the trade calls the statistical outlook. Technical considerations include such distressing possibilities as being short in the market when longs are reaping the profits and vice versa.

In an almost stationary market, speculative traders particularly jump back and forth frequently as they re-appraise factors expected to influence prices over both the long and short term.

That was the puzzle confronting the trade generally throughout most of the week as one factor after another passed without any significant effect.

The long-awaited government report of the stocks of grains on farms as of Jan. 1 did little to or for either side of the market.

Snowfall, usually a bearish factor, hit a large area of the Great Plains where the winter wheat crop had been described as needing moisture and in danger of being blown out. Again prices scarcely budged.

One bit of news struck a jolting blow, though. It was a report Commodity Credit Corp. sold about 1½ million bushels of loan-defaulted soybeans. It brought out general selling which cut deeply into an accumulation of stop loss liquidation and took nearly all soybean months down as much as two cents in one day.

At the end of the week, wheat was 1½ cents a bushel lower on old crop contracts to ½ cent higher on 1960 crop months, March $2.02⅜-⅝; corn ⅝ higher to ½ lower, March $1.14⅝-¾; oats unchanged to 1⅛ higher, March 77¼; rye ½-2 cents lower, March $1.28½-¾; soybeans ⅝-3 cents lower, January $2.13-14⅛.

Mayor Norris' Wife Featured In Publication

Mrs. Tommye Conner Norris, wife of West Monroe Mayor J. Allan Norris, is featured as Louisiana Lady of the month in the current issue of the Louisiana Municipal Review.

The Review says Mrs. Norris' life "offers proof positive that a closely knit family group can enjoy a full, interesting life."

Mrs. Norris, mother of two children, is portrayed as a public official's wife with many family interests and civic activities as West Monroe's first lady.

Some of her hobbies are gardening and raising flowers. She also enjoys cooking special dishes for the family and friends and sewing and fishing.

TOYS MEAN BUSINESS

LINDEN, N. J. (AP) — Researchers for a major oil company here have been playing with toy boats for months. But they get paid for it.

Using models of oil tankers, they study ways to save money in the construction of piers for the big vessels. So far they have been able to simulate winds of 110 miles an hour, in wind tunnels, and waves 27 feet high and 615 feet long.

NATIONALLY

Safeway Stores Major Operation

Monroe's newest business, Safeway Stores, Incorporated, is the nation's second largest food retailer. With its 2,164 stores the company passed the $2-billion in annual sales in 1957, the third retailer to pass that figure. Sales in 1959 totaled $2,382,950,547, representing the highest annual sales in Safeway's history.

In a way Safeway is a product of the Mid-West country. M. B. Skaggs, the founder, was one of 14 children of a minister in Missouri. Mr. Skaggs still owns property near Branson, Missouri.

Actually, Skaggs began his grocery career as a clerk in a store out in Idaho. He opened his first store at American Falls, Idaho in 1915. By 1926 there were 428 stores in the 'Skaggs chain" which were merged on March 26 of that year with a California chain of 496 stores to become Safeway Stores, Incorporated. Combined annual sales were more than $50,000,000. By 1931 Safeway had expanded to its all-time peak of 3,527 stores.

SUPERMARKETS

Then came the years of the supermarkets since World War II. Better roads and more automobiles brought the demand for one-stop grocery shopping. Larger stores with ample parking spaces served wider areas. Smaller stores were closed as the "supers" were built.

Changes came fast in the supermarkets. Demands of housewives for more services — "built-in maid service" — quickly showed the need for more pre-wrapped and frozen foods. Some stores built as late as 1950 were out-of-date by 1955. Growth and change have been the history of Safeway.

Safeway's headquarters are at Oakland, California. Today there are 25 Retail Divisions, operating principally in the states west of the Mississippi, but there are two divisions on the East Coast — at Washington, D. C. and New York City — and five in Western Canada.

The Monroe stores are in the Arkansas Division, and mark the entry of Safeway into the State of Louisiana. The Division, consisting of 43 retail stores, is headed by K. W. Huntington.

PURCHASES

Wherever possible, Safeway purchases locally produced, manufactured, or processed products. As an example, in 1959 alone, the company purchased more than 26½ million pounds of poultry from Arkansas producers. In the same state last year, Safeway bought nearly 2 million pounds of rice, a million dozen eggs, 7 million pounds of fresh fruits and vegetables, and more than 100 train car loads of locally canned foods. Helping producers get their crops to market is everyday business for Safeway.

Helping producers in times of emergencies due to weather or bumper crops is an old story. It was back in the winter of 1931-32 that the real value of chains to farmers and ranchers was first emphasized. Severe winter weather threatened ranchers with staggering losses in lamb. They needed help badly, urgently. Safeway threw open its resources to create an extra demand among consumers and sold more than half a million pounds of lamb, thus helping steady the market. This inaugurated the first of the tremendously important Farmer-Consumer Campaigns that have become nationwide cooperative sales events with both chains and independents participating.

Although Monroe's newest business is the nation's second largest food retailer, its tremendous growth has just kept its pace with the total grocery sales in the nation. in 1936 Safeway had 5.1 per cent of the nation's total grocery sales. in 1956 it still had 5.1 per cent.

Anti-Trust Case May Be Shorter

TULSA (AP) — Elaborate preliminary work promises to shorten the trial of the government's massive anti-trust case against 29 major oil companies.

The non-jury trial opens here Feb. 1 before U. S. District Judge Royce Savage.

The case was transferred here late in 1958 from Alexandria, Va. Most predictions are that the trial will last two to six months.

The 29 firms are charged in the criminal case with conspiring about the time of the 1956 Suez Canal crisis to fix prices in their marketing areas.

The government charges specifically the companies agreed in January, 1957, to raise the price they paid for crude oil. About this time the average price went up about 25 cents a barrel in the firms' operating areas.

A federal grand jury asserted the companies control five sixths of the oil purchased in the affected states and 65 per cent of the gasoline sold.

The defendants requested transfer of the case to Tulsa, a more central location.

Some oil attorneys say it is "ultra-conservative" to estimate the defendants' total cost in fighting the accusations will be 10 times the maximum fine of $50,000 each could be assessed on conviction. Other guesses the defense bill may exceed 20 million dollars.

"We're fighting it because we're innocent and we intend to prove it."

Hearing government anti-trust lawyers is Joseph McDowell, who acknowledges the Justice Department has no specific evidence of a conspiracy but will try to show that subpoenaed company documents "tend" to prove a conspiracy.

The government's position is this:

At the time of the alleged conspiracy there was an ample supply of oil. Yet there was a general price increase. There is evidence to show the companies had prior knowledge of the impending raise.

Savage has directed a series of pre-trial conferences that agreed on numerous stipulations, or statements of fact not to be argued.

The 29 companies are:

Carter Oil, DX Sunray, Indiana Oil Purchasing, Skelly, Cities Service, (Del) Phillips, Arkansas Fuel Oil Corp., Ashland Oil and Refining, Atlantic Refining, Cities Service (N.Y.), continental, Esso Standard, Gulf, Humble, Magnolia, Monsanto Chemical Co., Ohio Oil, Shell, Sinclair Crude oil Co., Sinclair Refining, Socony Mobil, Sohio Petroleum, Standard Oil Co. (Ind.), Standard (N.J.) Standard (Ohio), Sun, Texas Cp., Tidewater, and Sinclair Oil Corp.

The government has issued subpoenaes for 28 officials of the oil companies involved. They include those for:

P. H. Duval, vice president, Arkansas Fuel Oil Corp., Shreveport, La.; H. J. Voorhies, vice president and general manager, Baton Rouge refinery, Esso Standard Oil Co., Baton Rouge, La.; J. E. Brewster, Louisiana - Arkansas division manager, Stanolind Oil Purchasing Co., New Orleans; and A. J. Ferguson, manager crude oil purchasing dept., Esso, Shreveport.

Pike County Field Still Expanding

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) The McComb oil field in Pike County continues to expand as oil sand was logged in a well one half mile west of the present limits.

The field was located in August, 1959, and now has 16 producing wells. Thirteen drilling operations are underway and 18 location permits have been issued.

The newest well is the L. O. Elam et al No. 1 with Cook, Brown and Hewett, sec. 8-3n-7e. hich logged oil sand at 10,950 feet. Operators are running production tests for completion.

A new Shallow field has been opened in Adams County with Keary and Griffin officially completing their USA No. 1, sec. 29-5n-1w. The well is flowing 64 barrels per day from a Sparta sand at 4299-4301 feet.

In Clarke County, Kennington, Thurber and Miller are erecting a pumping unit at their discovery, the Brewer No. 1, sec. 28-1n-17a, located near the Langsdale field. The wildcat flowed at the rate of 44 barrels per day from perforations at 3430-72 feet.

Near the Baxterville field in Marion County, Stekoll Petroleum Co. is preparing to test its wildcar, the Gex No. 1, sec. 25-2n-17w. The venture was drilled to 12,455 feet, with operators running production casing to 11,850 feet.

McLean and Hill are reported to be pumping their Monroe County wildcat. The venture is the Brasfield Boyd No. 1, sec. 31-13s-17w, with reports it is pumping 50 barrels per day.

At McComb, Sun Oil and Willis Hughes completed their Crowder unit No. 1, sec. 11-3n-7e, flowing 304 barrels per day from a sand at 10,902-12 feet.

In the Little Creek field on the Pike County side, Sun completed its Nunnery-Busby No. 1, sec. 23-Gulf Oil completed its Nelson 4n-8e, flowing 221 barrels per day from a sand at 10-732-40 feet.

At Heidelberg in Jasper County, Gulf Oil completed its Nelson Simmons No. 2, sec. 31-1n-13e, flowing 83 barrels per day from a sand at 4,335-50 feet.

TO GASOLINE TAXES

Seek To Soften Oilman's Objection

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — One way to soften the oilman's objections to gasoline and vehicle taxes is to earmark the tax income for highway construction.

A major objection raised by oilmen last year to the one-cent per gallon boost in the federal gasoline tax was the amount of motorist taxes already going into the general fund.

Such objections will be renewed this year if the anticipated efforts to boost the federal gasoline tax another half cent or more actually develop.

The American Petroleum Institute (API) contends only 58 per cent of all the federal government's special taxes on motorists for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1958, went into the highway trust fund.

Of the 3.6 billion dollars collected, 2.1 billion was allocated to the trust fund and 1.5 billion was channeled into the general fund of the U.S. treasury.

Expenditures made from state motor fuel and vehicle tax collections for 1958 are in sharp contrast with the federal disbursements.

Only 6.5 per cent of the over 4.6 billion dollars collected by the 48 states and the District of Columbia in 1958 was spent for non-highway purposes.

Some states divert as much as 29 per cent of such taxes to non-highway purposes but 20 states earmark all such income for highway use.

The API has distributed the 1958 statistical tables on state motor fuel and vehicle taxes as compiled by the Bureau of Public Roads of the Department of Commerce.

The 48 states and the District of Columbia in 1958 collected $4,688,153,000 (b). Motor fuel taxes accounted for $2,976,196,000 (b), motor vehicle and motor carrier taxes $1,711,963,000 (b).

Collection and administration of taxes, $192,521,000 (m) or 4.1 per cent.

Work on state highways, $2,547,589,000 (b) or 54.3 per cent.

Local roads and streets, $1,223,309,000 (b) or 26.1 per cent.

Highway debt service, $232,248,000 (m) or 5 per cent.

State highway police, $139,160,000 (m) or 4 per cent.

Non-highway purposes, $303,326,000 (m) or 6.5 per cent.

Of the funds used for non-highway purposes, 63 per cent came from motor vehicle and carrier taxes, 32 per cent from motor fuel receipts.

The $303,326,000 (m) not spent on highways was disbursed this way:

County and local general funds, $100,687,000 (m).

Education, debt service, miscellaneous, $97,189,000 (m).

The District of Columbia and Rhode Island diverted the largest percentage of income. Each sent 29.4 per cent into the general funds. Florida followed at 27.9 per cent with state and local general funds and education benefiting.

California diverted the largest amount but its $88,116,000 (m) to county and local general funds represented only 16.1 per cent of all income. The entire amount came from motor vehicle and carrier receipts.

States allocating all high user taxes to highway purposes were Arizona, Connecticut, Idaho, Maine, Maryland, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, Ohio, South Dakota, Vermont, Virginia, West Virginia, and Wyoming.

Death Claims Retired Baskin Postmaster

Harry R. Mock Sr., 61, a retired Postmaster of Baskin, died Saturday in Vicksburg, Miss. in a hospital.

Funeral services will be held in Baskin Baptist Church at 2:30 p.m. Sunday and interment will be in the Mock Family Cemetery under the direction of Mulhearn Funeral Home of Rayville.

He was a member of the Winnsboro Masonic Lodge no. 246, postmaster at Baskin for 22 years, and had been a rural carrier for the past 14 years.

Survivors are his widow Mrs. Mary E. Mock, Baskin; one son, Harry Mock Jr., West Monroe; his father N. T. Mock, Baskin; three sisters, Mrs. Ella Wamble and Mrs. Nell Rorak, both of Baskin, Mrs. Sally Richardson, Monroe, and one grandson.

METALLIC'S NEW LO-PITCH BUILDINGS

Modern architectural treatments developed the need for a Metallic-type building with a low pitch roof, such as the building above. The Metallic Lo-Pitch building combines all the economy and adaptability of standard Metallic buildings plus the Lo-Pitch roof that blends into the architectural pattern of modern shopping centers. Unobstructed, clear span interiors provide maximum usable space. These buildings are easily insulated and air conditioned and can be furnished with any type walls desired. Roofing and siding is available in six eye-appealing colors. Exclusive Stran-Satin color sheets have a two-layer protective coating of vinyl-aluminum that is vastly superior to paint — assures minimum maintenance.

OF MRS. FINCH

Actor Volunteers To Outline Life

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A handsome Hollywood actor has volunteered to tell what he knows of the gay social life of Barbara Jean Finch—and its abrupt and violent end.

Actor Mark Stevens was a member of the same swank tennis club as Mrs. Finch and her husband, Dr. R. Bernard Finch.

The state charges that Dr. Finch, 42, and his mistress, Carole Tregoff, 23, lay in wait to murder the physician's 36-year-old estranged wife when she came home.

Stevens, scheduled to take the stand as the case resumes Monday, has given a newsman an indication of what he may testify. A few days before she died, he said, Mrs. Finch told him that she believed her husband planned to kill her.

Before the trial was recessed Wednesday because of a juror's illness, the attorney who represented Mrs. Finch in a divorce action testified that she told him the doctor had twice beaten her with a pistol.

Attorney Joseph T. Forno said an investigator was assigned by his office to act as Mrs. Finch's bodyguard. Forno said she was out with this investigator the night she died.

When she returned home, however, she was alone. She was found shot to death on a neighbor's lawn.

Both Finch and Miss Tregoff are charged with murder and conspiracy. So far the testimony has centered on Finch.

But starting Monday the attention may focus for the first time on the tall, attractive redhead who was once the physician's receptionist.

A man under sentence in Minneapolis on bad-check charges has been brought here to testify about what the state calls its second major part of the case against the pair—the part it calls "the plot."

John Patrick Cody told authorities that Miss Tregoff tried to hire him to kill Mrs. Finch. He claims she and the doctor paid him almost $1,400 to murder the doctor's wife. He says he took the money and spent it, gambling and drinking in Las Vegas, Nev., without ever intending to kill her.

The prosecution, in its opening statement, said that first it would prove that Mrs. Finch was murdered. Then, said Dep. Dist. Atty. Fred N. Whichello, it would prove that the couple developed the conspiracy to slay Mrs. Finch.

The day after his wife's death Finch was arrested in the Las Vegas, Nev., apartment of Miss Tregoff. She was arrested after testifying at his preliminary hearing.

The state contends her testimony differed from what she had earlier told police. It also said Cody's information proved she played a part in a murder conspiracy.

Miss Tregoff has watched impassively as the state developed its case against her lover. None of the testimony thus far has involved her in the incidents of the night of July 18.

Her attorneys have let the doctor's counsel carry the burden of the defense. One of her lawyers, Rex Eagan, rising last week to agree to a minor point of law, told the court: "Your honor, I just like to stand up now and then to keep the press in my trousers."

Samuel Langhorne Clemens, better known as Mark Twain, died in 1910.

LEE ZACHARY

Lee Zachary Speaker For DSC Banquet

Lee Zachary, executive director of the El Dorado Committee, will be the guest speaker at the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce's Distinguished Service Award Banquet Tuesday night at the Paragon Club. He will present the award to Monroe's outstanding young man of the year.

Zachary, outstanding young man in El Dorado in 1954, is a professional industrial development promoter and has been active in junior chamber work since 1940.

GRANT MC

Master of ceremonies for the DSA banquet will be Bailey Grant, sheriff of the Ouachita Parish and a former DSA winner.

BASIS

The outstanding young man is chosen on the basis of: (1) contributions to the general community welfare during 1959, (2) evidence of leadership ability and, (3) personal or business progress. The winner must be between the ages of 21 and 35, unless his activities for which he is judged were performed before he became 36. Nominations may still be submitted to jaycee president Louis Daniel or DSA committee chairman Volney Pierce.

A judges committee, composed of citizens of Monroe who are now over 35 will make the selection. The identity of the judges and their selection as to the outstanding young man will not be announced until Tuesday night.

I wish to express my sincere and heartfelt thanks to relatives, friends and neighbors for the kindness and sympathy shown us during the illness and death of my beloved father, William Howard Hootsell. Special thanks to Drs. Herman Gibson, Jr. and L. P. Coleman and Concordia General Hospital Staff, Brother Horace Carpenter, Brother Finas Corie and Brother Boyd. Many thanks for the beautiful floral offerings and condolence cards. All have my everlasting gratitude.

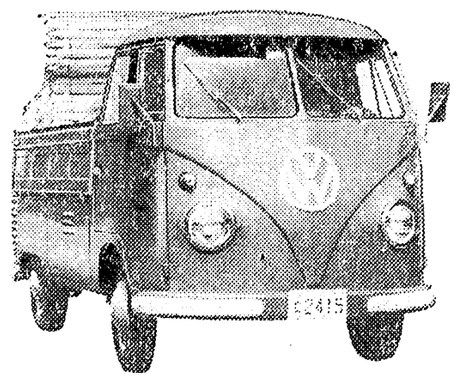
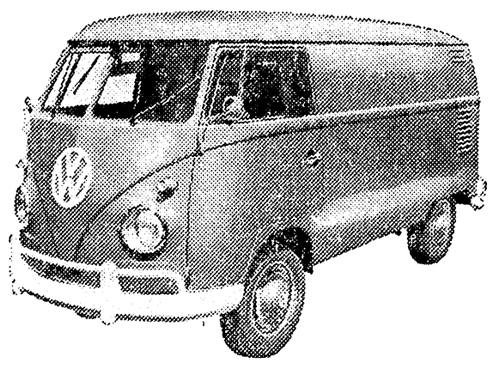
Guess the AGE of this Volkswagen!



This VW Pick-up is nearly 3 years old, and has worked hard for 32,000 miles. Yet it looks and behaves like new.

All Volkswagens are built to stay young and styled to look young, even after years of workdays. This VW carries ½ of a ton—with sides up, as a pick-up, or with sides down, as a flat-bed. It costs half as much to operate as the usual ½-ton pick-up. And that you can check any time.

Guess the COST of this one!



This VW Panel Delivery costs only $1895 P.O.E. (The VW Pick-up costs only $1885 P.O.E. That's considerably under the price of usual panel deliveries which fall far short of VW's 1830 pounds capacity.

And that's only part of what you save. Volkswagen delivers twice the gas, oil and tire mileage of the usual ½-ton truck; unique Protective Service Plan keeps maintenance costs down low. Com in and get a free copy of "We'll Let the Customr Do the Talking!"

THERE'S ROOM FOR LAUGHTER

Looking for plenty of living space? This 3 bedroom home with den is what you've been waiting for. The attic is partly floored and would make a nice play room for the children with little cost. This 8 year old house located 3 blocks from elementary school in West Monroe has one ¾ ton window unit and a 42" window fan for hot summer nights. The polished oak floors and six closets will meet the fancy of any housewife. Just $300 down. Call Hershal McConathy, FA 3-6328.

INVESTMENT PROPERTY

This frame home has been converted into a duplex and is conveniently located between Louisville and downtown DeSiard. The front porch is brick faced with a concrete floor. The solid slab driveway leads to the two apartments in the back, one of which is an upstairs apartment. The cinder block garage and work shop are adjacent to the two apartments. The sales price of $16,500 includes the furnishings of the presently rented apartments and one side of the duplex. Monthly income from all apartments exceeds $200. See us today about this! Call Vernon Maxwell, FA 2-5570.

THE HOME DISTINCTIVE

A truly luxurious home built with imagination and foresight. It's located in the new and exclusive Pargoud Blvd. Extension. The 2½ baths add luxury to this 3 bedroom home with over 2000 square feet of living area. The kitchen with its built-in oven and range, refrigerator and freezer, dishwasher and disposal is designed to speed work, but so pretty it encourages dawdling. The family will enjoy the atmosphere of this cherry paneled family room with exposed beams, indirect neon lighting, and two-way fireplace. The floors are of terazzo and carpet. For year-round comfort, there's central heating and air conditioning. If you're looking for a very special home that will be the envy of your friends, call us now for an appointment, FA 3-2625.

IDEAL COUNTRY LIVING

Want to build in the country? Want to have a little garden spot? Here is your opportunity to do just that. One acre on Slocum Road is all open and waiting for a buyer in this rapidly developing community near Chapel Hill Church. Possibilities of buying added acreage around you. Call Hershal McConathy, FA 3-6328.

NEW LISTING
North Monroe Subdivision

Add pride of ownership to all the other values of this fine home. Located outside the city limits on a tree-studded 100x150 lot. There are community water system and blacktop streets. The large living room and three bedrooms have cork-tile floors. The 1½ baths have asbestos tile floors as well as the kitchen and dining area. The double carport has a utility room and 9x16 workshop. The owners know this home is worth more than the $14,800 they are asking and want to show by appointment only. Call Vernon Maxwell, FA 2-5570.

AMERICAN BEAUTY
THIS 3 bedroom, 2 bath American Beauty brick will win your heart! It's set in lovely Oak Park amidst trees, and you can really appreciate the sliding glass doors opening onto the patio with a background such as this. The house is truly one of quality, and there are many added features you'll appreciate oak block floors throught . . . central air conditioning . . ." and a host of others. Price $17,900.

HOME WITH CHARACTER
SELDOM can you find a 4 bedroom home, but here's one in an elder home at 609 Roselawn .... only a block from Georgia Tucker and near Neville, too. It's in perfect condition .... has copper plumbing .... 220 wiring .... lifetime roof .... hardwood floors .... and each room is attractive and spacious. This is another assumption .... takes $1750 down and monthly payments are only $77 including insurance and taxes.

EARLY AMERICAN
HOMEBODY or successful host, you'll love and enjoy this charming Early American used brick! Only a few months old, it's located very near Lexington School and is a perfectly appointed home, planned with "tenderly loving care" by its transferred owner. There are 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, spacious living room, family room with glass sliding door to patio kitchen full of lovely mahogany cabinets .... and there's more closet space than your husband will let you fill! Centrally heated and air conditioned .... Drapes included in sales. It's vacant and you can take it on an assumption of 5¼ loan with $2550 down. We invite you inside!

INVEST IN HAPPINESS
HERE'S an opportunity to pick up a 5¼ per cent loan with $1835 down (monthly payments $92 including insurance and taxes) and give your family happiness in a home of your own! This is a lovely 8-month-old brick, very near Lexington School. It was built especially for this transferred owner and has many extra features you'll enjoy .... such as .... central air conditioning and heating .... General Electric dishwasher and disposal .... lovely landscaping. It's vacant and we'd be glad to show you anytime!

WHAT VALUE!
THIS 2-year-old brick is really value packed and selling for only $9300! It's located at 900 South 7th, only a few blocks from Plum St. School. The owner's transferred and you can move with $300 down, no closing costs. See it today!

THRIFTY THINKERS
YOUR attention, please, to this bargain at 1613 South 9th! Here's a house that will appraise for $13,650, but because it's a trade-in and we have to sell it right away, we'll take only $11,750. The terms are $750 down and assumption of its present loan with payments of $78 including insurance and taxes. It's a lovely 3 bedroom brick, less than 2 years old.

$300 DOWN
AND MOVE into this lovely 3 bedroom brick on Lionel in the College Area! It's less than 2 years old and in excellent condition .... there's much extra closet space besides the storage room built on the back of the lot. And the living room is newly decorated in a beautiful off-white!

YOU THE LUCKY ONE?
SOMEBODY is going to be lucky and pick up this good assumption deal at 223 Carter Drive, W.M. Monthly payments are only $82, including insurance and taxes, and this house is almost new. It's a 3 bedroom brick, and we'd be happy to show it anytime!

KINGSIZE COMFORT
AMONG stately pines on lovely Pinewood Drive in West Monroe, with 1800 sq. ft. of living area, there are 3 bedrooms and 2 ceramic tile baths, family room, spacious living room and dining area, and storage galore. There are all the features you would expect to find in a quality home and we'd be happy to show it to you anytime. Only $1,600 moves you in.

DUPLEXES
3115 GORDON. Here's a spacious duplex. In excellent condition. Rented side brings in $60 per month .... it's a nice home and good investment. Let's see this.
309 LAZARRE. W.M. Nice duplex near West Monroe's Mitchell Lane School. Price $11,500.

25 ACRES
544 FEET fronting on Highway 80 with commercial brick building, now rented. Several hundred feet on rear of property will front on new super highway. Large home and several small houses also on the acreage. A real buy at only $19,800.

HEMP, GEN. PHILERIE THINKS YOU'RE THE BEST NAVIGATOR ON THE BX-71 PROJECT...

H-HE DOES, COL. CANYON?

BUT HE'S A PRACTICAL COMMANDER — SO HE'S GOING TO MAKE YOU EAT YOUR OWN COOKING!

BY YOUR CALCULATIONS...

...AND PICK THEM UP WITH THE DATA ON OUR BRAILLE BOMBER!

THEY SHOULD BE ON THEIR WAY ACROSS THE ICE TO THE RENDEZ-VOUS RIGHT NOW

IF WE PASS RIGHT OVER THEM THEY MAY THINK WE'RE A ROUTINE BUSH FLIGHT!

THEN WE CAN RE-TURN WITH A CHOPPER AND ENOUGH PEOPLE TO STOP THEM BEFORE THEY CAN HURT YOUR MINDÉE!

HEY! WEATHER AHEAD

MEANWHILE = ON THE SURFACE...

SOUND OF AIRCRAFT!

WE ARE ON THE COAST LINE...

IT IS THE SUPPLY FLIGHT TO THE LIGHT-HOUSE!

WE SHALL BE SIGHTED!

YOU PANIC LATE, WOMAN! WITH THIS CEILING CLOSING DOWN THE PILOT COULD NOT S-- HO! THE GIRL HAS THE SIGNAL PISTOL!

MINDÉE GETS THE FLARE AWAY—

BUT—

BRINGING UP FATHER

GREETING CARDS

STATIONERY

I'LL TAKE ONE OF THOSE 98¢ BRACELETS-

98¢

I'LL PUT IT IN A BAG FOR YOU, SIR-

IT DIDN'T COST MUCH - BUT DIMPLES WILL GIT A KICK OUT OF IT!

I'M WRAPPING UP MRS. JIGGS'S ORDER NOW---

OH - SQUABS AGAIN! I WISH SHE'D ORDER SOMETHIN' ELSE!

DEAR, YOU MUST BE TIRED - SIT DOWN AND REST!

UH - THANKS, DARLIN'— I WILL-

JUST SIT THERE AND RELAX, SWEETHEART -- I'LL GET YOU A NICE DRINK-

GOLLY, I'M REALLY GITTIN' SERVICE AROUND HERE FOR ONCE! MAGGIE MUST HAVE TURNED OVER A NEW LEAF!

I HAVE A SURPRISE, DEAR - INSTEAD OF SQUAB FOR DINNER I DECIDED TO HAVE CORNED BEEF AND CABBAGE -

OH, BY THE WAY- AREN'T YOU FORGET-TING SOMETHING?

OH-YES-I BOUGHT A LITTLE BRACELET FOR DIMPLES - BUT I MUST HAVE LOST IT!

I'LL GIT ANOTHER ONE TOMORROW - IT WUZ ONLY 98¢!

WHAT HAPPENED, UNCLE JIGGS?

THAT'S WHAT I'M TRYIN' TO FIGURE OUT!

TIM TYLER'S LUCK

by Lyman Young and Tom Massey

IF JUNGLE SPIRITS DID CARRY ME AWAY IN THE ANIMAL CAGE FROM HOWIE GAYCOTE'S CAMP, HOW COME THEY BROUGHT ME TO YOUR PLACE HERE, RINGLE ?
COME WITH ME, PATROLMAN SPUD !
YEAH, THAT'S MR. GAYCOTE'S STOLEN PET ANTELOPE !
HOW ABOUT THIS LION ? REMEMBER HIM ?
THAT'S BIG CHIEF ! HE WAS STOLEN, TOO, FROM GAYCOTE !
AND IF YOU HADN'T PLANTED YOURSELF AS LIVE BAIT IN A PORTABLE CAGE, YOU WOULDN'T BE HERE NOW, PATROLMAN !
MEANWHILE...
HOWIE GAYCOTE SAID HE RECENTLY DISCHARGED AN UNTRUSTWORTHY ANIMAL-TRAINER ASSISTANT — I WONDER IF MR. GOOMA IS LEADING ME TO HIM !
